GIBBONS WRITES LETTER TO BIG BILL

INVITES MAYOR TO EXPLAIN TO MEN ABROAD

Correspondent Asks Facts on His Attitude Upon War.

BY FLOYD P. GIBBONS.

(Special Cable to Chicago Tribune.)

PARIS, July 21.—May I request "The Tribune" to see that this open letter reaches the person to whom it is addressed:

TO WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON,
Mayor of Chicago:

DEAR MR. MAYOR—Dispatches carrying the news of your opposition to sending more United States troops to France are causing much ill comment here.

The French-American relations are too strong and the French are too courteous to hold your attitude against all Americans here. The Parisians who discuss the matter with the embarrassed Americans beg them not to feel badly and they explain you as a freak of politics. But my [illegible] plainly shows that I come from Chicago and the Frenchmen's kindly forgiveness is far from satisfying.

I do not write this as one of your constituents. That is a matter you will have to settle with my mother. She voted for you.

U. S. COMMENT EXPLOSIVE.

The United States troops here are coupling your name with language hot enough to explode the ammunition dumps at long range. The Englishmen are expressing sympathy for us for having such a mayor and that is worse than a duties.

I met a man three days ago who broke his shoulder playing football against you during his college days and he said he knew you as "a human being." He speaks of you now as if you had just departed this life or had suffered an unfortunate mental derangement.

The Americans here who are not denouncing you as a traitor are, in self-defense, trying to apologize and explain for you, but, from this distance, explanatory material is hard to get.

FAVORS TO THE MAYOR.

We had an awful time alibi-ing for you when you refused to receive Gen. Joffre. I could not understand your act. I remembered the fine hospitality which you enjoyed when Chicago raised the money to send the first regiment of the Illinois national guard across the continent as your escort during the San Francisco exposition. I accompanied you on that trip and I recalled how well you were treated everywhere.

Of course, there were some who said that you were out trying to drum up a presidential boom for yourself, but that did not seem to interfere with the wholeheartedness of your reception.

I could not understand how you could officially refuse to greet the man who saved the whole of France from the Germans. But somehow or other we explained that incident away and stood up for you.

CANNOT EXPLAIN LATEST.

But this latest move of yours is harder still to understand. A million United States soldiers in France will stop the war. Most probably they could do it without a fight, because such a preponderance is believed by many to be enough to make the Germans quit. He has had almost enough now. I cannot believe that the Chicago mayor does not want the war to stop and does not want the allies to win. Any other desire would be absolutely un-American.

Any more opposition to the movement of more United States troops to France will be interpreted here as about the strongest bit of German propaganda that could be played. I have not seen all of the papers, but I have heard nothing to indicate that you have actually announced any pro-German inclinations regardless of what your actions may have indicated to some.

MILLION WOULD END WAR.

Four months of observation and investigation in France and in England have left me with some impressions as to what is needed here and I am

MAN'S SKELETON IN FURNACE ONLY CLEW TO MURDER

Disappearance of Two, Months Ago, May Be Solved.

In the middle of March two men employed in the plant of the Deprato Statuary company's plant at 766 West Adams street disappeared. Last night the bones of one of them was taken from the base of a chimney in the plant. One was Joseph Guintini, 50 years old. The name of the other could not be learned last night.

For the last three months a strike has been in progress among the employés of the statuary plant. The police found that about half the men have walked out demanding union organization while the others remained at work.

No Motive Established.

But evidence that union warfare was the cause of the murder of one of the missing men could not be established.

Last night John Gazzela of 122 South Aberdeen street, the engineer, and Alfedo Guido, his assistant, started to clean the engine room. They opened an iron door at the base of the smokestack and the bones of a man tumbled out. Policeman William Haley of the Desplaines street station, who has been on guard at the plant, was called. He reported the matter to Lieut. Kelleher, and an investigation was begun.

Clew Is Slight.

It developed that Guintini formerly lived with his son, Leo Guintini at 2420 [illegible] avenue. Another son is in the Italian army. Nothing has been heard of him since March. He was said by the police to have been of a quarrelsome disposition. With him was employed the other missing man. They were the only occupants of the engine room of the statuary plant on the night before their disappearance.

Lieut. Kelleher was able to report that he possesses the corpus delicti, but is puzzled which of the men was the victim of murder.

WAR ARGUMENT ENDS IN MURDER; SLAYERS ESCAPE

Following a draft argument, Andrew Hansen of 1331 North Avers avenue, a union cabinetmaker, was shot and killed last night in the saloon of Dominick Polito, 2944 West Grand avenue. Frank Christao of 2648 West Superior street, a bartender, is being sought.

The police were able to discover that in the course of the quarrel Hansen was ordered out of the place. Polito and Frank Zaffina of 2106 West Huron street started to eject him. As the three neared the door there was a shot and Hansen fell, shot through the heart.

Polito, Zaffina, and another man were arrested, but all declared they had no knowledge of the affair other than that of seeing Christao flee immediately afterward.

NAME RANSOM ON REGISTER ONLY CLEW TO SUICIDE

Registered as V. C. Ransom, a man about 30 years old was found dead last night in the Planters hotel with a revolver clutched in his hand and a bullet hole through his head. His clothing bore the mark of a San Francisco tailor. No letters or other papers were found.

He registered at the hotel July 15, but went away. He returned Friday and went to his room. Nothing was seen of him all day yesterday and Frank Hoffman, manager, forced the door. He had been dead ten or twelve hours.

The police turned the body over to the Western Casket company's undertaking rooms, 30 East Randolph street. The man's collar and shirt bore the laundry mark "S. C. R." In his pocket was $1.30. He weighed about 160 pounds.

WOMAN SUES FOR MONEY LOST IN STOCK MARKET

Mrs. Rosalia Fifield filed a precipe in a $20,000 damage suit in the Circuit court yesterday against E. W. Wagner, head of E. W. Wagner & Co., stock brokers at 208 South La Salle street.

The precipe says "assumpsit," and that means "to collect a debt."

Mr. Wagner said that there had been some mistake.

"My company never deals with women," he said. "But it seems that by some mistake she invested some money in stocks through our firm, and she lost. Her brother had an account with us, I think, and that is the way the rule was broken. She has no case and just wants to annoy me with this suit."

THE WAR

Mutiny of Russian troops permits Germans to push back line which was threatening Lemberg until now Tarnopol is in danger of the armies of the kaiser.

Berlin reports that attacks of the Russians to the south of the Dniester river have been repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

Fighting on the front in France is confined mostly to trench raiding, with small local attacks and with varying success.

Russia in Peril! Jail Rebels! Kerensky's Order to Fleet

PETROGRAD, July 21.—Premier Kerensky has addressed an order of the day to the army and navy directing:

First—The dissolution of the central committee of the Baltic fleet and the election of a new committee.

Second—The issue of a notification to all detachments of the ships of the Baltic fleet that "I desire them to remove at once all persons suspected of inciting to insubordination against the provisional government and against our offensive and to send these individuals to Petrograd for trial."

Third—Detachments of Kronstadt and of the battleships Petropavlovsk, Republic, and Slava, the names of which have been disgraced by the actions of counter revolutionists, shall arrest within twenty-four hours the ringleaders and send them to Petrograd for trial, thus giving assurance of complete loyalty to the provisional government.

Branded as Traitors.

"I hereby notify the Kronstadt detachments and crews of these ships," the order continues, "that if this order is not carried out they will be branded as traitors to the country and the revolution, and that most vigorous measures will be taken against them.

"Comrades: the country has been brought to the brink of a precipice by treason. The German armies and artillery have taken the offensive on our front. At any moment a decisive action may be forced by the enemy's fleet, which may try to profit by the confusion of the moment. Drastic measures are necessary once for all to put an end to this confusion. The army has already done something in this direction and the fleet should follow suit."

The recent disturbances in Petrograd were instigated by agents of the German government, said Premier Kerensky in a message to the sailors at Reval, Helsingfors, and other ports. The new premier appeals to all democrats to stand by the provisional government. His message reads:

"It has been established without doubt that the disturbances in Petrograd were organized by agents of the German government. The disturbances now have been suppressed completely and the arrest of the leaders and those guilty of the blood of their brothers and crimes against the government and the revolution is proceeding. Arrests also are being made among the sailors who acted contrary to their civic and military duties.

"I appeal to all true sons of democracy to rally around the provisional government and the democratic organizations throughout Russia to save the country and the revolution from the enemy without and his allies within."

Disband Rebel Regiments.

Detachments of soldiers and sailors with machine guns have arrested thirty-six Maximalist (Radical Socialist) delegates to the Baltic fleet on board the Russian destroyer Orphel, which was lying at a British quay.

A notorious member of the Maximalists named Zinovieff and Stackloff, ringleader of the labor delegates in Petrograd, who sought to open direct negotiations with the enemy. A search has been made of the residence of Nikolai Lenine, Socialist leader of the recent outbreak here. His whereabouts is unknown. One rumor says he has been arrested.

The regiments participating in the Petrograd disorders are being disbanded. More troops arrived today from the front. The state banks and other banks have been reopened.

W. D. Hoerr, Brother of Chicago Banker, Killed

Denver, Colo., July 21.—[Special.]—William D. Hoerr, a brother of Charles F. Hoerr, president of the Home Bank and Trust company, Chicago, was killed when an automobile ran into a ditch several miles east of Denver this morning.

Two sisters of Mr. Hoerr live in Chicago. They are Mrs. Leonard Bodach, 2225 North Kedzie avenue, and Mrs. L. J. Eckhardt, 4735 North Kenneth street. Burial will be in Chicago. The victim of the accident was raised in Chicago.

Kaiser in Poor Health; Treatment Urged, Report

LONDON, July 21.—The Evening News today printed a Rome dispatch stating that the German kaiser was "seriously depressed and that his physicians had recommended he take the Nauheim cure."

German Air Raids Will Bring British Reprisals

LONDON, July 21.—Samuel Samuels, M. P., announced in a speech today that the British government intends to adopt a policy of reprisal for German air raids.

SENATE PASSES CONTROL BILL; WIDE IN SCOPE

Minimum Price for Wheat; Coal Mines May Be Seized.

"The consumer may now look for a drop in flour to $10 or $11, which means that the bread on his table will be cheaper."

JOSEPH P. GRIFFIN,
President Chicago Board of Trade.

Washington, July 21.—The administration food control bill, virtually rewritten after five weeks' bitter contest, was passed today by the senate, 81 to 6. Conferees from house and senate will begin work early next week, and leaders are hopeful the measure may be in the president's hands in ten days.

As revamped the bill gives the president broad authority over foods, feeds, and fuels, the latter including kerosene and gasoline; provides for administration by a food board of three members instead of an individual; authorizes federal fixing of coal prices, requisitioning and operation of mines, and authorizes a minimum guaranteed price of not less than $2 a bushel for best grade wheat at primary markets.

"DRY" CLAUSE REMAINS.

The senate prohibition sections, prohibiting manufacture of distilled beverages during the war and directing the president to buy all distilled spirits in bond, was substituted for the house "bone dry" provision and will be one subject of difficulty in conference.

The six senators who voted against the bill on its final passage were:

France, Maryland.
Hardwick, Georgia.
Penrose, Pennsylvania.
Reed, Missouri.
Sherman, Illinois.
Southerland, West Virginia.

CAUSE OF WHEAT ACTION.

Scores of amendments were disposed of today, but the principal features were the incorporation of the amendment authorizing the minimum wheat price and another by Senator Pomerene greatly broadening the government's power to handle the coal situation.

The government guarantee for wheat would be payable at all principal interior primary markets until July 1, 1919. The senate rejected, 48 to 32, an amendment by Senator Norris to have the food board instead of congress fix the minimum price.

The wheat amendment was written into the bill to appease the northern farmers, who resented the fact cotton and other agricultural products were not included in the program of regulation.

MAY TAKE COAL MINES.

The Pomerene coal amendment incorporated by the overwhelming vote of 72 to 12 directs the president, through the federal trade commission or other agency, to fix coal prices, wholesale and retail, regulate the entire industry, and if necessary to take over and operate coal mines and fix prices of labor.

The senate also added provisions against hoarding of foodstuffs and for regulation of grain exchanges, authorizing the president to close them if necessary to stop speculation in futures.

DEFEAT ONE MAN CONTROL.

A final effort was made by Senator Shafroth to have the bill provide for a single food administrator instead of a three man board of food administration, but this was voted down, 60 to 23.

It was said today, however, that the fiat had gone forth that the board is to be dropped in conference and that the house, backed by the president, will earnestly oppose the substitution of a board for a single food administrator, the administration being determined to appoint Herbert C. Hoover to supreme command.

Friends of Mr. Hoover insisted that the plan for a board of three is certain to hamper the work of the food administration. The unhappy situation in the shipping board because of the differences between Chairman Denman and Gen. Goethals is cited as a striking illustration of what may follow divided authority.

WHERE TWO BILLS DIFFER.

The bill as passed by the senate limits government control virtually to the original subjects of the house measure—food, feeds, and fuels.

In lieu of the house bill's broad provisions for licensing food dealers, the senate bill limits federal licensing to the

GERMANY CALLS 2,000,000 MEN AS DRAFT REPLY

Summons Youths to Be Ready to Face New Enemies.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Scarcely had the newspapers of the country conveyed the details of the new national army draft to waiting millions than the cables from Europe reported Germany's response to this climax in America's first experiment with selective conscription.

Germany's counter move against the draft, it is declared, is a call of 2,000,000 of her youngest men to the colors. This information in confidential advices reached war department officials today.

The German younger classes, it was declared, will be called to report to the colors next March, or about the time the new national army of the United States can be expected to be ready to be transferred to France.

Officials decline to say what classes are to be called up, but it is believed that they will be well below 21 years of age.

$100,000,000 IN SOLDIERS DRAWN IN PASADENA?

Pasadena, Cal., July 21.—[Special.]—Pasadena's quota for the selective draft represents a selection of men whose aggregate fortunes exceed $100,000,000, it was learned today.

Among those chosen were:

Lowell McAdams, athlete and banker, whose fortune is placed at between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

Leroy [illegible], former coxswain of the Stanford university crew and banker, whose bank account runs up a good many figures.

Lewis Lienard, son of D. M. Lienard, manager of three large hotels in Pasadena and one in San Francisco, whose wealth exceeds $[illegible].

Thaddeus [illegible], social leader, whose fortune is estimated all the way from $[illegible] to $[illegible].

John Coulston, now with the American ambulance corps in France, and very wealthy.

Donald Daniels, a student in aviation at the school at Berkeley, who could not possibly carry his wealth into the air were it all put in gold.

BOMBARD CAR, INJURE SCORE, IN SEATTLE STRIKE

Seattle, Wash., July 21.—Riots that resulted in the injury of between twenty and twenty-five men, the arrest of twenty-five persons, and damage estimated at thousands of dollars followed an attempt to run a street car through the lower downtown business district in the heart of the city late this afternoon. Thousands of striking car men and sympathizers joined in onslaughts on the car. Bricks, stones, lead pipe casing, and other missiles came from every direction. Every window in the car was smashed and it was twice thrown from the tracks.

"Billy" Spears, Travel Expert, in First Draft

"Billy" Spears, known among the country's most popular ticket and tour men, manager of the travel department of the American Express company, was among the first 400 numbers drawn in the draft lottery on Friday.

"I regard it as an honor," said Mr. Spears. "I'd go in a minute if my wife were not a semi-invalid. The exemption board may not take me on that account."

Mr. Spears is 28 years old. He has guided parties of tourists through Europe, Latin America, and other parts of the world. He started with the American Express company as office boy.

THE DRAFT LISTS

In addition to the 12 pages of names of the men first liable for the draft published in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, additional names are printed today on pages 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 of part 2 of this paper.

A final complete Draft Section of 24 pages, containing approximately all the names of those who are likely to be called for examination from Chicago and Cook County, is being prepared by THE TRIBUNE, and will be on sale Monday morning at 5 cents a copy.

DRAFTED MEN MAY VOLUNTEER IF THEY HURRY

Rush of Men to Pick Their Service Is Expected.

THE DRAFT CALENDAR FOR REGISTERED MEN

MONDAY—Ascertain at district headquarters your number in the order it was drawn in Washington. Lists probably will be received from Washington by that time.

TUESDAY—Adjutant general expected to announce quotas. To learn whether you are in first contingent called for the first army double the number of the quota being called for the physical examinations.

WEDNESDAY—Boards will mail official notices to each registrant included in contingent summoned for first examination. Registrants have five, six and seven days to respond in person to these summonses, the exact number to appear on each day being specified in the notices.

THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY—Boards preparing machinery for the examinations and [illegible] to determine their order on the call.

MONDAY (one week from tomorrow)—First examinations begin in the district headquarters.

TUESDAY, JULY 31—More examinations.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 1—Last day of examinations.

THURSDAY, AUG. 2—Last day for filing exemption claims.

Any one of the 314,216 registrants for the conscription army in Chicago, or any registrant in the United States, can enlist in the army and navy services and escape the conscription army, provided he acts before the Washington drawings are posted and notices are sent out.

This was the effect of an order issued by the war department in Washington yesterday.

The time limit for the voluntary enlistments is the date on which the local exemption boards will send out notices to the first contingent to appear for examination.

FEW DAYS OF GRACE.

The lists, now on their way from Washington, may reach Chicago tomorrow, or Tuesday at the latest. It is estimated that it will take the local boards two or three days, possibly longer in the higher districts, to get the notices out to the first increment. In some cases it may be Wednesday or Thursday before some of the registrants are notified officially to appear for the first examination.

Up to that time, the war department rules, the door is open for all registered men to get into the service as volunteers, and begin at once the military and naval training, instead of waiting for the slower method of being billeted in the cantonment camps.

The three branches are now open to the Chicago boys—the army, navy, and the marine corps.

WAR DEPARTMENT ORDER.

The order issued by the war department reads:

"Any registered person is entitled to enlist voluntarily until he has been notified that he has been called in the draft army by the local board. Notice of the call by the local board is mailed to each person, and each notice contains a direction for him to appear for physical examination. After the receipt of the notice from the local board a registered person ceases to be eligible for voluntary enlistment."

RUSH IS EXPECTED.

The spreading of this intelligence today is likely to result in a rush of many of the boys to enlist, some of the local officials thought. By taking advantage of the enlistment opportunity in the next two or three days the registrants would be able to choose their branch of the service. They also would be placed immediately in training camps where the regulars and the navy men and marines are being turned out. They would have the advantage of training with men already in the service or familiar with the rudiments, it was explained.

Those who fail to take advantage of the volunteer offer, however, will be sent to the cantonments later in the year when the entire citizen army, as drawn on July 20, 1917, will be billeted and educated for fighting ranks.

Capt. Edward A. Evers, commandant, where 400 men are now in training, confirmed the rule of the department yesterday. He wired Washington for exact information and received official reply as follows:

"A man can enlist in the naval service before he receives official notice to present himself for examination."

This same rule applies to the army and the marine corps.

Thirty men, most of them included in the personnel of the first conscript army, were enrolled at the naval camp during the day by Chief Yeoman A. H. Dowle.

"We offer a special inducement to men who prefer to serve in the navy," said Capt. Evers. "By enlisting in the naval militia they receive the same pay as others in the navy and they will be required to serve only for the period of the war."

RUSH DRAFT NOTICES.

The notifications by the Chicago and Cook county boards probably will be mailed the forepart of the week.

The fighting quota of each exemption district probably will be fixed by Adj. Gen. Dickson some time tomorrow. This quota then will be forwarded to the local boards, who ought to know by Tuesday night just how many men are included in the first call for exemption. If the notices are then mailed the men will receive them Wednesday. They have from five to seven days in which to respond, according to the specifications adopted by the boards.

It is not likely, therefore, that the first examinations will begin much more than one week from tomorrow, although some of the boards may call in the first batch for examination Friday or Saturday of this week.

WANT MEN TO HELP.

The war department officials are requesting that the registrants themselves employ a little initiative and coöperation in order that the confusion may be straightened out as speedily as possible.

While the general regulations make it incumbent upon the exemption boards to notify all registrants called for the first examination, it was pointed out yesterday that the men themselves could greatly facilitate the work by immediately ascertaining the order in which their number was drawn.

Egan Issues Appeal.

Chief Clerk Egan of the election board issued an appeal to all registrants in the eighty-six districts of Chicago immediately to take it upon themselves to ascertain just where they stand in the order of the drawing.

This can be done by perusing the lists as published in the newspapers and also going in person to the district headquarters and fixing their order in the drawing as soon as the lists are received from Washington. These ought to be in Chicago by tomorrow morning or Tuesday at the latest.

Failure or error on the part of any board to notify any registrant will not be taken as an excuse for failure to respond when the physical examination begins if the overlooked man happens to be within the first contingent called.

Automatic Penalty Provided.

In case a board happens to overlook any person and he does not show up within ten days after the notices are sent out he will be automatically listed as qualified for the service and will be so certified to the appeal boards and the adjutant general at Springfield.

"Each of the registered men," said Mr. Egan, "should immediately scan the newspaper lists to learn his position. As soon as this is done the candidate should immediately go to the headquarters of his board and ascertain when he is wanted for the physical examination.

"Although the law says that the board should notify the candidates when they must appear for examination, lack of notification from the board does not excuse them. The law is intended to make everybody take part in the great work."

Photographs Check Lists.

Accompanying the copies of lists as the numbers were drawn in Washington will be photographic copies of the numbers as they were written on the blackboards when they came out of the big glass bowl.

Both the printed and photographic lists will be available for inspection at all headquarters as soon as they are received in Chicago.

It was at first estimated in Washington that the fighting quota from Chicago would be about 25,000 men. Estimates now being prepared at Springfield indicate that the quota may fall below that figure and that it may reach as low as 17,000. If the quota is 25,000, then 50,000 men will be summoned for the first examination. If it is 17,000, then 34,000 will be summoned.

If the quota should be 25,000 and 500,000 men are summoned in the first batch, then that will be 16 per cent of the total registration in each district. If it is 17,000, and 34,000 are summoned, then the percentage of the total registration in the district will be 11.

Duplicates of the exemption cards of District 22, which were lost after being delivered to the janitor of the capitol building at Springfield, were finished yesterday by the local board and shipped to Springfield.

"SAMMIES" GET WINE OF FRANCE

PERMANENT CAMP OF THE AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY ARMY IN FRANCE, July 21.—Pershing's "Sammies" are keen on bayonet practice. There isn't a more popular course in the training curriculum than this. The American soldiers have been impressed with the fact that the enemy fears cold steel worse than bullets, and they want to get perfection in the thrust and cut.

The French government presented the army with a bottle of champagne and a liter of red wine for every soldier. Wine doesn't figure in the American commissariat, so the officers were undecided about its distribution, although returning thanks to the French officials. One battalion, however, didn't waste any time, but at once consumed all its quota.

1,000 Aliens in 42d District Upsets Quota Figures

With more than 1,000 aliens registered, out of a total of [illegible] men, the members of the exemption board of division 42, at 600 Blue Island avenue, last night said they would resign unless the draft quota is established on the basis of citizenship instead of registration. They claim the exemption of the 1,000 aliens makes a certainty that all the naturalized citizens must go to war, whereas if the quota were based on citizenship some of these would stand a chance.

Arrested on Liquor Charge.

Robert V. [illegible], a Negro, 2340 South Federal street, was arrested yesterday by Deputy United States Marshal Thomas [illegible] on a charge of shipping liquor into a dry state. When [illegible] attempted to [illegible] him he fled. The deputy fired several [illegible] before [illegible] surrendered.

OFFICIAL LIST ON DRAFT ARMY OUT BY TUESDAY

Local Boards to Call Men Following Receipt of the Copies.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—The officers and clerks of Provost Marshal Gen. Crowder's office worked all last night to complete the drawing that fixed the order of military liability of 10,000,000 registrants. The tally sheets had been compared and corrected before dark tonight, and the master list was in the hands of the printer.

Copies will be mailed to local exemption boards beginning not later than Tuesday, and the summoning of the first draft of 687,000 men can begin.

In Hands of Printer.

Gen. Crowder tonight issued the following statement:

"The drawing is complete and has been apparently successful. The official tally sheets have been compared, sent to the printer, and the proof is being received. Final copies will be ready for distribution not later than Tuesday.

"The next step will be the certification of the results of the drawing to 4,557 local boards and the application by each board of its chart to its serially numbered list. This need consume but little time, and when done the order of priority of the registrants to report for examination will be revealed.

"Such additional drafts as may be ordered by the president will be filled by calling men in the order of this established priority and no further drawing will be necessary.

Boards Take Next Step.

"Each local board, upon receipt of its chart and upon notification by the governor of the quota to be raised by it, may proceed at once, under regulations already promulgated, to summon men for examination.

"We have now passed the stage in the execution of the selective service act when we must have concert of action by the states. In raising state contingents the race is to the swiftest.

"I cannot let this opportunity pass without adverting to the very great value of the assistance which has been so earnestly and efficiently rendered by the press.

"Without the systematic campaign of public information that prepared the country for the registration the enrollment would have been impossible."

Detailed Plans Laid.

Gen. Crowder also made public the text of the regulations for their application which will acompany the master lists. The only new feature shown is the plan for handling cards that are found to have duplicate numbers or are otherwise confused, and also of dealing with those received July 10, when the local boards closed their lists to begin numbering.

These additional cards will be given an order of their own by lot and then will be added to the lists of the districts from which they come, and will be affected by the drawing precisely as though they had been received and numbered before the board lists were closed.

Another step accomplished during the day was the appointment of the district boards of thirty-two of the states and announcement of the names of the five men who will compose each of them.

District Boards for Pleas.

These district boards will have no function until the local boards in their territory have begun to certify to them the men found fitted for military duty physically and not burdened with dependents. The higher boards are courts of appeal, either for the individual or for the government, against the findings of the local board.

The whole question of industrial exemptions, however, has been turned over directly to these district boards, which have original jurisdiction in all cases of this kind. They will be sole judges of any registered man's field of greatest service to the nation, whether in the army or in the munition factory, business house, or other civilian occupation in which he is engaged.

Each case will be weighed on its merits and the value of the individual, for there will be no blanket exemption to cover other than divinity students, government officials or the other classes specifically named in the law. Even they must file affidavits showing their status, to be supported in such manner as the board may determine.

One Capsule Is Blank.

The first purpose today in checking the tally sheets was to discover one missing number. A blank capsule was found among the 10,500 capsules taken from the bowl one at a time in the drawing. At the time a notation was placed on the tally sheets showing that the blank had come up number 10,004.

The drawing was carried through, however, without regard to the blank, the next number announced being placed as number 10,004. It appeared more likely that an empty capsule had been placed in the jar inadvertently than that a numbered slip had been lost. The empty pellet was put back each time it came up thereafter with the hope that it would be found to be 10,501 when the drawing was finished.

When number 10,499 had been drawn, however, the empty capsule was all that remained in the jar and it was known that one slip had not been placed in the drawing.

Later Numbers Shifted.

Today's checking showed the missing number to be 4,004 in the serial lists of registrants. That number will be placed as No. 10,004 in the liability lists on the official records, and all numbers drawn after that will be moved down one point, so that the present last number, 2,214, now posted as No. 10,499, will become No. 10,500, completing the drawing.

There will be also other minor corrections to make. Until the official list is published, however, no definite statement of the probable number of revisions can be made. Indications are that they will be few, and that the tally sheets were kept so carefully that a practically perfect result was obtained immediately on the discovery of the missing number.

Names Will Be Posted.

Men allotted by the drawing to be among the first to appear in their districts to fill district quotas in the force of 687,000 men the president has summoned, will not be advised officially to appear for examination before local boards until the master list of the drawing has reached the local boards.

The names of those to come forward will then be posted, and any man who fails to appear when notified will be promptly hunted down and the penalties imposed for attempted evasion exacted. Officials anticipate there will be few slackers, however. The spirit shown in the registration indicates that the draft will bring out every man to whom it applies without further legal process.

Word of the registration in Porto Rico came today from the governor, who reported that it would far exceed estimates. One hundred and four thousand five hundred and fifty men had registered when the count was made, and additional cards expected by mail will bring the final figures perhaps to 110,000. Gen. Crowder is considering the advisability of providing that a separate drawing be held in Porto Rico to cover this addition to the army.

Registration in Alaska is proceeding slowly. It has been found necessary to do the work by regions, because of geographical conditions, and the total may not be available for some time.

DRAFT FIGURES MADE EASY

Chicago Youth May Learn Whether He Is in the First 1500 Numbers Which Decided Those to Be Called Out For Service.

The following table presents in simplified form the order of the drawing of the first 1,500 numbers in the national army draft. The figures in the first of each of the two columns represents the "red ink" number assigned to the registrants. They are arranged numerically. The figures in the second of each of the two columns show the order in which these "red ink" figures came out of the urn in Washington, giving the order in which the holders of the "red ink" numbers will be called for physical examination preliminary to entering the army. In these tables the "red ink" numbers above 8593 are omitted, as no man in Chicago was awarded a number above that figure.

ONLY 200,000 U.S. SOLDIERS IN FRANCE IN YEAR?

Lack of Ships Caused by U-Boats to Delay Work, Claim in Capital.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—That the United States will not have 200,000 troops in France before Sept. 1, 1918, was asserted here today on high authority.

When the German submarines destroy 1,000,000 more tons of British shipping England will have to abandon the Saloniki campaign, was another declaration from the same source, which declared that the seriousness of the submarine situation cannot be minimized.

These statements were made to show that this government is fully aware of the difficulties facing America's participation in the war.

Need 5,000,000 Tonnage.

To serve the national army which will be sent to France, if peace is not concluded within a year, five million tons of shipping will be required, a figure far beyond the present resources of the allies and America.

The fact stands out, it is declared, that comparatively few more troops can be dispatched to France within a year and adequately supplied, while the further condition obtains that there is not now under construction sufficient tonnage in the allied countries, America, and the neutral countries whose shipping is available for allied uses, to accommodate America's national army of 500,000 men at the beginning of September, 1918, unless submarine operations cease.

U. S. Publishes Losses.

This government makes public every sinking of an American merchant ship, preferring not to follow the British practice of concealing the name and tonnage of the victim.

Officials were emphatic today in expressing the opinion that the press ought neither to minimize nor to magnify the submarine peril in relation to the issue of the war, but again refused to furnish figures based on official reports.

ODDITIES OF DRAFT

St. Louis, Mo., July 21.—Mrs. [illegible] McCarthy, who jumped into the Mississippi river here today and was drowned, told friends before she committed suicide that she would end her life because her son, Russell, was drawn in the army draft. The name of Russell McCarthy does not appear in the list of men called up for examination for the first draft.

Gary, Ind., July 21.—[Special.]—Printers and proof readers dropped in their tracks today while trying to get out a list of men drafted in Gary. A sample of names from the first ten in each of the three exemption districts is as follows: Vicak Kondenich, Max [illegible], Lazar Lajat, Eli Lemich, M. [illegible], Love White, Boleslaw Guterski, F. [illegible] Bell, E. Radamovich, Spasenji [illegible], and Wladyslaw Wojichienowski.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 21.—Felix [illegible] is over 31, but he'll be in the first draft anyway. His thirty-first birthday arrived four days after he registered. He is among the first 600 drawn here.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 21.—It didn't take Herbert L. Martin long to find out where he stood. He wired from Marquette, Mich., to learn his serial number, and received the following reply: "258."

Rock Island, Ill., July 21.—Francisco Seals, one of the early ones drawn from this city, does not care whether he is drafted or not. Francisco is being held at the county jail for murder. In fact, if Francisco is given any choice in the matter he will elect to serve in the army rather than serve in the penitentiary.

Madison, Wis., July 21.—"President has crushed the hearts of millions of wives and mothers. Otto has been called. The baby and I will have to shift for ourselves. But Otto will do his duty—he must." That's how Mrs. Otto Wagner, wife of the Madison, Wis., No. 258 took the news.

Cincinnati, O., July 21.—What's in a name? Dunn Bottoms, a porter, thinks his is a talisman. It was at the bottom of army draft. Bottoms' number, [illegible], was the last drawn in the lottery at Washington.

Winona, Minn., July 21.—Leo [illegible]wiski was slugged and robbed. Draft news came just as he recovered consciousness. He held No. 258.

Lynn, Mass., July 21.—Timothy [illegible] McGuire, one of this city's 258s, fainted when he learned his number was the first out. His mother also collapsed when she learned it.

Sharon, Pa., July 21.—The first Sharon man drafted with No. 258 is John [illegible], born on Friday, the 13th.

SPEECH A SHAM: LLOYD GEORGE TO MICHAELIS

Doping Germany with Illusions, the Premier Says.

LONDON, July 21.—The British prime minister, David Lloyd George, speaking at a great patriotic demonstration in Queen's hall this afternoon, in commemoration of "Belgian Independence day," characterized the speech of the German chancellor, Dr. George Michaelis, as a mere sham, facing all ways, and declared that he did not want the Germans "to harbor any delusions that they are going to put Great Britain out of this fight until liberty has been reëstablished throughout the world."

Great Britain could make peace with a free Germany, but with a Germany dominated by autocracy, declared the premier, there never could be peace.

ERR IN OVERCONFIDENCE.

The Germans, the premier said, were making the same mistake in underestimating America's efforts in the war as they had made about Great Britain in the beginning.

"They said that we would not fight," continued Mr. Lloyd George, "and if we did, we could not. We had no army and we couldn't raise one, and they need not worry about Britain. I think they have discovered their mistake about us, and they are now just going through the same process with America.

REPEATS ERROR AS TO AMERICA.

"I want to put this to them: If Great Britain—not a very large country—while she is maintaining and equipping and even building up equipment for an army of millions afield and in reserve in full fighting array; while she is maintaining the largest navy in the world, can organize in the third year of an exhausting war to turn out millions of tons of new shipping, is America, with twice the population of this country, with endless natural resources, going to be beaten merely because she puts forth no effort? The man who talks like that knows not America; otherwise he would not say it."

Referring directly to the German chancellor's sneering remark that America has no ships and no army, and that when America has an army it will have no ships to bring them across the sea, the premier said:

"He knows America just as little as the Germans knew Great Britain."

SAYS U-BOAT PERIL IS MET.

Far from being starved by the U boats, Mr. Lloyd George declared Great Britain's food supply for 1917-18 was already secured; production was increasing, and losses at sea were diminishing. He had sought in the chancellor's speech for something which he could hope for the ending of the bloody struggle.

"But," he declared, "I see in it a sham independence for Belgium, a sham democracy for Germany, a sham peace for Europe, and I say that Europe has not sacrificed millions of her gallant sons to set up a sanctuary for sham."

A great crowd had gathered, in the expectation that the premier would reply to the German chancellor's speech, and his utterances were greeted at times enthusiastically.

FACING-ALL-WAYS SPEECH.

Mr. Lloyd George asked what hope there was in the chancellor's speech of peace.

"I mean an honorable peace, which is the only possible peace," he said. "It is a dexterous speech, a facing-all-ways speech. There are phrases for those who earnestly desire peace, many of them, but there are phrases which the military powers of Germany will understand, phrases about making the frontiers of Germany secure. That's the phrase which annexed Alsace-Lorraine; that's the phrase which has drenched Europe in blood since 1914; that's the phrase—if they dare—that will annex Belgium and Courland; that's the phrase which will once more precipitate Europe into a welter of blood within a generation unless that phrase is wiped out by the statesmanship of Europe.

Phrases for Deception.

"There are phrases for men of democratic minds, but there are phrases to satisfy the junkers, and there are other phrases which mean nothing. It is the speech of a man waiting on the military issue. It is a speech that may be made better by improving the military situation, and if the Germans win in the west, if they destroy the Russian army in the east, if the Turks drive Great Britain out of Mesopotamia, and if the U-boats sink more merchant ships, then that speech, believe me, means annexation all around and military autocracy more firmly established than ever.

"What manner of government the Germans choose to rule over them is entirely a matter for the German people themselves. But as to what manner of government we can trust to make peace, that is our business. Democracy is in itself a guarantee of peace, but if it cannot be got in Germany then we must secure other guarantees as a substitute."

No Hope for Belgium in It.

The speech of the German chancellor, continued Mr. Lloyd George, meant that for the moment the military party in Germany had won and showed that those in charge of affairs had elected for war. There was no hope for Belgium in the Michaelis speech, but the determination of the allies, said the premier, was that Belgium must be restored as a free and independent country.

"We must not have a Belgian scabbard for the German sword," he declared. "The scabbard must be Belgian, the sword must be Belgian, and the soil must be Belgian."

Speaking in denunciatory tones of the illusions sustained in the speech of Dr. Michaelis, the premier said:

"The chancellor tries to stimulate and encourage his people by doping them with illusions, and Germany will find that her hopes are just as much illusions as others which have been dispelled. The U-boats are to put England out of business. Owing to submarine attacks we cannot last much longer, according to the German chancellor. We will. I am sorry to disillusion him at the outset of his career, but truth compels me to do it. Gradually but surely we are increasing our production and diminishing our losses at sea."

Turning to the chancellor's statement regarding the U-boat war, Lloyd George said that April was the height of German piratical triumph. The Germans could look back to that month as a month of glory.

Gain Against Submarine.

"Since then," he continued, "we have faced longer days, which increased our difficulties enormously on the high seas, but, although our apprehensions were great, we have gradually decreased our losses, and although we have had only three weeks of July, compared with three weeks in April, our losses are less than one-half.

"This year we have turned out four times as many ships as last year. In the last two months of this year we should turn out as many ships as we did in the whole twelve months of last year. Next year we should turn out six times as many ships as last year.

"Our food supply for 1917-'18 is already secured. With reasonable economy there is a program of cultivation which will make the food supplies for 1918-'19 secure, even if our losses are greater.

"Germany is not going to drive Great Britain out of the fight until liberty has been reëstablished."

Kerensky's Fight for Democracy.

Mr. Lloyd George paid tribute to the patriotic work of the brilliant Russian statesman, Kerensky, in his leadership of the Russian democracy, and declared that in the great coming struggle in the east and west every German soldier must know in his heart that if he fought on he would be dying for military autocracy and fighting against the federation of free peoples.

NO FAVORITISM IN NEW ARMY, BAKER PLEDGES

Every Effort to Be Made to Protect Men from Useless Sacrifice.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—What the government promises to the great army of young men being called to the colors and to their fathers and mothers was outlined to me today by Secretary of War Baker.

"It is provided in the law that when these armies are assembled there shall be no difference between the regular, the national guard, and the national army," said the secretary. "But every man, whether he has had training in the regular army or not, whether he has had training in the guard or not, whether he be a member of the selective national army, is equal in dignity, in responsibility, and in opportunity a member of the army of the United States.

To Be No Favoritism.

"There will be preserved that just pride which the people of our several states have in their own soldier boys, and in all that is done for them and in all that they do for us there is to be neither distinction nor prejudice nor favoritism, but they stand equal as the servants and as the upholders of our liberties.

"And this great company of men are to be trained—they are to be trained to meet modern conditions of war. They are to be equipped with the most modern and effective devices, both for aggression upon our adversaries and the protection of our own men.

Amusements Planned.

"Modern times have witnessed many new things. The great science of medicine and sanitation has wonderfully advanced and all the safeguards that knowledge and science can throw around our soldiers is to be placed about them. And in these great encampments where they are to be trained modern recreation experts are to provide wholesome and attractive amusements for their leisure.

"One of the traditional policies of the United States from its beginning has been the avoidance of entangling alliances. The United States is in no entangling alliance. We are in this war upon no sordid mission of any sort.

Democracy vs. Autocracy.

"We do not seek to take the possessions of any other people or to impose by force our will upon any other people in the making of their government or in an encroachment upon their rights.

"But after a patience perfectly unparalleled and after an effort worthy of our civilization to accomplish the recognition of our rights and of our freedom, by diplomacy and by every peaceful art, America is in arms now to vindicate upon the battle field the right of democracy to exist against the denials of autocracy."

Asked to say a word on the scope of the war preparations he is superintending, Mr. Baker replied:

"The mere business of this enterprise is very great. Perhaps I can give some idea to you of what it means if I quote for your information a few comparative figures.

Supremacy of the Air.

"Take, for instance, the subject of aeronautics. In 1915 the congress appropriated something less than a half million dollars for the building of aircraft in the army. In 1917 the appropriation was $47,000,000.

"But further to illustrate this comparison, under normal conditions the appropriation made by congress for our army's regular supplies is about $10,000,000, and this year for war the first appropriation is $110,000,000. In the item of transportation for the army, instead of the peace time appropriation of some $13,000,000 or $14,000,000 congress has already appropriated $223,000,000; for clothing and such items instead of the ordinary appropriation of $6,500,000 congress has appropriated more than $200,000,000."

HEIGH HO! READ THIS

LONDON, July 21.—American boys coming here in khaki will have to be patient with their English friends. Londoners are doing their best to grasp American slang, but it's a hard, hard job. Witness this exposition from the man-about-town column of today's afternoon paper:

"Can the kaiser," the editor wrote, "is a newly popular expression among our American allies. The word 'can' means hermetically sealing the kaiser to prevent his further mischief."

The term "Spanish athlete" is traced by the same authority back to the time, last summer, when American soldiers roamed to Mexican bull fights.

"Panhandling," he added, "means an habitual borrower of sums."

What the editor will make of "moocher" hasn't even been predicted by Americans here.

DESPOTISM MUST BE OVERTHROWN, CHURCHILL SAYS

DUNDEE, Scotland, July 21.—"The commonwealth of peoples should continue to carry forward the crusade in which they are engaged to the point where no autocratic, despotic government remains," said Winston Churchill, recently appointed minister of munitions, in speaking to his constituents here today.

"Henceforth," he continued, "it must not be true that in any part of the world a government owns the people, but, on the contrary, everywhere the people must control their fortune and their fate.

"If this war does not end in victory, it will leave Germany stronger and impenitent under autocratic rulership. Unless we gain the victory, we have nothing before us but ruin and strife.

"We have only to hold on until the United States throws its whole strength into the struggle to make the victory complete."

U-BOAT VICTORY DREAM BROKEN, GERMANS TOLD

Blame Demagogues for Submarine Warfare.

COPENHAGEN, July 21.—Berlin newspapers containing the speech of Imperial Chancellor Michaelis and the debate in the reichstag have not reached Denmark for some reason, but arriving Hamburg papers give more extensive reports of the speeches in the reichstag than were transmitted by the Wolff Agency.

Philipp Scheideman, leader of the majority Socialists, particularly attacked the submarine warfare strongly. Its adoption, he declared, was a triumph of unscrupulous demagogy, with Count von Reventlow and the Deutsches Tages Zeitung playing leading roles. The censorship had prevented effective opposition to the warfare by the press.

Scheideman recalled the prophecy made several weeks ago by Herr von Heydebrand, the Conservative leader, that the war would be won in two months through the submarine, and evoked merriment in the house by adding:

"Heydebrand, your submarine watch has run down."

U-Boat Illusion Broken.

As a weapon to end the war this summer, the illusion of the submarine, the speaker added, had broken down, as was inevitable.

Frederich von Payer said that the new chancellor took the same position on the peace question as his predecessor, and that the next two weeks would show what measure of determination Michaelis was ready to apply to give effect to the program laid down in the reichstag resolution. The radical party, he declared, would examine the chancellor's conduct carefully, and would support him if possible, but should their ways differ the party would embark upon an open, honorable, and determined opposition.

Urges Socialist Republic.

Herr Haase, the Radical Socialist, made one of the longest speeches of the day. He attacked the government's home and foreign policy and demanded immediate peace negotiations, atonement for wrongs committed, and the establishment of a Socialist republic. Herr Haase demanded the release of Dr. Liebknecht, and cries from the floor that the prison authorities were starving Liebknecht caused a tumult in the house.

On the roll call the Conservatives and National Liberals voted solidly against the resolution of the majority. Five members of the Center party also voted in the negative.

The British seizure of German ships off the coast of Holland was denounced as a "brutal assault on defenseless merchantmen" and a "profligate act" by Dr. Kriege, director of the judicial department of the German foreign office, in replying to a question in the reichstag. Dr. Kriege added that Germany had urged Holland to demand an apology for this unheard of violation in Dutch waters and a precise assurance that it would not recur.

The reichstag adjourned yesterday until Sept. 26, says a dispatch from Berlin.

ENGINEERS OFF FOR THE FRONT

"To the front!"

At 5 o'clock yesterday the order was received by Chicago's regiment of engineers, the Thirteenth, encamped on the Municipal pier. With smiling faces the engineers shouldered rifles, kissed sweethearts, mothers, and sisters good-by, and marched through the loop to the railroad yards, where trains were waiting to carry them east.

The regimental band led the march. Seven hundred and sixty-four engineers were in line. They were commanded by Lieut. Col. N. L. Howard.

"We are glad to go," said Lieut. Col. Howard before leaving. "The men are like schoolboys, they are so anxious to get to the front."

Miss Josephine Valenta Invites All Who Are Deaf to Learn How to Hear with the Eyes by Studying Lip Reading.

"LOSING one's hearing is unfortunate, of course," writes Josephine Valenta of 2301 West Madison-st., "but not the worst thing in the world that can happen to a person, and since I have been studying lip reading I have no patience or sympathy at all with a deaf or near deaf person who will not count among his or her blessings the fact that they can obtain, free of any expense, an education in lip reading which will make their lives a comfort not only to themselves, but to those with whom they associate.

"The tendency of the hard of hearing or deaf persons is to isolate themselves, avoid social or business contact with the outside world, in this way becoming melancholy; this is a sad mistake.

"Come out of your shells. Join our lip reading class at the Wells school, North Ashland avenue and Walton street, between Chicago avenue and Division street, every Monday and Thursday night; all it costs is your carfare to get there, as instruction is furnished free by the board of education. See what we can do and how happy we are in spite of our affliction. It will transform your life.

"Don't miss this opportunity every Monday and Thursday night to learn to hear with your eyes and mind."

BERLIN ASSERTS U-BOATS CLAIM 4,750,000 TONS

LONDON, July 21.—Since Feb. 1 Germany claims to have sunk close to 4,750,000 tons of neutral and allied shipping, according to German official figures received in German newspapers today. The figures given were:

	Tons.
February	781,500
March	885,000
April	1,091,000
May	869,000

June, "over a million, with a number of commanders' reports as yet not received."

June, the German newspapers declared, "gives indications of being a record breaker."

When Germany inaugurated the submarine warfare her officials predicted sinkings totaling 1,000,000 tons a month. Recent estimates here have placed the actual figures at about 600,000 tons.

The German figures were contained in official reports amplifying on cabled dispatches of Chancellor Michaelis' speech to the reichstag, and showed a monthly average of about 925,300 tons.

The Teutonic editors asserted that every month's total exceeded the entire tonnage of the German merchant marine seized by the United States.

DRAFT DISTRICT BOARDS NAMED IN 32 STATES

Washington, D. C., July 21.—President Wilson today announced the members of the district or appeal exemption draft tribunals for thirty-two states.

Each board consists of five members, following the suggestion of the president. One is a representative of the laboring men, one the employer of labor, one a man familiar with industrial conditions in the district, a physician, and a lawyer.

The task of these boards is the most vital of the draft. Appeals from the lower or local boards are submitted to the district tribunals. They have original jurisdiction in occupational exemption claims.

The power of removal is lodged with President Wilson. The nominations for places on the tribunals came in most cases from state governors and congressmen. Boards of the remaining states will be announced in a few days. No Illinois appointments were announced.

WILSON TO END ROW; GOETHALS OFFERS TO QUIT

General Declares That Ship Squabble Is Hopeless.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—President Wilson has made up his mind to intervene in the shipbuilding row and will take steps to settle the situation soon after he returns from a week end trip on the Mayflower.

The president's decision to put an end to differences that have halted the government's building program was made after he received yesterday a letter from Maj. Gen. George W. Goethals, declaring the situation appeared hopeless and the general would resign if the president thought that would solve the problem.

There was no information concerning the president's reply, but officials familiar with events of the last week were of the opinion tonight that the president may have asked Gen. Goethals to give him time to go into the situation.

Difficulties betwen Chairman Denman of the shipping board and Gen. Goethals, manager of the board's emergency fleet corporation, starting over the board's wooden ship plans, came to a head last week, when the president authorized the fleet corporation to build ships and directed the board to operate them.

Gen. Goethals taking the order to mean as the general manager of the corporation he would be given a free hand, announced a building program which he said he would start on last Monday.

The start was delayed at the request, Gen. Goethals said, of Chairman Denman, who asked a short time to give the shipping board opportunity to go over the plans.

WAR CHIEFS ARE FLAYED IN PLEA TO ALL AMERICA

Societies Demand Speeding Up if Germany Is to Be Defeated.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—The newspapers of America "know more than they dare to print, but are throttled by the invisible censorship controlled in Washington," declares an appeal to patriotic Americans, headed "America Is Not Winning the War," sent broadcast over the country today by the executives of the National Committee of Patriotic and Defense societies, of which Lieut. Gen. S. B. Young is honorary chairman, and William Mather Lewis of Lake Forest, Ill., is executive secretary; the Patriotic Education society, and the conferring committee on national preparedness.

War Chiefs Are Flayed.

"Talk and indecision reign supreme in Washington," the appeal says. "Our chiefs are not strengthening the weakest links of our chain of offense and defense. Bickering and delays are tolerated.

"Americans, awake! Demand facts—not the optimistic imaginings with which officials fill our press. What boots it to have an army if it cannot be shipped to meet the foe? What good to send an army of conquering size to hostile fields if we have no ships to maintain it and supply the necessary millions of tons of munitions?

Why Tolerate Squabbling?

"What benefit to economize on food, or increase food production, if ships to maintain our soldiers and feed our families and allies are not simultaneously available?

"Why should we tolerate personal squabbles in high places if ships are not being built? Why should we accept anybody's program for ship building when it does not include every ship that can be built in minimum time capable of crossing the ocean and enduring at least a year?

"We are failing in our part against the submarine, despite our navy department optimists. Some valuable ideas, proved effective abroad, are scorned by our navy department, but the censorship protects the delinquents. Why should we be content with 110 foot submarine chasers when experts who know the North sea say that 200 foot craft are the limit for sea service? And yet the more destructive the submarine the greater need for submarine destroyers.

"This war will be lost, or victory delayed, at frightful cost.

Shipbuilding Delay Scored.

"1—For lack of business management in high places;

"2—For want of ships to enable American men, supplies, and food to support our allies and hammer our enemies.

"Be not misled. We are not getting the ships. Nobody has yet totaled the vast tonnage needed for carrying out present plans. No program yet presented includes all the ships that could be built. Responsible persons offering to put up bonds and build hundreds of ships in record time were turned down over three months ago and are still turned down.

Money Alone Cannot Win War.

"Is the American public, which pays the bills and furnishes the blood of loved ones to atone for the mistakes of Washington, going to endure these conditions in silence? If eight months from now lack of ships and foresight and arithmetic prove our undoing who will be to blame? Let it not be you.

"Stir up your people in congress to pass uncompleted legislation, and above all have them make our executives build ships—every possible ship immediately. Nothing less will win the war.

"Speak out today. Submarines already in six months this year have destroyed more tonnage than the world has even planned to build in twelve months. Must foresight and constructive intelligence be limited to the Germans?"

Jackie to Speak in Church.

Charles Stafford Brown, one of the men in training at Great Lakes, will speak at 7:30 o'clock this evening at the Western Avenue Methodist church, Western avenue and Monroe street. His subject will be: "Why I Am in the War." Brown was a junior in Fargo college when he enlisted.

Must Furnish Enough Coal, Cut Price, Council Edict

Coal must be supplied to the consumer in sufficient quantities and at reduced prices. This was the conclusion reached by the state council of defense at a special meeting with the coal operators yesterday.

With this end in view the council appointed a committee consisting of members of the council, coal operators, and coal dealers, to investigate the prices and supply of coal in Illinois and make such suggestions and recommendations for legislation as will be necessary to bring about the desired result. The members of the committee are:

Samuel Insull, chairman; John Hopkins, secretary; John H. Harrison, of the council; Levy Mayer, of the council; V. A. Olander, of the council; David E. Shanahan, of the council; Charles H. Wacker, of the council; John H. Walker, of the council; Frank Farrington, president of the United Mine Workers of America, District No. 12; Harry Fishwick, vice president of the same; Walter Nesbit, secretary of the same; G. B. Harrington, president of the Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal company; W. J. Spencer, manager of the Monmouth Coal Mining company; H. C. Adams, president of the Jones & Adams Coal company; T. T. Brewster, general manager Mount Olive and Staunton Coal company, St. Louis, Mo.; J. E. Ruttedge of Chicago; H. H. Taylor, president of the Taylor Coal company, and F. C. Honnold, secretary and treasurer of the Chicago Big Muddy Coal and Coke company.

Begin Work Tomorrow.

The committee members will begin work tomorrow at the state council of defense building. The committee will have access to all the books and data of every coal operator and dealer in the state, the state council having the power by the act which created it to demand such articles for their information.

The meeting yesterday was attended by about fifty of the leading coal operators in the state. They represented all the coal districts. F. C. Honnold of the Big Muddy Coal and Coke company opened the meeting with a prepared talk, the purport of which was to show that the coal operators have not been receiving the maximum price of $2.75 per ton for coal at the mine, which was fixed at Washington pending the investigation of the federal trade commission.

Says Cost Has Advanced.

He gave figures showing the cost of production at the mines for a term of years, saying the operators have been faced with an advancing cost so that now they are receiving a price far below the set maximum. Long term contracts with large corporations have also tended to keep the profit of the operator at a low average, he said. Fully 50 per cent of the total output of the mines is consumed by these contractors, and this coal is sold at cost or even below in several cases, according to Mr. Honnold.

"The coal year is April 1 to March 31. In that period last year the total output was 63,000,000 tons. The demand this year will be 90,000,000 tons," Mr. Honnold said. "Up to the present time—that is, for the months of April, May, and June—it was at the rate of 80,000,000 tons—that is, only 30 per cent of the excess production. There is now only ten weeks in which to produce the remainder of the excess."

Peabody Tells of Legislation.

Francis S. Peabody, chairman of the federal coal production commission of the national council of defense, said coal is selling higher than it should, and that the problem was to make more liquid the problems of distribution and production of coal, without crucifying the coal operator.

"The poor people are likely to suffer greatly from the want of coal next winter," Mr. Peabody said. "But my companies will make arrangements to supply coal in any amounts to those people who are really in need of it."

He then discussed the legislation on the coal proposition in Washington. Previous to federal action the price had been as high as $5 a ton in Illinois and as high as $7 and $8 in the east. Fixing a maximum and allowing competition to work will tend to steady the price and make it reasonable, seemed to be Mr. Peabody's idea.

How Prices Have Jumped.

J. H. Walker of the council presented figures compiled from the records of state institutions which showed how the price of coal jumped in the last year.

"Figures from four institutions in Jacksonville," Mr. Walker said, "for mine run coal are: This year, $3.80 a ton; last year, $2.12.

"For Chicago the Institution for the Blind—This year, $3.25; last year, $2.75.

"Chester Home for the Criminal Insane—This year, $1.80; last year, $1.61.

"Peoria home—This year, $2.87; last year, $1.57.

"Watertown—This year, $3.45; last year, $1.95.

"They were offered screen coal at $3.50 a ton. This was before the federal action—after the action the state was assured they would be modified."

Not for Charity People.

David E. Shanahan of the council said it was not the poor people in need of charity that was the chief concern of the council and the committee, but that it was the people who were to pay for the coal they used—those not the recipients of charity—who needed consideration.

"These people demand action that will assure them a fair price next winter," Mr. Shanahan said. "They will buy their winter's supply of coal along around the first of October and must have a price at that time that is entirely fair."

Mr. Shanahan said that in his twenty-five years experience in the state legislature he had noted that if the coal operators wanted any legislation passed they could choose three or four men who could act as spokesmen and conclude their business to the satisfaction of the remainder of the coal operators.

"Therefore," he said, "the coal operators should be able to pick three or four or even seven men who could act finally for all the coal operators in the state."

WIRE BATTLERS LEAVE CHICAGO FOR ACTIVE DUTY

The Sixth Telegraph battalion, which left Chicago last night for active service, is made up almost entirely of employés of the Chicago Telephone company and the Wisconsin Telephone company. Fifteen per cent of the men are telegraphers.

Maj. John R. Turner, U. S. Reserve Signal corps, is in command. He formerly was division plant engineer of the Chicago Telephone company. Capt. Leroy B. Boylan, Lieuts. Paul Kenney, James A. Brock, C. D. Hoover, Newhall Helmer, Daniel E. Moore, and Harry E. Wightman, all formerly were officials of the telephone company.

The telephone companies will make up the difference in the pay of the officers and enlisted men in the army and what they received in civil life.

Estimate of $137,366,177 for Navy Given to House

Washington, D. C., July 21.—Secretary Daniels today submitted to the house estimates aggregating $137,366,177 for war needs of the navy, including ammunition, ordnance supplies, improvements of yards and docks, clothing and enlargement of the navy yard and gun factory here.

SENATE PASSES MEASURE GIVING FOOD CONTROL

Minimum of $2 Is Set for Best Wheat; May Take Coal.

following agencies and those only which have products in interstate or foreign commerce: Wheat elevators, cold storage, and packing house, farm implement factories, coal producers and dealers, and wholesalers of designated necessaries.

The house bill's provisions for federal requisitioning of necessaries is limited by the senate redraft to foods, feeds, and fuels, and other supplies for military purposes only.

Limit Government Purchase.

Government purchase and sale of foodstuffs, to maintain reasonable prices, also is limited by the senate bill to fuel, wheat, flour, meal, beans, and potatoes.

The house provision for authority to requisition factories generally was curtailed by the senate to factories, packing houses, mines, and other plants needed for military or other public use connected with the common defense.

A senate amendment regarding government war supplies purchased through the defense council's advisory commissions would prevent members from soliciting federal contracts in which they are pecuniarily interested.

Among important provisions of the house bill stricken out was that establishing a general government control of all "necessaries."

Neither house nor senate draft contains the original administration proposals for government control of clothing and maximum price fixing.

Thinks Price Too High.

The maximum wheat price proposal was the cause of a long debate. Senator Chamberlain said that $2 was a rather high minimum. The leaders had proposed $1.50, he said, but agreed upon $2 with a limitation that it should apply only to one principal market as a standard for lower prices at subsidiary markets.

"By adopting this amendment you have changed the whole effect of the amendment," he said, "and I think under the changed circumstances we ought to leave it to the board to fix the price."

Blames "Special Interests."

The charge that the bill is the work of special interests that have usurped the power of the senate agriculture committee was made by Senator La Follette. He asserted that these interests included the manufacturers of New England, the aluminum, copper, and the steel interests, and had revamped the bill to remove from it the burden it placed upon their shoulders and transfer it to the farmers to be regulated by a board. Herbert Hoover, he said, had testified before the senate agriculture committee that he favored forcing the price of wheat to 75 cents a bushel.

"The bill will prove a great disappointment to the people," said Senator Sherman just before the vote. "The whole proposition makes the Mississippi bubble look like a three and a half per cent Liberty bond."

The senator said he believed that he knew more about the bill than did his constituents, many of whom have adopted resolutions urging its passage. He said he had received no requests for its passage from the grain producers.

"I shall vote against it," he shouted. "I appeal from my constituents drunk to my constituents sober." He charged that the labor unions of the country were behind the measure and that Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, had pressed the key which started all of the resolutions favoring the bill addressed by labor organizations to congressmen.

MEANS CHEAPER FLOUR.

The senate's amendment to the food control bill, fixing a $2 minimum on the best grade of wheat means lower flour prices, according to J. P. Griffin, president of the Chicago board of trade.

Board of trade operators have believed that the wheat minimum should have been placed higher, as July futures today closed at $2.55 per bushel and September at $2.27¾. Cash wheat sold at $2.40 a bushel for No. 3 northern, which is two grades below No. 1 northern, fixed as a basis for the $2.00 rate by the senate's action.

Speculation in wheat and corn has practically ceased.

Answers Farmers' Plea.

The farmers of the great wheat growing states have been clamoring for a minimum wheat price for months. Urged by the government to raise more wheat, they have hesitated. Their argument was that at the present price of labor and seed, growing a big acreage might be disastrous as a sudden ending of the war would result in prices toppling. The action of the senate in extending the minimum period to July 1, 1919, will result in record wheat crops next year and a remarkably heavy planting of winter wheat in the fall of 1918, Chicago grain men said today.

Griffin refused to discuss the senate's action at length until he had read the full text of the amendment. He said that while there is a wide difference of opinion on the minimum price that should have been fixed, the farmer and the consumer—especially the latter—should welcome $2 wheat.

Cut Bread Price, Too.

The consumer may now look for a drop in flour to $10 or $11, which means that the bread on his table will be cheaper.

"The cost of producing a bushel of wheat is not the same for any two farmers," Griffin continued. "But since the government has stimulated the production by urging larger acreage, it is only reasonable that the farmer should receive a fair return for his patriotic service.

"Trading in wheat has been at a standstill for a number of weeks, and new wheat has only begun to move."

SAVE NECESSITIES

Provisions of Bill Passed by Senate and Where It Differs from House Measure.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21.—(Special.)—Following are the principal provisions of the food control bill passed by the senate today and the features in which the senate measure differs from that passed by the house:

WHEAT—The senate bill sets a minimum of $2 a bushel on best grades, payable at all primary markets, until July 1, 1919, and proportionate rates on other grades. The house bill merely provided for fixing a minimum price without specifying that price.

COAL—The senate bill grants to the government power to control the supply and price of coal through the federal trade commission or if necessary to take over the mines, operate them, and fix the price of labor.

LIQUOR—The senate bill forbids the use of foodstuffs in the distilling of alcoholic liquors and provides for the purchase by the government of all bonded liquors. The senate omitted the prohibition against wines and beers which was contained in the house measure.

ADMINISTRATION—The senate bill provides for control by a commission of three instead of the one man control—under Herbert C. Hoover—sought in the house bill.

GASOLINE—The senate bill includes gasoline and kerosene in the fuels to be controlled. Neither was mentioned in the house bill.

LICENSES—The senate bill made more specific the businesses which must obtain government licenses, including farmers' and gardeners' coöperative associations, which the house bill exempted.

HOARDING — The senate added clauses for the punishment of those hoarding supplies and granting the president power to close grain exchanges if necessary to prevent trading in futures.

REQUISITIONS—The senate authorizes the president to requisition supplies needed for the army and navy and in addition permits the government purchase of these commodities: Fuel, wheat, flour, meal, provisions, and potatoes.

Additions to the bill which the house did not touch upon are the restrictions against business men associated with government boards participating in awarding of contracts to their own firms, the creation of a congressional committee on conduct of the war and the appropriation of $10,000,000 for purchase of Chilean nitrates for the American farmer.

FORT SHERIDAN TO HAVE SECOND OFFICERS' CAMP

War Department Decides Not to Send Northern Men South.

Abandonment of Fort Sheridan for the second officers' training camp in favor of Leon Springs, Tex., has been canceled. Official announcement was made in Washington yesterday that the Illinois candidates for commissions will be put through their sprouts on home ground.

The Michigan and Wisconsin candidates, who were to have gone to Fort Logan H. Roots, Ark., will also train at Fort Sheridan. Fred W. Upham, chairman of the committee named by the Illinois state council of defense to file protest with President Wilson and his advisers against abandoning Fort Sheridan as an officers' training camp, was told the good news last night by THE TRIBUNE.

Upham Is Delighted.

Mr. Upham said:

"That's great, the brightest ray of sunshine in weeks. We pointed out to the administration that Leon Springs is not a proper place from a climatic standpoint, because it is enervating to northern men. We showed them that Fort Sheridan is no longer an army post, but a great training camp, a going concern that has tried all experiments; accepted the best and rejected everything else.

"More than $200,000 has been spent there and it has cantonments for 3,500 men. It would be very wasteful and wrong to abandon it. I am glad, very glad, that we have succeeded."

Others on Committee.

On the committee with Mr. Upham were Victor J. Olander, J. Ogden Armour, David E. Shanahan, and John P. Hopkins.

The victory for the Chicagoans was on recommendation of Majors Bjornstad and Crane, who recently completed an inspection of all proposed training camp sites.

There will be 1,748 student officers in the second Fort Sheridan camp. Of these 871 will be from Illinois, 482 from Michigan, and 395 from Wisconsin. These candidates will be weeded out of a list of 5,762 candidates, 4,407 of whom are from Illinois.

The student officers from Iowa and Minnesota and other states of the thirteenth division, who were scheduled to go to Fort Riley, Kas., to train, will go to Fort Snelling, Minn., where the present camp for this division is being held.

A Change of Heart.

The change in locations of officers' training camps was partly in response to criticisms of the war department's action in sending all the national guard of the north to southern training camps, and to the more recent charges that the south was favored at the expense of the north in fixing draft quotas.

As a result of the change now announced no student officers of the north will be sent to southern training camps. The Indiana divisional camp remains at Fort Benjamin Harrison.

There are 75,000 applications for the second camp, officials estimate from incomplete reports received, and out of this number only 16,000 student officers will be selected. Preference will be given to older men, other things being equal.

KILTIES TO AID BRITISH DRIVE FOR RECRUITS

With the arrival of the kilties' organization tomorrow morning there will begin the drive of the Chicago British committee for recruits for the allied armies. The British and American committees will join forces in the week's drive in which hundreds if not thousands of British subjects in Chicago are expected to rally to the colors.

The kilties will be welcomed by a detachment of sailors from the Great Lakes station. They are bringing two bands, one brass and another bagpipes. They will play in all the chief parks of the city and take part in recruiting activities planned for the week. The mass meeting of the Chicago Church federation on Friday will be one of the chief events.

On Thursday there will be the huge parade of the allied drive and in this will be seen all military and women's units together with several military bands. The parade will form at Eighth street and march north in Michigan avenue. One of the features will be Miss Ruth Law flying at the head of the women's section of the parade. The Great Lakes band will be among those to furnish martial music.

Doctors Volunteering for War Overfill the Demand

Lieut. Col. Jacob Frank, surgeon general of Illinois, has announced that the great response to the appeal for volunteer medical men had oversupplied the demand, but that an arrangement has been made through the various medical organizations whereby those who will not be able to go to the front will be able to do their share by attending, free of charge, the families of soldiers. Arrangements also will be made whereby prescriptions will be filled free or at cost.

Spy Suspect Is Found in New Jersey Infantry

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—In the ranks of the First New Jersey infantry at Newark has been found a German spy suspect. This was disclosed today when Karl Basel, 26, an expert photographer and formerly a noncommissioned officer in the kaiser's army, was taken from Essex county to Ellis island for internment.

German Empress' Necklace of 375 Diamonds Sold?

New York, July 21.—The necklace of 375 diamonds presented to the German empress by the late J. P. Morgan is reported today to have been sold. The purchasers are understood to be agents for American jewelers, who may bring the diamonds to this country and sell them separately.

BARRY TELLS HIS YOUNG IDEAS HOW TO SHOOT

MAN METER USED IN SELECTION OF ARMY OFFICERS

Psychology Expert at Sheridan with His Invention.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Fort Sheridan, Ill., July 21.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam is using a "man meter" in the selection of the officers for the new national army.

Dr. Walter Dill Scott, former head of the department of psychology of Northwestern university, now a government expert, visited here today. The "man meter" is said to be his invention—the result of the application of his knowledge of psychology to the task of judging men. At the request of a number of industrial leaders he used the same plan in connection with big business organizations, but for some time he has been in government service.

His plan was presented to the instructors of the reserve officers' training camp but it will be used only in part, as it came some time after the selective machinery had been grinding. He previously had presented it at Plattsburg, Fort Myer, and Fort Benjamin Harrison, where it is said to have been adopted. And it is expected it will be used throughout the second camps.

The theory of the "man meter" is the establishment of standards by which a man may be judged. Dr. Scott found a means of doing this. As it is applied to the army's present task, the basis is established by the instructor's comparison of the candidate he is judging with ten army captains under whom he has served.

There are five points to be scored—physical qualities, intelligence, military leadership, character, and general value to the service. Each of the first four is allowed a maximum of fifteen points and the last a maximum of forty points, making 100 the highest possible, or ideal score.

The things to be considered in connection with each point are outlined. For example, under "intelligence" the instructor considers "ease of learning, capacity to apply knowledge, and ability to grasp readily and solve new problems."

This is the first bit of information concerning the machinery used in the final selection of men for commissions that has been "approved for publication" and this is merely an aid to instructors.

The twenty-two players and spectators arrested in the raid on a crap game nine days ago have been given their liberty. Until today they were confined to the limits of the reservation.

Before leaving camp Maj. Herman J. Koehler of West Point said the Fort Sheridan students have more "smash" than the men of other camps he has visited.

Police Seek Miss Butterfield.

Through Henry L. Bailey, superintendent of the Oak Forest infirmary, the police have been asked to search for Beatrice Butterfield, 44 years old, who disappeared from her home, 1376 West Randolph street, June 27. The missing woman has auburn hair, is 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weighs about 180 pounds; she has gray blue eyes and a scar on her left cheek.

U. S. OFFICIALS AT FRANCE CAMP

AMERICAN TRAINING CAMP IN FRANCE, July 21.—Two high officials of the United States war department arrived at the camp this morning. They were taken immediately on an extended inspection of the camp by Maj. Gen. Sibert.

The American troops here will extend the scope of their training on Monday by beginning to practice bomb and hand grenade throwing.

The majority of the officers, including even some from the general staff, already have experimented successfully along this line, and with the aid of expert French assistants will be able to instruct the men.

U. of C. Ordnance Class Is Ordered to Rock Island

Fifty-five members of the ordnance class that has been held at the University of Chicago are instructed to report at the arsenal at Rock Island, Ill. They will have five weeks of training under government supervision before they are drafted into active service. One of the members of the Ordnance Training school is Lyndon Lesch, whose registration number was one of the first to be called yesterday.

French Wheat Crop Improves.

PARIS, July 21.—The crop report published in the Journal Officiel today says there has been great improvement in the wheat crop since the last report made on June 1.

2D ARTILLERY TO GO INTO CAMP IN STREETERVILLE

All's fixed for another capture of Streeterville. The Second Illinois field artillery, formerly the First cavalry, will report for duty at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning at the foot of Chicago avenue. Fifteen hundred men are on the rolls, almost 200 more than full war strength.

When the examinations are completed it is expected about 1,325 will be retained, the rest being "sifted out" by physical tests. It is expected that about Aug. 10 the artillery will be moved to Houston, Tex., to complete its intensive training.

A model camp is to be organized at Chicago avenue and the lake. Tentage, cooking outfits, and everything will be assembled between now and Wednesday. About 50 per cent of the men are veterans of last year's Mexican border campaign. The regimental camp has received the approval of Maj. Gen. Barry, commander of the department.

$640,000,000 AVIATION BILL UP TO WILSON

Senate Passes Measure Providing for 22,000 Aeroplanes.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—The house bill appropriating $640,000,000 for the aviation service was passed late today by the senate without amendment or a record vote and with less than an hour's discussion. It now goes to the president.

The senate's only dispute, with many members expressing a desire to pass the bill immediately, was over an amendment of Senator Hardwick of Georgia to strike out a clause authorizing drafting of the men for the aerial service. The amendment was rejected, 66 to 12, after Senators La Follette and Gronna made brief speeches opposing the draft.

Details of plans for expending the huge sum appropriated have been withheld, but it is known that it provides for about 22,000 airplanes and nearly 100,000 men.

Building to Be Rushed.

The president is expected to sign the bill Monday, and the work of building one of the greatest air fleets the world has seen will be pushed with vigor. During the first year officials hope to produce at least 3,500 aeroplanes, with a great increase the next year.

For the first few months virtually the entire attention will be centered on construction of student planes, and there has been talk of bringing British and French aviation student officers to the United States for training.

In rejecting the Hardwick amendment the senators voting to strike out the draft clause were: Borah, Broussard, Curtis, Gore, Gronna, Hardwick, Kirby, La Follette, McKellar, Norris, Owen, and Vardaman.

La Follette Again Opposes.

In a vigorous speech opposing the draft clause Senator La Follette said that any war prosecuted by democracy ought to be without compulsory service.

"Democracy ought never enter a war that it cannot prosecute with volunteers," he said, particularly objecting to compulsion for the extra hazardous air service.

The Wisconsin senator declared that he would fight for the repeal of the draft law as long as he is in the senate and predicted that the draft will be the main issue at the next election and that 90 per cent of the voters will declare against it. He said he intended offering a resolution repealing the draft law.

Senator Gronna said he opposed the draft provision for the same reason as Senator La Follette.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

A Word of Warning

As long as the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company's present supply of materials lasts, Paige buyers will enjoy the advantage of the present Paige price.

It is estimated that this supply of materials will last approximately 60 or 90 days and when the supply is exhausted it will, obviously, again be necessary to readjust the prices of all models of the Paige line.

Then, as now, the Paige prices will be fixed in proportion to the cost of materials. They are never raised arbitrarily. That is a point on price we wish to emphasize.

But when the last word on price is said you will continue to select the Paige because of its mechanical excellence, its beauty, its supreme quality.

THE MAYOR AGAIN DRAFTS LINCOLN AND WASHINGTON

He's Sorry This "Young Republic" Is Sending Boys to Trenches.

Mayor Thompson declared yesterday that he hated to see Americans sent to the trenches in Europe. He suggested as a remedy that the government prepare itself against invasion.

The mayor said the officials in Washington should adhere to the teachings of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, both of whom, he said, he deeply admires.

"Have you anything to say, Mr. Mayor, about the draft, now that the numbers have been announced?" was asked.

"Well, I guess there isn't much to say," he replied. "I hate to see our fellows go into the trenches in Europe."

"Can you suggest a better method for this government to prosecute the war?"

The Way George Did It.

"I might refer you to the teachings of George Washington, who advised that this country keep out of European entanglements. I have great respect for the teachings of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, whose wisdom has greatly helped this country."

"Did Lincoln ever express an opinion on European entanglements?"

"I don't know. Lincoln's great thought in life was to preserve the nation. His idea was that no nation could endure half slave and half free. He was looking into the great beyond and for the preservation of the nation. That was in the mind of Washington, too. That is goo denough for me. I think that this is sound logic for the nation instead of the modern jingoism."

"Do you think this nation is endangered?"

We're a Young Republic.

"This is one of the young republics of the world*. Our existence depends upon our wisdom and foresight. As I understand it, we have started to straighten out what we consider to be wrong in the world. We have taken a lot upon our hands."

"Do you believe it is better to send our troops to Europe to fight Germany while other countries also are attacking her?"

"Germany never has been over here yet. What I think is best is for the United States to prepare herself to protect herself from foreign invasion. That does not mean only Germany but other nations."

Also Learned from Hobson.

"Ex-Congressman Hobson once made a statement that has made a very deep impression on me. He said that two-thirds of the surface of the world is water, not land, and the ruler of the seas was more of a menace to the world than the ruler of the land forces."

"Do you refer to England as the ruler of the seas?"

"I do not refer to any particular nation."

"Do you approve of the plan to draft aliens and send them back to their countries?"

"I have no particular opinion as to how they take them over there and shoot them. I don't like to see Americans led over there to the trenches."

"Of course, you want to see this country win the war?"

Er-Um—Well, No.

The mayor waited fully two minutes before he answered.

"I do not want to see the United States defeated in anything, as far as that is concerned," he said.

"Do you believe it better to fight Germany alone or with the assistance of the allies?"

"I think that we should adhere to the teachings of George Washington. Keep out of European entanglements. As I understand it the president has not entered into treaties with any one concerning the war. We could have the world turn on us and no one to offer us help."

*[The United States was 141 years old on July 4, 1917. Far from being one of the youngest, it is oldest of the republics, with the exception of San Marino, a very small state in Italy, whose republican form of government was established in the tenth century.]

STILL "AGIN"

The Republican Now Says the Army Can't Be Sent Overseas.

THE Republican, Mayor Thompson's official newspaper, in its issue of yesterday gives it as its opinion that the men drawn into the new army by the draft cannot be sent overseas to fight.

"It seems to us," says the journal, "there can be little dispute as to the president's lack of authority to use the militia outside the territorial boundaries of the United States by reason of the express provision of the constitution which limits the calling out of the militia 'to suppress insurrection, repel invasion, or to execute the laws.'

"If all able bodied men between 18 and 45 are members of the militia it would appear that, since all men drafted are now members of the militia, the conscripted men cannot lawfully be required to participate in an overseas war.

"It would seem to be the part of justice and wisdom for President Wilson publicly to proclaim his intention not to send any of our national guard or drafted men abroad unless they should volunteer.

"This program would do away with all questions of right or power, would be popular with the public and the national guard, and the men subject to the draft, who would gladly fight for Uncle Sam in America, but many of whom object to pouring out their blood in foreign lands for an impracticable dream of world-wide democracy or for 'a point of view.'"

U. S. Halts Imports of All German Serums

Washington, D. C., July 21.—Licenses under which German chemical firms have been exporting to the United States through northern European neutral countries serums, vaccines, antitoxins, and other biological products were formally revoked today by the treasury department. The order of revocation cites the inability of treasury inspectors to inspect the plants of the companies because of the war. Seven of the chief chemical firms of Germany are involved.

Field Hospital No. 4 Mustered Into Service

Capt. Edward Hubert of the army medical corps yesterday mustered into the federal service field hospital unit No. 4, commanded by Maj. J. J. McKinley. He will inspect headquarters ambulance company No. 1 today and issue mustering in orders for it should it meet requirements. The unit, which has been organizing the last two weeks, with headquarters at 40 North Clark street, will be recognized as the only Illinois national guard unit. Ambulance companies Nos. 2, 3, and 4 have been ordered organized.

INVITES MAYOR TO EXPLAIN TO MEN ABROAD

Soldiers Ask Facts on Thompson Attitude Toward War.

hoping that you will not consider it presumptuous if I offer you those impressions.

A million United States soldiers in France, fully equipped and ably directed, is a project that has long since been reduced to a schedule which undoubtedly will develop the highest degree of military efficiency, but there is a great need, Mr. Mayor, for training the officers for the direction of the larger units under the high command. For instance, a million men would mean two thousand brigades, which would mean two thousand brigadier generals, who ought to be thoroughly schooled in modern warfare.

Need of Special Training.

There appears to be an ample West Point foundation, but many of the old time West Pointers here are looking forward longingly to observer service in the foreign ranks or the foreign schools to learn some of the new things that have developed within the last three years and which are everyday soldiering over here.

For the reason that my mother voted for you I am taking a chance and will point out to you anything that you personally could do to end the war. A lot of big men are needed in this American phase of the war, big soldiers who will know the practice of handling brigades and divisions under the present conditions; big engineers, the men who could build subways or Panama canals; big doctors, who could do jobs like driving the yellow jack out of New Orleans or taking the smell off the stockyards; big transportation authorities, big artillerists, big manufacturing geniuses and the big men capable of molding and holding national morale. Right off the reel as mayor you could start doing your bit for the national morale.

Boost Morale of French.

The arrival of the United States troops in France has been the biggest kind of a boost for the French morale. The French have been bleeding for three years and they are depending greatly upon us. The extent to which our entry into the war has strengthened them is being realized by the Germans, who have been hurling big offensives against the French lines recently and the French have been hurling them back, with the feeling that we are coming to relieve them. It is a sort of "we are holding the fort for you" feeling.

Mr. Mayor, your opposition to more United States troops coming to France is an anti-national move and an anti-international move. On the word of the man who played football against you once and was one of your strongest admirers, it is a move that "Bill Thompson would not be guilty of if he understood."

If any information in this dispatch helps you to understand the situation better and you care to let the American soldier in France know where you stand, turn your message into THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and ask to cable it to its army edition in Paris. FLOYD GIBBONS.

OUR YOUNG REPUBLIC

Other Authorities Disagree with Mayor Thompson Concerning Ages of Various Free Governments.

Mayor Thompson in an interview yesterday referred to the United States as "one of the young republics." The Statesman's Year Book, another authority on things political, gives these dates of the birth of the various republics, showing the United States to be the oldest in the world, with the exception of the little state of San Marino, whose republican form of government was established in the tenth century:

Wilson at Hampton Roads; First Visit Since the War

Fort Monroe, Va., July 21.—President Wilson visited Hampton Roads today for the first time since the United States entered the war against Germany.

Accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, he arrived on the Mayflower and anchored in the roads after an uneventful voyage from Washington down the Potomac river and Chesapeake bay. The presidential party spent the night aboard the yacht, but plans to come ashore Sunday before starting back to the capital.

RAILWAYS URGED TO MOVE COAL VIA LAKE PORTS

Railroads engaged in the lake carrying coal and ore trade have been urged by Fairfax Harrison, chairman of the railroads' war board, as a matter of national necessity, to induce all operators on their lines having contracts to supply coal to the northwest via the lake ports. In a message to the railroads in the Pittsburgh districts he said:

"Although the railroads have in recent months been handling from 28 to 30 per cent more coal than in the corresponding months of last year, a smaller portion has been shipped to the lakes than last year and in consequence there still is uncertainty as to whether the northwest will be supplied with sufficient coal to meet its requirements next winter.

"On the statistics of performance so far this season it is apparent that unless efforts are renewed and coal is moved at a greater rate for the remainder of the season than in the last months the requirements will not be satisfied. At the same time the situation of ore accumulated at the furnaces in the Pittsburgh district for national requirements is involved."

Catholic Society Starts $1,000,000 War Fund

New Haven, Conn., July 21.—A nationwide campaign to raise a million dollar war fund to be used to furnish recreational and social facilities at the various military camps to all men regardless of creed, and for the safeguarding of their morals in this country and in the trenches, is to be started tomorrow by the Knights of Columbus. It will last a week, ending July 29.

DANIELS SCORES COURT MARTIAL'S LIGHT PENALTY

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Severe condemnation of a court martial sentence has been made by Secretary of the Navy Daniels on account of its mildness. Second Lieut. David H. Owen, U. S. M. C., was tried by court martial for maltreating a native of Santo Domingo while on duty. Officials said the offense resembled slightly the German method of treating the inhabitants of occupied territory.

Lieut. Owen, who served in the expeditionary force in Santo Domingo, was convicted and sentenced to lose twenty numbers in rank. The commanding general of the expedition, in view of the youth and inexperience of Lieut. Owen, reduced the sentence to the loss of five numbers.

Secretary Daniels commented upon the inadequacy of even the original sentence, his sharp disapprobation being worded as follows:

"The department cannot forbear to express surprise that a court composed of officers of mature judgment should regard offenses of such seriousness as meriting the loss of but twenty numbers in grade. The action of the convening authority in reducing this already inadequate sentence is viewed with distinct regret and disapprobation."

11 PREFER JAIL TO WAR SERVICE

Washington, D. C., July 21.—Declaring they will "rot in jail if necessary before killing other men in war," eleven so-called "conscientious objectors" to the draft today appealed to the White House for exemption. They left a long petition for President Wilson.

PATRIOT LEAGUE PLANS TO ROUT TRAITORS TO U. S.

Every man, woman, and child in Chicago is invited to join the National Patriotic league, to be organized in the green room of the Congress hotel tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Among the objects of the organization are:

"To send down to eternal disgrace and ignomy the traitors in our midst who in such times as this permit politics, selfishness, and greed to influence their actions and wrongfully influence the people.

"To demonstrate to the world that there are 100,000,000 patriotic Americans thinking alike."

The announcement is issued from the office of the Woman's Association of Commerce, over the signature of Florence King. It is planned to make the organization national in scope.

Two Army Aviators Hurt in Training at Rantoul

Rantoul, Ill., July 21.—[Special.]—The first accident occurred on Chanute field today when Curtiss aeroplane No. 264, containing Harry Crewdson, a civilian instructor, and C. Baxter, a student, fell 160 feet. Spectators who saw the plane drop though the occupants would surely be killed, but they were able to get out of the machine, and were removed to the Burnham hospital in Champaign. Both are injured internally, but will recover, it is stated.

It is thought a sudden turn resulted in the machine doing a "tail spin." The instructor tried to break the frenzied grip of the student, but was unable to do so in time.

Crewdson and Baxter both came from Ashburn field, Chicago.

SERIES 18
ANTICIPATES THE REQUIREMENTS OF COMING YEARS

ONE by one the builders of high-grade motor cars are substituting oil cups for grease cups in chassis lubrication. The Westcott Six is the first car with chassis perfectly lubricated by oil cups exclusively.

The "self-acting" top is bound to supersede the one-man top on touring cars and roadsters. Westcott is the first to use it as standard equipment on all open models.

Engineers unanimously agree that motor temperature must be uniform under all conditions to secure maximum efficiency at minimum consumption of fuel. Uniform temperature can be maintained only by automatic regulation. The Westcott is equipped with a thermostat, the only device known that automatically and unfailingly accomplishes this result.

Every Westcott Car is road tested before leaving the hands of the Westcott engineers. Every car of the Eighteen Series comes to us only after having demonstrated its masterful performance on hills and in traffic. It will come to you, the proven master over all cars of its class.

HUDFORD

For reasons sufficiently good to the Commercial Car Unit Company, of Philadelphia and Detroit, manufacturers of TRUXTUN & HUDFORD Units, and looking to the present as well as future interests of the products of the company, the wholesale distribution of the HUDFORD Type of TRUXTUN Units in the Middle West territory is now in the hands of a direct factory branch, and the headquarters for the wholesale distribution of the HUDFORD Type as well as other types of TRUXTUN Units, as manufactured by the Commercial Car Unit Company, is located at

The Advantages of Dealing with a FACTORY BRANCH

1 Dealer and Consumer are indirect touch with the manufacturers through their personal representatives.

1 Dealer and Consumer are in direct touchest possible action on information, on deliveries, on service, when trading with the manufacturer's personal representative.

3 There can be no evasion or quibbling between a manufacturer's representative and a consumer or dealer customer. There's no go-between—the manufacturer's word is his bond and the customer is always dealing with the "head of the house."

4 Factory domination of a branch means a big supply of goods on hand—a factory depot, in a word, for finished articles and the thousand and one parts at instant call for renewals or replacements.

5 A Factory Branch means Factory Employees with all that term implies—trained experts in their line, trained at the factory with factory thoroughness and responsible to the factory for their every word and action.

TRUXTUN & HUDFORD
Factory Branch
2429 MICHIGAN AVENUE

The well-known HUDFORD type of unit that converts a Ford into a truck is only one type of TRUXTUN. TRUXTUNS are made in several types to convert pleasure cars other than Fords into commercial vehicles.

With a stock of TRUXTUN & HUDFORD Units always available to avoid trying delays in delivery, with a stock of parts on hand to take care of ordinary wear and tear and unavoidable accidents of the road, with a corps of TRUXTUN & HUDFORD experts both in the selling lines and the mechanical end to see that the right type of Unit is sold for a particular purpose and, once sold, that the TRUXTUN & HUDFORD stays sold to a contented user, the Chicago Factory Service Branch of TRUXTUN & HUDFORD Units is established on a basis of permanency.

And permanency is the motto of the TRUXTUN & HUDFORD interests—in the character and men standing sponsors for the product—in the design and construction of their units with shaft drive internal gear axles, guaranteed for one year, and in an absolute determination to give to TRUXTUN & HUDFORD users that quality and degree of SERVICE that by very reason of its efficiency will make TRUXTUN & HUDFORD users permanent TRUXTUN & HUDFORD boosters. CLOSE UP VIEW TELLS HOW WAR 'STIRS' SENATE

Tillman Grins, La Follette Kicks, and—but Read On.

BY PERCY HAMMOND.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Asked by THE TRIBUNE to report the minutiæ of a war time session of the United States senate, I have had my troubles.

In the course of the day I have been ejected from every gallery in the chamber—from the press gallery because I am not a regular press man; from the members' gallery because I am not a member; from the diplomatic gallery because I am not a diplomat, and from the public gallery because I leaned upon the railing while a senator was in the throes of oratory.

Tells Story with Hurt Feelings.

No haughty theater critic, accustomed to being hated though caressed, may come through a series of such humiliations and retain his characteristic sweetness of temper. Hence the observations which follow may be tinged with a bitterness engendered by hurt feelings.

Mr. Lardner of THE TRIBUNE once said that no American could be a patriot if he had attended a Democratic national convention. That cynicism, of course, is not to be applied to the United States senate, though its operations as viewed intermittently today did not recommend themselves as an irresistible inspiration to enlistment.

How Senate Regards Hoover.

Except for a few moments here and there the session was marked by a vast unconcern. Nothing seemed to arouse the statesmen save the mention of Hoover. Even the pacific Messrs. Gronna and La Follette snarled a hymn of hate when that abhorrent name was heard. Despite the few kind words said about Mr. Hoover today in the senate, there was an ominous atmosphere which indicated that his future with that body is about as safe as a church in Belgium.

Aside from the food and aviation bills, of which you will read elsewhere, much of the senate's forenoon deliberation was on the question of whether Mr. Reed of Missouri had called Mr. Hollis of New Hampshire a liar. Mr. Hollis had said that Mr. Reed had treated Mr. Hoover as he would have treated a chicken thief in a Kansas City police court, and Mr. Reed had insisted that his demeanor toward the conservator was that of a courteous and Christian Missouri gentleman. The matter was amicably arranged when Mr. Reed explained that although he meant that Mr. Hollis was a liar, he had not said it, a distinction which seemed to gratify the docile Mr. Hollis exceedingly.

Only One with Feet on Desk.

That hefty problem disposed of, the spectator was permitted a period of contemplation. He found the senators much better behaved than he had been led to believe. Only one of them, Mr. Thompson of Kansas, put his feet on his desk, and the decorative cuspidor, which is a feature of every member's chair, was utilized when it was necessary. You may not believe that at one stage of the session the only statesmen who were using the toothpicks were Senators Chamberlain, Brandegee, John Sharp Williams, Simmons of North Carolina, Tillman, Overman, and the presiding officer, whose name I did not get.

Mr. Chamberlain employed an ornamental instrument, the gift perhaps of constituents, but the others brandished and wielded the simple wooden excavator of private life. Instead of listening to the debate Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts seemed fascinated in a scrutiny of the impressive legislative clerk, who, elevated upon the vice president's dais, was engaged in meticulous attentions to his finger nails.

Like Chiropodists' Meeting.

As I was trying to think what the senate in session resembled, a whimsical and contemptuous visitor who sat beside me remarked that it reminded him of a convocation of swell chiropodists.

"I've been trying to recall," said he, pointing to one of those present, "where that fellow shaved me last."

Senator Lewis, by the way, is not the most spectacular of the members, though you may have suspected otherwise. That honor belongs to Senator Gore, who, accompanied by a page, traverses the chamber assiduously and with no apparent destination. Senator Shafroth of Colorado seemed to be the most eloquent. Speaking adversely on the food bill his peroration was as follows:

"I believe the government is attempting to try to undertake too big an undertaking."

Gronna Qualifies Offer.

The inaccuracy and injustice of first impressions was emphasized today through Senator Gronna. A man of hostile visage, he impressed one as being not addicted to the kindlier emotions. Yet in one of his several addresses he offered the other senators his farm of 10,000 acres as a gift to do with as they willed, if only they would not legislate [illegible] agriculture. Later, he qualified his generosity by saying that they could have it at their own price.

Mr. Gronna's side kick, Mr. La Follette, was present absent mindedly. He spoke with enthusiasm against the conscription bill, until Mr. Weeks of Massachusetts informed him that it already was a law. Whereupon Mr. La Follette announced his intention to have it repealed.

Until this time, Senator Tillman had been an imposing exposition of inertia. Sitting silent and rigid, he was a monument of indifference to the stupendous deliberation proceeding all around him. Suddenly and at the proper moment, he arose and advised the government to purchase $10,000,000 worth of fertilizer.

Tillman Scores, Then Quits.

With great celerity the admonition was followed so far as the senate was concerned and the benevolent South Carolinian moved out through the cloak room doors, smiling with the knowledge of a generous deed alacritously performed.

I was moving out also, at the suggestion of a gracious doorkeeper, when my sensitive friends called my attention to a senator making penciled notes on the margin of a bill.

"My God!" said he. "One of them can write!"

Boys, Who Wants a Home and Property in Future?

Here is a chance for a boy to obtain a good home and some property. Mary T. Liscombe, 2471 East Seventy-fourth street, writes to ask if any one knows a boy who is willing to live with a family until he is 18.

"I know a family," she says, "who wants such a boy and will give him their property under these conditions."

Miss Liscombe also asks to be put in touch with some children, from 5 to 12 years old, girls preferred, who wish to go into the country for a two weeks' vacation.

Injunction Against Machinists Requested

A petition for an injunction to restrain the International Association of Machinists, district No. 8, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers from interfering in any way with its employés was filed in the Circuit court yesterday by the Morkrum company, 24 West Austin avenue, manufacturers of a printing telegraph system. The company asserts that in response to demand made upon them, they recently gave their employés an eight hour day,

SPEEDING TRUCK HURTS CHILD AND ENTERS A STORE

Dashes Across Curb and Into Delicatessen on Devon Avenue.

An automobile truck running wild almost killed a child in Devon near Glenwood avenue yesterday and crashed into a delicatessen store at 1403 Devon avenue, formerly owned by Joseph Simpson. Simpson went out of business last Thursday.

Little Elsie Lencer, the 2 year old daughter of Mrs. Lawrence Lencer, 1400 Rosemont avenue, Rogers Park, was toddling along behind her mother yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Lencer was wheeling a perambulator in which was Elsie's 10 month old sister, Veronica. With Mrs. Lencer was a neighbor, Mrs. Herbert Olson, 6348 Wayne avenue. Without warning, a five ton automobile truck, owned by George Reabus & Co., commission merchants, 27 West South Water street, dashed upon the sidewalk and crashed into the store front. Elsie and Mrs. Olson were caught in the path of the truck. Mrs. Lencer fainted. Mrs. Olson picked up the child and a passing automobile was stopped and a fast run made to the St. Francis hospital in Evanston.

Driver Runs Away.

Dr. Richard James McDonnell, 6733 Sheridan road, the attending surgeon, pronounced the child's condition critical. It was almost by inches that the two women and baby Veronica escaped injuries if not death. The driver of the truck, without waiting to learn the extent of the damage or the injuries sustained, abandoned his truck and disappeared.

Police of the Forty-fourth precinct station bulletined the city last night to arrest the missing driver.

Witnesses Tell of Accident.

According to witnesses, the driver of the truck was coming east on Devon avenue on the north side, or wrong side of the street. It was said that he was driving at a high rate of speed. In trying to get out of the path of a westbound automobile, it is claimed that he drove around it. His truck, running wild, skidded to the south side of the street, running up on the sidewalk and crashing into the store front of 1403 Devon avenue. The entire front of the store was demolished.

The store was not open at the time of the accident. After completing the sale of stock and fixtures at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon the doors were locked.

AMERICANS IN 15 AERIAL FIGHTS; FOE IS ROUTED

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, July 21.—The Lafayette escadrille in the week ending July 14 made fourteen reconnoissances over the enemy's lines, a total of sixty-seven machines participating. The Americans were in fifteen aerial combats, as follows:

Corp. Harold Willis of Boston, five battles.

Lieut. Maison Rouge, second in command of the escadrille and a French army officer, four combats.

Lieut. Lufberry, New York City, two.

Sergt. Edwin C. Parsons, Springfield, Mass., two.

Lieut. William Thaw, Pittsburgh, one.

Sergt. Willis Haviland, Minneapolis, one.

Several enemy machines were badly damaged in these aerial encounters and one was forced to land.

New York, July 21.—Countess Czaky, formerly Maude Howard of San Francisco, was granted a decree of divorce today from her Hungarian husband. Count Czaky is a cousin of Count Szechenyi, who married Gladys Vanderbilt.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

THE TRIBUNE of last Wednesday, under the heading "Mrs. Mathis Out of Love-Cottage at Lake Zurich," said that Postmaster Spunner of Barrington had dismissed his suit to eject Mrs. Mary Mathis from the residence he bought from Harry P. Weber.

Howard P. Castle, Mr. Spunner's attorney, writes to say that his client has not dismissed the suit: judgment for possession was entered by the court; and this, says Mr. Castle, will be duly enforced by the sheriff unless possession is turned over to Mr. Spunner.

Yesterday's issue told of the joy of policyholders in the North American Union, a fraternal-insurance concern, because of the "success of their efforts to prevent the merger of the order with the Fraternal Aid Union, a Kansas company." The account stated that Judge Foell, on Thursday, had prevented the consummation of the merger-agreement made between officials of the two unions.

Edward R. Johnston, of the law-firm of Newman, Poppenhusen & Stern, says that Judge Foell's decree, while not passing upon the validity of the merger-contract, "leaves the two societies in the same situation that they were in before the receiver was apopinted last April," and that "the decree further directs the turning-over of the assets and property of the North American Union to the Fraternal Aid Union."

DEMANDS $1,000 OF RICH WIDOW; FALLS INTO TRAP

Madison, Wis., July 21.—Ervin L. Shaffer, who is employed in the mailing room of the state assembly, has confessed to an attempt to blackmail Mrs. William Vilas, wealthy widow of Col. Vilas, the police announced today.

Shaffer, whose sanity is questioned, was taken into custody last night at the bridge on University drive, where he went to look for $1,000 which he demanded that Mrs. Vilas' coachman, Mike Burke, put there in a little box.

Shaffer sent a typewritten letter to Mrs. Vilas, threatening her life and Burke's unless $1,000 in bills were placed at the designated spot.

Burke drove to the place, under police orders, and left a box and a letter at the corner of the bridge. A few minutes later Shaffer drove his automobile to a poin tabout 125 feet away. He walked to the bridge and took the box and letter. He was arrested.

Reports from the Capitals Tell Their Views on the Result.

RUSSIAN FRONT

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 21.—The advancing German troops have reached the vicinity of Tarnopol. Our attacking movement has taken its intended course. Behind the hastily retreating Russian forces, of which up to the present only parts have made a stand for rear guard purposes, our troops in impetuous pursuit have crossed the Zlocheff-Tarnopol road on both sides of Jesierna, on a width of thirty-five miles. Wherever the enemy made a stand he was defeated in a swift assault. As in previous years, burning villages and great destruction showed the route of the retiring Russians. Further fighting is expected.

North of Brzezany, Austro-Hungarian troops, after hard fighting, recaptured positions they lost on July 1. North of the Dniester Russian attacks broke down before our lines. South of the river the enemy was driven out of Babin. At Novica German and Austro-Hungarian troops stormed the Russian height positions in spite of a stubborn defense.

From the Stokhod to the Baltic the activity of the artillery increased occasionally. It reached special intensity between Kreve and Smorgon and at Dvinsk.

Army group of Archduke Joseph: In the northern part of the wooded Carpathians lively firing continues.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, July 21.—Southwest of Dvinsk the enemy is conducting an intense artillery fire. In the direction of Zlocheff the enemy, developing his thrust, continued yesterday his offensive in the direction of Tarnopol. Our troops on the whole did not show the necessary stability, and at some points did not fulfill military commands, and consequently they continued to retire.

Toward evening they paused on the line Reniov-Hlatiki-Pokropuvna-Vybudow. On the Byshki-Potutory front the enemy at intervals conducts an intense artillery fire against our trenches.

On the River Lomnicka, in the region of the village of Novica, the enemy attacked several times, but was repulsed. Northeast of the village he succeeded in occupying one fortified height. There have been fusillades and scouting reconnaissances on the rest of the front.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, via London, July 21.—At Novica, south of Kalusz, we captured another height position. At Babin enemy advance forces were driven across the lower Lomnica. Russian local advances due north of the Dniester failed.

The counter attack delivered on both sides of the Lemberg-Tarnopol railway under the guidance of Prince Leopold of Bavaria advanced successfully. Northeast of Brzezany Austro-Hungarian regiments recaptured the first line which we lost on July 1. The German and Austro-Hungarian fighting forces which advanced towards Augusloka, Cazlernt, and Nesterova have passed beyond them. The Russians offered violent resistance at certain places, but it was broken up by sharp attacks.

ROUMANIAN FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, July 21.—In the region of the confluence of the Rimnik and Sereth rivers enemy infantry, after artillery preparation, attacked our positions. The enemy was driven back by a Roumanian counter attack and the situation restored. There were fusillades on the rest of the front.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 21.—Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen—On the lower Sereth the Russians and Roumanians are more active than hitherto. An advance on our part at the mouth of the Rimnioul resulted in the taking prisoner of eighty Roumanians. Several machine guns were captured.

FRENCH FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, July 21.—The activity of both artilleries was spirited on the Cerny-Craonne front. Our batteries caught under their fire and dispersed north of the Californie plateau assemblies of German troops. There were intermittent bombardments in the region of Reims and on the left bank of the Meuse.

DAY STATEMENT.

PARIS, July 21.—North of Braye-en-Laonnois, in the sectors of Cerny and Hurtebise, and at Craonne, violent bombardments were followed by efforts of the enemy to attack. Everywhere the Germans were repulsed by our fire and by the vigilance of our troops.

North of Braye we ejected German detachments which gained a footing in our line. Southeast of Cerny an enemy attack delivered in force resulted in a violent combat. Twice the Germans penetrated our advanced trenches on a front of 250 meters. Both times they were vigorously counter attacked and driven out entirely. Southwest of Cerny a German attack was broken up in spite of the employment of flame throwers.

South of Ailles our bomb throwers promptly checked two successive attacks. Between Hurtebise and the Californie plateau troops were moved in preparation for a strong attack, but our fire, which was opened at once, prevented the enemy infantry from coming out of its positions, and inflicted great losses.

On the remainder of the front the night was comparatively calm, except in the Champagne, where artillery fighting continues, and in Chevaliers wood, on the heights of the Meuse, where we repulsed a surprise attack.

AVIATION.

In the period of July 11-20, five German airplanes were brought down and eleven enemy machines fell in a damaged condition within their own lines.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, July 21.—Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht: The artillery battle in Flanders again raged with only temporary recessions in violence yesterday. In the Artois the artillery activity increased in the morning between La Bassee canal and Lens and in the afternoon on both banks of the Scarpe.

As on previous days, advances by strong reconnoitering detachments against several points of our front were without success for the enemy.

Front of the German crown prince: The artillery activity was strong only in the central sector of the Chemin-des-Dames. No French attacks have developed up to the present. In the evening portions of a Westphalian regiment penetrated an enemy position and overpowered the occupants. Early this morning the party returned from its bold coup-de-main with undiminished numbers and with 100 French prisoners.

At Fort de la Pompelle, southeast of Reims, and on both banks of the Meuse (Verdun) region, reconnoitering operations of a bold character resulted in a large number of prisoners being brought in.

Front of Grand Duke Albrecht: There were no important events.

BELGIAN.

PARIS, July 21.—Belgian communication: During the course of the night the enemy artillery violently bombarded our defensive organizations in the region of Het-sas, and in the morning carried out fires of dispersion along the whole front. In the afternoon the enemy artillery likewise continued its shelling with moderate intensity in the neighborhood of Ramscapelle and Pervyse and west of Dixmude. We counter shelled the enemy batteries.

BRITISH.

LONDON, July 21.—We raided the enemy's trenches last night at Greenland Hill, north of Roeux. The hostile garrison hurriedly withdrew on the approach of our troops.

Successful raids were made by us southwest of La Bassee and south of Armentieres. German positions were entered on a wide front, a number of the enemy were killed, and his dugouts were bombed. Hostile raiding parties were repulsed north of Havrincourt wood and south of Armentieres.

The enemy's artillery has shown great activity during the day in the Lombaertsyde sector.

AVIATION.

Four German airdromes were successfully bombed yesterday by our airplanes. Bombs also were dropped on an important railway junction, causing a large explosion. There was much fighting in the evening. Three hostile machines were brought down; six others were driven down out of control. Four of our airplanes are missing.

ITALIAN FRONT

ITALIAN.

ROME, July 21.—On the Trentino and Carnia fronts there was activity on the part of the artillery and of reconnoitering detachments. In the Posina region one of our storming detachments put to flight enemy pickets, destroyed their trenches and brought back war material, including ammunition. Enemy parties which attempted to reach several of our advanced positions were repulsed.

On the Julian front the artillery fighting was more intense from Vertoibizza to the sea.

AVIATION.

One of our gallant airmen attacked a squadron of five enemy machines above Oppachiasella and brought down two of them, one in flames, in our lines.

MACEDONIAN FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, July 21.—British aviators continued their successful series of bombardments which caused fires in enemy stores and depots at Porna and Dedeli. There were patrol encounters and artillery activity in the region of the Vardar. Near Staravina the enemy, after a lively bombardment, delivered an attack and succeeded in penetrating momentarily some of the Serbian trench elements, but an immediate counter attack drove them out completely.

GERMAN.

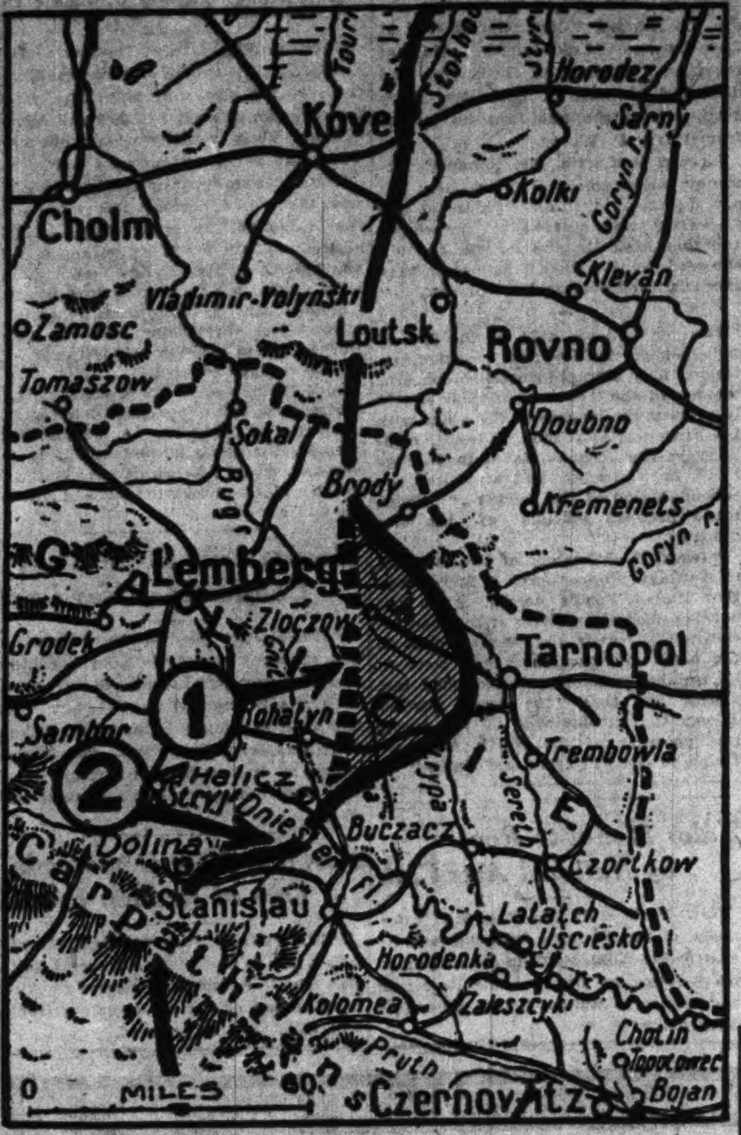
BERLIN, July 21.—Macedonian front: The situation is unchanged.

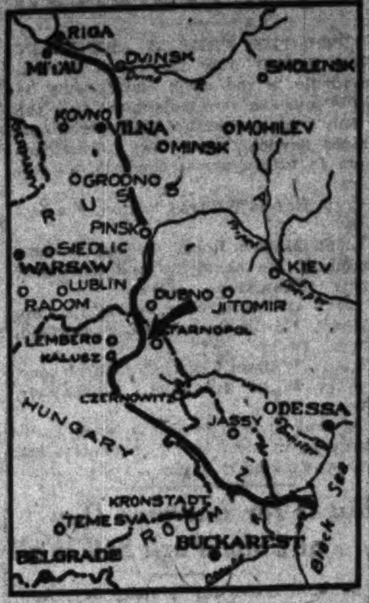
CAUCASUS FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, July 21.—Caucasus front—There was no change in the situation.

COST OF MUTINY





The Russian advance in eastern Galicia has been turned into a defeat and rout by reprisal or failure of certain Russian regiments to fight. The Russian armies which were threatening Lemberg have been broken and now have retreated almost to Tarnopol.

1—Berlin reports that the German-Austrian troops have broken through on a thirty-five mile front on both sides of Jesierna and "are in the vicinity of Tarnopol."

2—South of the Dniester river the Russians, Berlin reports, have been driven out of Babin.

Buy your car as you would buy your home

LOOK at the buying of your car as you would look at the buying of your home. You can find a house at almost any price you would care to pay. But there are certain necessities you must have if that house is to be a home. You wouldn't, for example, try to get along in tiny, cramped up, uncomfortable rooms. Neither would you live in a house with cheap plumbing, inferior woodwork, ill-fitting doors and rattling windows.

Without going into luxuries, there are certain necessities you must have to justify your calling your house a home—a place you will be proud to own.

It is the same with your car. It must have a certain amount of size, roominess and wheel-base to make it really comfortable and free you from the need of constant apologies. It must have materials of a certain quality to insure its lasting the proper time to justify your investment in it. It must have the proper weight to make it hold the road. It must seat all its passengers in comfort.

You wouldn't buy a house that lacked the real necessities because it cost a few dollars less. Even so it is false economy to buy a car that lacks the essentials of motoring satisfaction because it is cheap to buy.

In the Series 18 Studebaker Cars you get all the needed essentials of complete motoring satisfaction at the lowest possible price.

When you realize that Studebaker, one of the largest producers of cars in the world, enjoying all the economies of great production and great resources, makes a smaller percentage of profit per car than the small car manufacturers, it is obvious that Studebaker includes in its cars those features that small cars must curtail; and quality, both of material and workmanship, that you cannot reasonably expect to find in small cars at their prices.

What is a small initial saving compared to a great sacrifice? Be wise—before you decide what car to buy see the Studebaker.

Nearly every automobile manufacturer has made an increase in prices, but Studebaker prices still remain the same as they were last Spring. This further increases the value of Studebaker cars in comparison with all others.

Studebaker

There will be no change in Studebaker models this year, but the increased cost of materials and labor may force Studebaker to make an advance in prices at any time without notice.

ADMIRER OF 60 SOUGHT AS GIRL OF 16 VANISHES

Dozen Towns Aid Search for Lost Elmhurst Schoolgirl.

The police of a dozen country towns of Illinois and Michigan were asked last night to aid in the search for Laura Hansen, the Elmhurst schoolgirl who mysteriously disappeared on Friday morning.

On a possible clew of kidnaping, a lookout is being kept for H. W. Petrie, a musician of Downers Grove, who disappeared at the same hour. Miss Hansen was a former pupil of the musician. According to her parents his attentions were so annoying that the family was forced to move from Downers Grove to Elmhurst two months ago. Since then, it is said, Petrie has attempted to pursue his attentions. He is 60 years old and married.

Disappeared Friday.

Miss Hansen left her home at 10 o'clock Friday morning to visit a girl friend, Miss Margaret McCarthy. Because of Petrie's attentions she was never permitted to venture out on the street without her father or mother. Miss McCarthy agreed to call for her, however, and permission for the visit was granted, on condition that Miss McCarthy would escort her home.

A few moments after she had arrived at the McCarthy home, one-half mile away, Miss Hansen complained that she was feeling ill, and said she would return home and come back later.

Her friend watched her turn the corner. It was the last time she has been seen by any one. An hour later, when Laura failed to return, Miss McCarthy went to her home.

Threat of Kidnaping.

She remembered that Laura told her that Petrie had threatened to kidnap her, and the police were called. They discovered that the musician had left his home, telling his wife that he would not return for several days. At the garage where he kept his automobiles he selected his newest car, purchased new tires and an extra supply of gasoline, and left with the observation that "it was going to be a tough trip."

It is the theory of Mrs. Petrie that he went first to Elmhurst, met the Hansen girl, and carried here either to Starved Rock or some Michigan resort. His infatuation for her, she said, amounted to insanity, and was the cause of a coolness between them for more than a year.

Wife to Aid Prosecution.

"This ends it," she said. "When he comes back I shall aid in the prosecution.

"For more than a year I have pleaded with him to end his affair. It has been of no use."

At the request of Mr. Hansen, Marshal Martin White of Downers Grove sent wires to the police of Michigan and Illinois towns, asking them to arrest and hold Petrie if he was found in the company of Miss Hansen. He was described as tall and spare, with blue eyes and gray hair and mustache.

Miss Hansen is 16, has brown hair and eyes, and is unusually attractive. When last seen she were a dark green skirt and white middy waist. Petrie's automobile is olive green with yellow wheels.

Father Threatens Death.

"Petrie has been annoying my daughter for two years," said Mr. Hansen. "I am morally certain he has kidnaped her. If I find him with her I won't wait for the law. I'll kill him."

Mrs. Hansen is prostrated over her daughter's disappearance.

"She was perfectly happy before she met him," she said. "For a while he would invite her to go automobile riding, and because she was 14 and innocent, she accepted. Then he began to make love to her, and she became frightened. We cut short her music lessons at once, and denied him the house.

"Since then he has chased her until we were at the point of desperation and moved from town."

All Elmhurst is aroused at the disappearance. There is talk of posses and lynchings. Every one is ready to tell how well the girl was liked and of her parents' solicitude to keep her from Petrie.

Bathing Garb of Girl Leads to Three Arrests

Regardless of what the remainder of the population says, Harry Levit of 5134 Indiana avenue and Leo Wolf of 5009 Prairie avenue will be in favor of uncensored bathing suits.

The one they favored yesterday was golden in color and worn by a dashing blonde, whose symmetry and attractiveness led Director Wall of the Fifty-first street beach to urge her by all means to get under water. She complied, but later was found strolling the sand. Policeman Murphy ordered her to vanish —homewards. Levit and Wolf interposed in her behalf and all three were locked up.

It is the intention to prepare the conscripts for places as noncommissioned officers.

FORD DROPS SUIT BEFORE LANDIS; STARTS ANOTHER

Libel Case Against "The Tribune" Shifted to Michigan Court.

The million dollar libel suit brought in the United States court by Henry Ford last year against THE TRIBUNE has been dropped and a new suit asking the same amount of damages has been instituted in the Wayne county Circuit court (Detroit).

The action to dismiss the suit in Judge Landis' court was taken, it appears, several days ago by Mr. Ford's Detroit attorney, Alfred Lucking. It is understood this action has been in contemplation for some time, although the case was well on toward a hearing before Judge Landis.

The new suit, started in the Michigan state courts, is a proceeding not only against THE TRIBUNE but also against the Solomon News company, distributors of newspapers and magazines, with offices in Detroit. Service was secured on a traveling agent of the Solomons, in no way connected with THE TRIBUNE.

The change in the Ford plans came upon the eve of the taking of depositions in Detroit in the United States court case.

U. S. AND BRITISH ODESSA CONSULS ARE PRISONERS?

AMSTERDAM, Holland, July 21.—The Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin hears that the American consul at Odessa, John A. Ray, has been imprisoned there, with his British colleague, by soldiers for having spoken unfavorably of the revolution. The soldiers, the newspaper says, refused to liberate him.

[The London foreign office has no information regarding the reported arrest of the British and American consuls at Odessa. The Berlin report is discredited.]

Policeman Praised for Alertness.

For his alertness in notifying the detective bureau of the whereabouts of three automobile thieves who were speeding away with a stolen car, with the result they were arrested, Sergt. James Woulfe has been given creditable mention in the police bulletin.

F. E. Carstarphen, a special assistant to Attorney General Gregory, met District Attorney Clyne yesterday and discussed plans to stop the shipment of gold to Germany. It is said much aid is being given that country through the remittances of small sums by individuals. Foreign language bankers are said to have promised their aid.

Mrs. Philip Schuyler Doane, chairman of the hospital supplies committee of the Red Cross, yesterday issued a call for more women workers. Owing to the completion of the draft the war has been brought nearer home, she explained, and therefore much must be done to provide supplies.

Members of the Chicago Commercial club will put on a field day program Wednesday at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Athletic events, in which the business men will take part, and the presentation of a bronze tablet to the club by Commandant William A. Moffett, will be among the features. The original grounds of the station were donated to the government by the club in 1909.

The executive council of the National War Work society of the Y. M. C. A. will make inspection visits today at the Great Lakes Naval Training station and Fort Sheridan.

WETS TRYING TO BLUFF BUSINESS, CHARGE OF DRYS

That the Manufacturers' and Dealers' association, an organization alleged to be identified with the liquor traffic, had attempted unsuccessfully to intimidate many influential firms here because they had signed a petition to congress for national prohibition, was charged yesterday by Philip Yarrow, superintendent of the Dry Chicago federation, and by E. J. Davis, Chicago superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league.

The alleged "wet" association, it was said, had sent letters to the signatories of the dry petition asking if they "really did sign" the petition. The letters, signed by A. P. Daniel, business manager, declared the inquiry had been inspired by customers of those who had subscribed to the plea.

"This evident attempt on the part of the Manufacturers' and Dealers' association, 'a paper concern,' to coerce legitimate business interests of this city will result well for the anti-liquor movement," asserted Mr. Yarrow.

SIX AMERICANS GET WAR HONORS

PARIS, July 21.—Six Americans serving in the foreign legion in France have just been decorated or commended in army orders. They are Machine Gunner Christopher Charles, Brooklyn; Gus Agostini, San Francisco; Grenadier Arthur Barre, Boston, formerly jackie on the battleship North Dakota; Grenadier Ivan Nock, mining engineer of Baltimore. They received the war cross at a review at Chalons-Sur-Marne.

At the honors parade at the Invalides Ernest Waldron, Paterson, N. J., serving with a French line regiment, was decorated with the British military medal. This was awarded him for devotion and bravery as interpreter and guide of the British troops near Combles, where he lost a leg. He already had been given the French military medal and war cross.

His brother Andrew, who enlisted with him in August, 1914, is now a corporal in the Seventy-eighth line regiment. He has twice been commended in army orders, wears the war cross, and has been wounded four times.

Rejected, He Brings In Twenty-five Recruits

Anxious to do his bit and unable to serve because his weight disqualified him from active service, William Simon, 704 Claremont avenue, who tips the scales at 280 pounds, took twenty-five men to the headquarters of ambulance company No. 1 at 40 North Clark street yesterday.

He applied for admission to the unit on Friday, and when he was rejected asked what he could do to help.

"Get recruits," said the sergeant.

He promised to induce others to enlist this week.

RUSHES FROM WAR DUTY TO WED GIRL HERE

First Sergt. Kenneth G. Cloud of the Seventh Illinois ambulance corps arrived in Chicago yesterday. He came from Fort Riley and he was the first one off the train. There waiting patiently for his overdue train was Miss Catharine Scommell of 7311 Yale avenue. The conductor smiled when he saw the sergeant greet her.

The conductor's suspicion was not unfounded, for the young soldier is going to make his sweetheart his bride today. Miss Scommell is the daughter of F. S. Scommell, secretary and treasurer of the Brownell Improvement company. Several months ago Sergt. Cloud resigned a position with the Touzalin Advertising company and enlisted in the ambulance corps.

FINLAND FREE; FACES BATTLE WITH RUSSIA

Governor Says Republic Resents Secession of Province.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 19.—A conflict with Russia is regarded as inevitable because of the action of the Finnish diet in adopting a bill granting independence to Finland. The Socialist members of parliament assert, however, that Petrograd has its hands too full with its own troubles to attempt repression.

The announcement of the vote was received by prolonged cheering and cries of "Long live Finland," and "End Russian connection." The diet thereafter rejected, 104 to 87, a proposal by M. Talas, member of the Young Finnish party, that the law, as prescribed by the constitution, be submitted for Russia's approval or veto.

After the vote on the bill the senate prepared a statement to be read by Premier Tokoi announcing its resignation. The president of the diet refused to accept the statement on the ground that it was out of order. The general expectation is that M. Tokoi will be reappointed by the diet with a cabinet consisting of representatives of the parties, pro rata as heretofore.

"Free for All Time."

As the diet dispersed there was a patriotic demonstration in the streets. M. Tokoi expressed his satisfaction at the diet's coup d'etat, saying: "We may be sure of Finland's independence guarantee for all time.

"Undoubtedly we committed a formal breach of law, but under the conditions brought about by the revolution the question involved is merely one of material power, and we do not believe Russia can compel us to repeal the independence law. It is true that we have not even militia to help us resist, but I am convinced that all the Russian executive committee of workmen's and soldiers' deputies and also the Russian soldiers and sailors in Finland are on our side.

"The vote deprives Gov. Stakhovitch of all functions, and so he may be considered as having been superseded. At present we have no program for breaking the last vague bond with Russia, which consists of a common policy in respect of defense and foreign affairs. It is not our aim wantonly to provoke Petrograd."

May Punish Finland.

Gov. Stakhovitch expressed the opinion that Finland had taken an unwise step.

"Finland's coup d'etat," said the governor, "in my opinion was a serious mistake, worse for her than for us. Just now we may be unwilling or unable to insist upon our rights, but in a few years, when the empire is reconsolidated, Finland may suffer from resentment at her having taken advantage of Russia's difficulties.

"Russia cannot afford to treat Finland as it treats the Ukraine, where the population is Russian and orthodox, and where therefore complete secession is not feared. It will treat Finland's union with the empire as a vital question and the Finns may suffer from it."

Countess Slated for Place in New Russian Ministry; First Woman to Be Put in Cabinet

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

STOCKHOLM, July 21.—A woman is expected to sit in the new cabinet of the Russian republic—the first woman ever to be named to one of the high ministerial posts in the government of a great nation.

Countess Pannina is slated to succeed Cheveskej as minister for social work. The countess has made a brilliant record as a department chief. She is 50 years old and has been engaged in social service work for a long while.

Countess Pannina was forced to divorce her husband, Count Polawzeff, who was a minister under the old régime, because of his numerous escapades. Despite the scandal which surrounded this case and which shocked even Petrograd society, Prof. Miliukoff, while he was secretary of foreign affairs, named Count Polawzeff as ambassador to Spain. The appointment caused so much disgust in Petrograd that it had to be withdrawn.

Jeopardized Republic.

Disentangling as cautiously as possible the contradictory and distracted Russian reports and rumors of the last five days, it seems safe to say that the riotous Petrograd demonstrations, beginning Monday morning, were emphatically, perhaps exclusively, of Bolscheviki origin. The ministerial crisis, which has been developing simultaneously with the demonstrations and already has resulted in the retirement of five cadet ministers, is knit up with the questions of Finnish and Ukrainish autonomy.

The Bolscheviki disturbances appear to have come near to overturning, or at least greatly jeopardizing, the provisional government. It seems certain that, while the intensely radical Bolscheviki party is in a hopeless minority as to voting strengh, it has a good working majority of disturbers of the public peace.

Hence when passion to start something seizes it (and this is often), it appears for the moment to command the field. Upon such occasions the bourgeoisie, which under normal conditions would muster many more votes than Bolschevikists, takes to the cellar and waits for the clouds to roll by, refusing to come out to vote or plead for order until sure of its skin.

Like French Jacobins.

In this respect the Bolscheviki movement duplicates the Jacobin movement of the French revolution. It cannot function creatively, but it can overturn and can play expertly with mobs. For purposes of disturbance and forcing issues upon the government and the population the Bolschevikists have an enormously potent weapon in the Pavlovsky and Moscow grenadier regiments, which have been intrenched outside of Petrograd for two weeks or more, and a so-called machine gun regiment, which properly is not a regiment, but a division, numbering 20,000 men and 500 machine guns.

Unofficial but plausible reports intimate that Minister of War Kerensky had foreknowledge of the revolt, and his hurried departure to the front last Monday night by special train was to bring back troops to Petrograd to put affairs in order. In any event it is certain he left the city while armed detachments were parading with placards reading "Down with war! Down with Kerensky!"

Small States Feared.

Meanwhile the ministerial crisis was coming to a head, and although the Bolschiviki demonstrations may have accelerated it, it seems to have been more intimately connected with the Finnish and Ukrainish questions of autonomy. Tseretelli, who treated with the Ukrainian independence leaders, is a Socialist of the type which considers the establishment of entirely independent small nations as a mistake, tending inevitably to continue the European military system. He therefore is opposed to the movement, which might split Russia into a dozen autonomous and hence potentially hostile states. He also wishes to launch sweeping programs of social reforms and labor legislation, which shall apply to all Russia.

These reforms and legislation, he believes, would be delayed, if not destroyed, if submitted to the mercies of the wrangling legislatures of several petty states. It must therefore have been a bitter disappointment to him and Kerenski to make concessions to the Ukraine independence movement, but if the new Russian offensive was to continue there were reasons why they had to make these concessions.

Ukraine Is War Provider.

Ukraine is the war provider of Russia in food and other materials and with its capital, Kiev, is of immense strategical importance in the westward movement of troops. Without Ukraine and without the Ukrainish troops, which generally are lived up with the autonomous movement, the Russian provisional government could not sustain its new offensive with certainty.

To these Ukrainian concessions the five cadet ministers, including Finance Minister Schingareff, Minister of Education Manuiloff, Minister of Charity Prince Schackhowoski, Minister of Communications Nekrasoff, and Minister of Justice Perevertseff appear to have been opposed.

Creates Peril to Russia.

They declared their ministerial colleagues, who were Socialists, had gone too far and that they had no right to accept the autonomous proposals or demands of Ukraine, which in their opinion should have been left to the impending constitutional assembly. This was their general attitude, although Minister of Communications Nekrasoff's retirement is traced more directly to his conviction that the provisional government wanted to grant Finland's demands for the removal of the Russian troops from Finland.

Such withdrawal was considered by Nekrasoff and other cadets as creating a strategical danger for Russia.

Stand Behind Government.

The upshot of this situation is that the powerful workingmen's and soldiers' committee has given the government a vote of confidence, and now comes an announcement that the government and the workingmen's and soldiers' committee are to work together on a "program of action" in reconstructing the ministry.

Even more significant than this vote of confidence is the fact that after soldiers and citizens had stormed the office of the reactionary newspaper Novoe Vremya and forced its editors to issue a proclamation demanding the provisional government's removal the workingmen's and soldiers' committee protested against mobs as calculated to endanger the whole revolutionary cause. This indicates that the powerful workingmen's and soldiers' body, which feels it could take over the government at any time if the situation demanded such a proceeding, is still standing by the government.

In surveying the week's events in Petrograd it appears that next in importance to the adherence of the workingmen and soldiers' committees to the provisional government is the growing conviction that the retirement of the cadet ministers will create a division in the cadet party, of which the minority will follow the government on the Ukraine question. This minority may obtain representation in the ministry.

Finns Are Starving.

Meanwhile Finland affairs are proceeding from bad to worse. In the Kuopio district grain is exhausted. Starvation threatens the people, who are eating powdered tree bark, which they use as flour. The authorities are frantically demanding that the Russian government withdraw its troops because of the food scarcity and outrages by the soldiers.

At Tammerfors there was a night of rioting between Finnish citizens and Russian soldiers. At Helsingfors, during riots, soldiers killed several officers. The Helsingfors policemen's strike is over. Crime became very widespread while the policemen refused to work.

Oakland, Cal., July 21.—One man was killed and five are believed to be dying as the result of an accident at noon today at the Barbour Chemical plant.

27,000 ATTEND SECOND PICNIC OF DEMOCRATS

There were 27,000 people in attendance at the second annual picnic given yesterday by the managing committee of the Cook County Democracy at Brand's park, Elston, Belmont, and California avenues.

At 2 o'clock the athletic events started, and from the first race until the stoutest of the stout ladies won the last race the most conspicuous man on the grounds was Official Starter "Little Bob" Figg, who weighs just 308 pounds. After the races Mr. Figg was seen no more. Some said he was looking for the man who had put an egg in the breast pocket of his silk shirt and broken it.

State Senator Daniel Herlihy acted as master of ceremonies and presented the prizes.

"The object of holding an annual picnic," said James Dailey, chairman of the managing committee, "is to bring about complete organization, unity, and fixity of purpose. For years the Democratic party has been divided into factions. These conditions threatened the life of the party.

"Now we intend to foster the social spirit by providing for an annual picnic where all Democrats and their friends may have an opportunity to become acquainted with one another."

Political speeches were forbidden at the picnic.

Laf-a-Lot Girls Give Dance to First Infantry

More than forty-five couples danced, listened to entertainment numbers, and had refreshments last night in Holstein Park Center in the first of a series of three dances given for the members of the three companies of the First Illinois infantry stationed in Camp Sanborn. The dance last night was given by the Laf-a-lot Girls' club for the men of Company B.

THE WAR A YEAR AGO

July 22, 1916.

Germans in counter drive in west gained footing in Leipzig redoubt, north of the Somme, but were driven out by British.

Russians forced Austro-Hungarians beyond Styr-Lipa confluence and reached gates of Berestechk, menacing Lemberg and Brody.

SPANISH POLICE CLASH WITH MOB

MADRID, July 21.—A number of persons were wounded when strikers and gendarmes fired upon each other in Valencia yesterday. According to reports reaching the under-secretary of the interior, the commandant of the gendarmes called upon a crowd of strikers to disperse.

They replied by firing on the gendarmes from roofs and porches. The police returned the fire and two soldiers, one policeman, and six civilians were wounded. Numerous persons were arrested.

MORE PICKETING AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Unmolested by street crowds and with no interference from the Washington police, twelve militant suffragists, members of the National Woman's party, resumed picketing at the White House this afternoon from 1 o'clock until nearly 3. The suffragists took up positions at both the east and west gates of the executive mansion. And there was no recurrence of an attempt to make any demonstration against them or destroy their banners floating in the breeze.

First Air Flight Is Fatal.

Wilmington, Del., July 21.—Allen O. Smith, 35, making his first airplane flight this afternoon from the airplane station on the estate of John J. Raskob, at Claymont, fell into the Delaware river with his machine and was drowned.

It Clings to the Slope of the Road

BECAUSE of the low center of gravity, the perfect weight distribution, low hung motor and underslung rear springs, the Jeffery Six clings tight to abrupt road slopes—like a fly to the wall.

This is an important factor of safety for the owner in an emergency. Regardless of speed, momentum or sudden slants and slopes, the Jeffery Six always keeps four tires on the road—another reason why Jeffery owners stay Jeffery owners.

Overland

2000 a Week
of This One Model Alone

Think of it!
A brand new model January 1st and over fifty thousand already running.
That's an accomplishment!
It's also a mighty safe guide as to what to buy.
The car is right mechanically, of course, but more than that —among touring cars of its size it is by long odds the most beautiful —and when it comes to roominess and easy riding nothing that even approaches its compact size, is anything like as comfortable.
This latest Overland Touring Model—the Light Four—is the greatest combination of style and comfort that ever sold for so low a price—$750.
And it's as economical to run as it is to buy.
As a combination pleasure-utility car it is giving its owners more solid satisfaction for the money than any other car we know anything about.
Come in and see us about the Overland Light Four—Touring Car $750—Roadster $735.

DR. DUDLEY SEES NO INCREASE IN CANCER CASES

Holds Out Hope for Victims of Most Malignant Forms.

The impression has gone abroad that the last few months have seen a startling increase in the number of cancer cases, but Dr. E. C. Dudley, major officer reserve corps, professor of gynecology, Northwestern university medical school and member of a committee of the American Gynecological society on cancer research, says there is no cause for alarm, that this impression doubtless has arisen through the increased number of cancer victims seekings treatment. This increase, he says, is due to the fact that his profession has of late years been more successful in the treatment of cancer than heretofore, this success being the result of improved methods of treatment.

In former times any sort of cancer was deemed almost incurable. Now many of the most malignant are sometimes cured.

Cause Still Unknown.

"No new discoveries have been made relative to the cause of cancer," Dr. Dudley said. "We know no more now as to the cause of cancer than we have known for some time.

"Cancer has been artificially produced in the laboratory in the lower animals, in mice, for instance, and certain modern forms of treatment have been effectual in curing the disease in these animals and though not yet available for human beings, they may become so later.

"Much active research is going forward in the Rockefeller institute and in other institutions, which, as yet, only gives good promise of a positive practical result.

"The treatment of cancer, generally speaking, is most efficacious when the disease is discovered early, and is less effective in the later stages.

Superficial Disease Curable.

"Superficial cancer, on or near the surface, as on the skin or lip, is now very commonly cured if taken early, but the deeper cancerous growths, as in the liver, stomach, intestines, kidney, bladder or brain, are very discouraging for treatment at the present time, although by no means hopeless.

"There are only three remedies which deserve much consideration. These are surgery, the modern X-ray [Crook's tubes], and radium.

"Radium is very efficacious and frequently curative when the growth is accessible, as on the skin and in some of the female generative organs, as the womb. X-ray is indicated for deeper cancers which are inaccessible to radium. The X-ray, however, has not borne out the hopes of its advocates.

Radium Results Encouraging.

"My own results with radium have been so encouraging that during the last two or three years I have used it more and more as a substitute for radical surgical operations, especially in cancer of the womb. While I still continue to operate in some cases, if I were obliged to give up surgery or radium I would give up surgery. Some of the results of my treatment by radium have been almost miraculous, even unoperable cases having been apparently cured. At least, the disease has not returned after a lapse of one and two years.

"I think, with improved technique, which undoubtedly will come, that radium must have a very brilliant future.

Consult an Expert.

"The most important lesson for the public to learn is to consult an expert on the slightest suspicion of cancer. For example, any unusual bleeding from any organ, as from the urinary or digestive tract, would be a suspicious circumstance, and any unusual bleeding from the womb should be regarded as a danger signal. Early recognition of the disease is of paramount importance."

Stabbed with Shears.

A fight over money yesterday resulted in Fred Colpe, a tailor at 219 South Dearborn street, being stabbed in the back with a pair of shears by Frank Leo, also a tailor.

LOSER TO HELP MUTUALIZATION OF EQUITABLE

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—Gen. T. Coleman Du Pont offers to sell to the policy holders of the Equitable Life Assurance society his 564 majority shares at nearly $2,000,000 less than he paid J. P. Morgan for them, plus interest, and at a price between three and four times as great as that offered minority stockholders for their shares.

Announcement of this basis for mutualization was made today by President W. A. Day, who said: "Gen. Dupont's offering aggregates $2,799,900, and includes, in addition to the control stock, sixty-three shares of minority stock at $1,500 a share. From the date he acquired the stock he has held the opinion that he could render no greater service to the public than to assist in the mutualization of the society."

Charles E. Hughes, as chief counsel of the society, is drawing up the mutualization plan and considering its legal phases.

President Day's announcement shows that the exact figure Du Pont paid Morgan was $4,394,540. With interest added this amount now totals $4,800,000. Mr. Day says the directors have approved the plan submitted by the mutualization committee.

American Audiences Like "Little American"

Motion picture audiences seemed to take little stock in Maj. Funkhouser's censorship ideas yesterday when they flocked to the Studebaker theater to see the first presentation of "The Little American." The film, which was prohibited by Maj. Funkhouser because it was anti-German, seemed to be to the liking of the citizens and applause was general.

Boy Meets Instant Death When Hit by Motorcycle

Gary, Ind., July 21.—Elmer Vickery, 12 years old, was instantly killed tonight when he was hit by a motorcycle driven by Peter Likes, who is believed to be dying from injuries received. The death is the second within twenty-four hours, Rose Steinhider, 4 years old, having been killed by an automobile.

CROWDS APPEAR AS MOVIE 'EXPO' NEARS ITS END

Norma Talmadge, Beverly Bayne, F. X. Bushman Hold Court.

By Mae Tinée.

Tonight ends the seventh annual exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' league, and if the hot weather keeps up right glad will everybody be to have it end.

Yesterday was one of the biggest days of the convention, Norma Talmadge's advertised appearance and that of Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, bringing forth multitudes of the avid-eyed and curious. Frantic press work on behalf of the last two named provided bands, etc., and as crowds follow noise there were crowds aplenty.

Eva Tanguay Missing.

Eva Tanguay was expected, but a wire stating that "a serious automobile accident" would prevent her appearance was received in the afternoon at the Coliseum by Manager Schindler, who forthwith went right up in the air, as the saying has it, and after volubly voicing his misery at disappointing the people borrowed a phrase from the elusive Eva and shrieked that he didn't care, no, not if the world were to stop revolving that minute. He was tired, he was through, he was—and the next minute he was smiling.

Miss Talmadge, very simply and attractively dressed, made no attempt to say anything. She just looked—and kissed her hands to the mobs below her. Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne, formerly of Essanay, you remember, told how good it was to be back home, Mr. Bushman assuring us that if he had not been born in Virginia he would have loved to have been born here. The army was cheated of a grand physique in that man!

Ball at the Morrison.

Last night at the Morrison hotel, after the performance at the Coliseum, all the attractions and what wanted to see them had a ball. The grand march was led by Bryant Washburn and Nell Craig and a good time apparently was had by all.

Today should be interesting for those who have always wanted to meet those makers of comedies, the Sidney Drews, Edith Story, formerly of Vitagraph, Viola Dana, and Alice MacCheaney.

If your favorite movie star looks dull around the eyes today when you see her at the Coliseum, and years older than you expected, don't go away with your ideal shattered.

MAGNIFICENT! BISHOP'S VIEW OF NEW ARMY

Church to Aid the Men During Their Training.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

The new national army was enthusiastically commended by Bishop Thomas Nicholson in his address yesterday afternoon at the Desplaines campmeeting.

A plan was outlined and a committee of over thirty ministers appointed for the purpose of devising ways for supplying religious and other help to enlisted men affiliated with the Methodist Episcopal church.

The committee's duty was defined as threefold: to determine what had been done thus far for the enlisted men, to suggest feasible plans, and to decide on the amount of help which shall be asked of the board of home missions and church extension in financing the erection of buildings and the appointment of special workers.

Flower of Our Youth.

"This new army is composed of the flower of our youth," said Bishop Nicholson. "They are the very best and the majority of them are from Christian homes.

"The transactions of the last forty-eight hours are historic. The 15,000 soldiers drafted out of our own city represent the rich and poor, the educated and the uneducated, the conspicuous and the unconspicuous. It is a magnificent sight.

"The question of caring for the religious needs of these young men who will be in training camps is not simply a matter for the chaplains. We do not want to interfere with any established or regular work or be officious. So far as possible we want to work with other denominations, but I believe the churches ought to take hold of this work with vigor.

"Perhaps it will be necessary to erect some new churches near the training camps and we may have to appoint certain ministers to this special work. It may be necessary for us to ask for a fund of $200,000."

Personnel of Committee.

The following is the committee, of which Bishop Nicholson is chairman and F. O. Beck acting chairman: District superintendents: L. F. W. Lesemann, J. L. Walker, H. C. Loeppert, William Swenson, C. W. Schevenius, Chicago; J. A. Matlack, Rockford; F. D. Sheets, Aurora; and J. M. Phelps, Dixon. City missionary superintendent, John Thompson; editors, Dan B. Brummitt, E. R. Zaring, and the following pastors: J. S. Ladd Thomas, E. B. Crawford, W. R. Wedderspoon, A. S. Haskins, C. K. Carpenter, Albertus Perry, T. K. Gale, L. L. Hammitt, A. F. Clark, W. C. Scott, B. B. Evans, G. K. Flack, C. J. Bready, E. W. Oneal, E. G. Schutz, S. H. Wirsching, H. E. Rompel, James O'May, Chester Smith.

New Mexico Indians and Mexicans Do Red X Work

Away from the arid lands of New Mexico comes an appeal to help the Red Cross from a former Chicago woman, Mrs. Robert Rueth, now a resident of Chamita, N. M. She is located there among 500 San Juan Indians and Mexicans and has interested them in the work, but owing to the lack of materials has been forced to stop and Mrs. Rueth asks that old linens and other cloth be sent her and it will be made up into bandages by the Indians.

Sells Oil Holdings and Gets Commission in Navy

Arkansas City, Kas., July 21.—H. L. Spencer, 30, graduate of Annapolis, who recently sold a half interest in his oil holdings near this city for $3,000,000, which interest he has acquired by lucky strikes in the last eighteen months, rather than take chances on the draft, wired his offer of service to the navy, was accepted, given a commission, and left yesterday to assume his duties.

HOLD THREE FOR KIDNAPING BOY FROM MOTHER

Two women and a man were locked up last night on a charge of kidnaping 5 year old John Opher from his mother, Mrs. Marie Winkel of 522 Fullerton parkway. The boy was recovered. The arrested are:

Mrs. Anna Schaeffer, 55 years old; Mrs. Bertha Neumer, 24; and Otto Neihus, 20, all of 219 West North avenue. The women were held at the East Chicago avenue police station and the man at the Sheffield station. Mrs. Winkel made the complaint which resulted in the arrests.

Mrs. Schaeffer had raised the boy from babyhood, and only about a month ago his mother, Mrs. Winkel, got him and took him to her own home. Last night Mrs. Schaeffer, Mrs. Neumer, and Neihus picked up the child while he was playing in the street about a block and a half from his home, and took him away on a street car.

Wife of Missing School Man Urges Him to Return

Mrs. Alfred R. Brown, 5838 West Huron street, Austin, is still hoping for the return of her husband, former principal of the Austin Business college, who disappeared on June 9.

"I am broken in health from worry and suspense," she writes, "and caring for the children who have become sick since their daddy left home. Tell him through THE TRIBUNE or any one who may come across him that home will be bright again if he will come back."

Prof. Brown started on a trip to a voice culture studio in the loop and has not been seen by any one who knew him since.

Soldiers and Sailors Entertained.

Soldiers and sailors were guests last night at an entertainment of music, dancing, and readings in Fullerton hall, Art institute, given as a part of the plan of the institute to aid in giving comfort to those in the country's service.

Hudson Wins at Omaha, Tacoma and Uniontown

150-Mile Race at Tacoma
First—Third—Fourth

Eleven cars started. Three Hudson Super-Six Specials were entered and all finished. Patterson first—Roades third—Malcolm fourth.

Patterson led at 50 miles, 100 miles, and finished a minute and twenty-three seconds ahead of the second car.

Roades and Malcolm each drove Hudson Super-Six Specials, which were stock cars they had converted into racers. They are professional drivers who enter and drive their cars independent of factory assistance.

Two Races at Omaha
First in one—Second in other

Ralph Mulford in a Hudson Super-Six Special averaged 101.26 miles an hour in the 150-mile Championship event.

There was a field of 14 starters.

Mulford made one tire change.

In the 50-mile race he finished second, 42 seconds behind a Hoskins Special.

Two tire changes in this event cost him first place.

Billy Taylor in a Hudson Super-Six Special finished fifth in both the 50 and 150-mile races.

At Uniontown
First in one—Second in three

The principal event at the Uniontown (Pa.) meet was run in three heats.

Ira Vail drove a Hudson Super-Six Special. He finished first in the 20-mile heat, second in the 10-mile, and second in the 50-mile heats.

A tire change cost him the 50-mile heat by one second.

A dealer's rebuilt Super-Six demonstrator driven by a local Hudson dealer finished 15 seconds behind the winner in the non-professional event. Another rebuilt Hudson finished fourth.

Super-Six Specials Defeat Rival Racers in Every July 4th Championship Event—More Proofs of Endurance

Championship Speedway Races again reveal the mighty endurance of the Hudson Super-Six.

In the three July 4th events, Hudson endurance defeated the fastest cars known to racing.

In a field of 28 starters at Cincinnati, Memorial Day, the four Hudson Specials finished First in the Free-for-all; Second, Seventh and Ninth in the 250-Mile event.

At Chicago, Ralph Mulford on June 16th established the American Speedway records for 150 miles and for 200 miles at an average of 104 miles per hour.

Made Stock Car Records Last Year

Last year Super-Six stock cars and stock chassis made new and important records for endurance, power and speed. Those were non-competitive tests. They were made against the best times of other cars.

They included the fastest stock chassis mile—the 100-mile stock car record—the one-hour stock car record and the 24-hour stock chassis record. These were officially timed by the American Automobile Association.

Then in addition to these, a seven passenger Hudson Super-Six Phaeton broke every transcontinental automobile record. It did it both ways in the only double, twice-across-America run ever attempted against time.

All Hudson records are the result of Hudson endurance.

Cars may be built lighter and have more power, weight considered, just as most of the racers are, but none have proved an equal degree of endurance.

That is why Hudsons win.

It is why so many professional race drivers have adopted Hudsons in their speedway races.

In the three July 4th races you will note some of the Hudsons were rebuilt stock cars. They were made suitable for racing because their owners had confidence in them to win prizes.

The cars were entered independent of any factory influence.

Race drivers know that endurance wins. They know they can rely on the Hudson Super-Six to endure.

You, Too, Can Rely on Hudson Endurance

In converting Hudson Super-Six stock cars into racers, these men made no change in the principle that accounts for Hudson endurance. They merely made such changes as can be made to any Hudson Super-Six. They did not have to do anything to increase the endurance quality of the cars. That quality is built into every Hudson Super-Six.

You, of course, are not interested in owning a racing car, but when racing reveals a quality so important as that of endurance, as it does with the Hudson Super-Six, then you are interested in its performance.

The speedway shows, in a few miles, weaknesses that it might require thousands of miles of ordinary service to reveal. You are not interested so much in what the performance will be in a car you buy in its first few thousand miles.

You want to know what you can depend upon after the car has seen thousands of miles of service. Look at these records and you will see what you may expect of the Hudson Super-Six.

The speedway test of 150 miles is more trying than thousands of miles you will drive with your car.

You want to know what the car you buy now is likely to cost in maintenance. You want to know how much time it will be in the repair shop after a half season's use. Do not these proofs persuade you to buy a Hudson Super-Six? They should. 37,000 have already bought and they have added to these records their own experiences with the Hudson Super-Six.

There are eight body types on the Hudson Super-Six. The Phaeton 7-passenger car sells at $1650 at Detroit.

MIXED BULLETS AND MIXED GUNS PERIL U. S. ARMY

Troops to Shoot American Ammunition from British Rifles.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—The war department's admission that the United States army will be compelled to rely upon France for artillery indicates that the department has failed completely to supply ordnance of any important type for the war.

A careful analysis and investigation of the munition situation as far as it affects the army shows the following facts:

1. Since the Spanish-American war the ordnance bureau of the war department has spent millions of dollars experimenting on guns of every type and the line of the American army was satisfied they were prepared to supply the most effective guns in the world.

Best Rifles, but——

2. Gen. Crozier, chief of the bureau, and a great number of assistants have advertised that the rifles adopted were of a better type than those adopted by any continental army, frequently asserting that Europe had nothing to be compared with the results of American inventive genius.

3. When the United States government declared war on Germany and plans were made to put into the field the greatest democratic army that the world has even seen, the public assumed that the great American munition factories—which have been building unlimited numbers of rifles for foreign armies—would be prepared over night to supply the American army with the guns adopted by the war department.

Adopt British Gun.

4—When rifles were called for in great quantities the bureau of ordnance discovered that it would be impossible to turn out the American rifle—known as the Springfield 30, the pride of the American army—because the American factories could not make them fast enough. The fact is the factories have been equipped to make the models used by Great Britain and Russia, but not by America. The result was that it would take many months to supply the necessary mechanism with which to make the American guns. The army has to have guns immediately. The ordnance bureau had to put aside the Springfield and to accept the only thing that it could get—the British model, Enfield rifle redesigned to fit American ammunition.

5—After being compelled to throw overboard its favorite rifle, the ordnance bureau then planned to turn out great quantities of field artillery. After investigation of three months the bureau now finds that it cannot turn out the guns adopted after experiments, but will be compelled to look to France for guns. In other words, the American planned artillery—supposedly the best in the world—must give way before French manufactured guns.

Invites Disaster.

The net result of the rifle mix-up is that the American forces abroad will be supplied with two different rifles of non-interchangeable parts—that is, rifles that cannot be repaired or recovered from war wastage except through parts expressly manufactured for them, although firing the same ammunition.

This invites a confusion which in past wars frequently has proven extremely disastrous when one body of troops suddenly found itself unable to keep its rifle supply at maximum efficiency because confusion in the supply service brought them rifle parts intended for another arm.

Blackberry Jam an Issue of War; Symptom of Other Problems Faced

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Blackberry jam. To understand the relation of that saccharine substance to the big job of getting a nation ready for war is to need no other explanation of the difficulties and disputes which are at present embroiling Washington.

The war department has experts on almost every subject in its employ. They are real experts. They are careful, scientific men of recognized authority in their specialties. One of them is an expert on jams.

As the result of long continued and scientifically conducted experiments he has demonstrated that blackberry jam is the most appetizing and nutritious of all the jam family. Consequently blackberry jam is part of the official ration of the American soldier.

System Upset by War.

Having reached that determination, the war department would, in normal times, prepare careful specifications defining the quality of jam desired and the exact size of the containers in which it must be packed. It would then advertise for bids and, at the end of some ninety days, would let the contract to the lowest and best bidder.

That system worked well enough when there was plenty of time and jam had to be supplied to less than 100,000 men.

Now, with the biggest war in history on our hands, the situation is entirely changed.

In the first place the need of jam is instant. To advertise for bids and wait ninety days before letting contracts would leave all the new armies, now gathering in their cantonments, jamless.

The Bureau Monkey Wrench.

In the second place, though it is not difficult to find blackberry jam enough to feed 100,000 men, there is probably not sufficient blackberry jam in the United States to spread the bread for more than 1,000,000 soldiers.

At this point the bureaucrats of the war department and the business men who serve on the advisory board of the national council of defense come into one of their characteristic conflicts.

The position of the business men is that, since the jam must be secured without an instant's delay, the proper plan is to go out into the open market and buy it, using such patriotic appeals and such governmental pressure as are available to get low prices and quick deliveries.

Also, since the existing supply of blackberry jam is vastly insufficient, the business mind can see no other way out than to add to all the blackberry jam which can be purchased enough plum, raspberry, and other jams to make up the necessary quantity.

Error of Unchanged System.

Now, the bureaucrats of the war and all government departments work by system. The chief characteristics of that system are its exactness and its rigidity. It is put together like the wheels of a fine watch—and when properly oiled and wound up it works with equal perfection. It is related that, at the time of the Spanish war, one of the permanent officials of the war department complained bitterly of the situation.

"I have spent twenty years putting the system in my office in perfect condition," he declared, "and now just when the work is done, along comes this damned war and knocks it all to pieces."

It is impossible to tell what will be the outcome of the present controversy over sweets for the soldier, for the battle of blackberry jam is as yet unsettled. The war department, at the time this is written, is still insisting on blackberries or nothing.

The importance of the story is that it represents, not unfairly, the difficulty which exists in adapting a fixed and inflexible system, built for leisurely use on a small scale in times of peace to the demands of a world war, in which victory may hang on the speed and vastness of the preparations.

Example of Corned Beef.

Here is another instance illustrating the same defect: Until a few days ago the regulations of the quartermaster's department required that corned beef for the army be packed in cans containing exactly two pounds of meat. A two pound can of corned beef is not put up commercially. The great Chicago packers, on the other hand, make millions of cans which hold twenty-eight ounces of meat. All their machinery and their arrangements are made for packing corned beef in twenty-eight ounce cans.

When the war department has asked for bids on cans holding thirty-two ounces, most of the packers have not even troubled to submit figures. And the extra four ounces of meat in the cans supplied to the army have cost proportionately as much as the same quantity in cans of ordinary commercial sizes.

It took a lot of diplomacy and a special trip to Chicago, with a formal conference at the Union League club, to persuade the powers that be to agree to accept corned beef in the smaller cans at a reduced rate per ounce of meat.

And Then of Underwar.

So with army underwear. The quartermaster's specifications for shirts and drawers for the soldiers insisted that the garments should be knit in a certain peculiar way, which, indeed, the experts of the department had decided was the best way. But only two or three mills in the United States were equipped to knit these goods.

Now there has come a sudden demand for underwear for more than a million men. To stick to the old army specifications would mean that three-quarters of the new armies would be undershirtless. It has taken a lot of hard work and diplomacy to persuade the bureaucrats to allow equally heavy and warm underwear, knit in four different styles, to be furnished on army contracts.

These are types of the innumerable problems, apparently small, but actually vitally important, with which the business men of the advisory board have had to deal, and are daily dealing with. It has been their job to adjust a cast iron system to facts and possibilities. I think they are doing a tremendously important and patriotic work.

They have been severely criticised in congress and in many newspapers. They will be more bitterly criticised. Some of them deserve it. The coal mine owners, I am certain, and the steel men, I am told, need to be watched carefully.

But an attempt to indict any large proportion of the business men who are voluntarily serving on the advisory board seems to me ridiculous. If one demands a selfish motive for their activity, let it be found in the opportunity to demonstrate to the people of the United States that big business knows how to be both efficient and patriotic.

I have talked with many of the more important men serving on the board. Either they are chiefly actuated by patriotic motives or I am a fool when it comes to judging human nature.

Task of Building Camps.

Incidentally there has been an inclination to criticise the contracts for the building of the cantonments for the new army because they were let on the basis of cost price plus [illegible] per cent profit on the job.

In the first place, that system of letting contracts is largely used by business men in making contracts with constructing companies of recognized character and capacity.

In the second place, the building of each of these cantonments includes the erection in twelve weeks' time of more than a solid mile of two story buildings and the construction in the same period of sewerage, water, and lighting systems to accommodate a population of nearly 40,000 men.

With such time limitations and in the present state of the labor and material markets no construction firm in the world could safely make a lump sum bid on the job.

Advice by Large Builder.

If the cantonments were to be built at all they had to be built on the cost and percentage basis. One of the largest constructing firms which is at work on the great cantonment job has issued a pamphlet for distribution among its employés. The pamphlet is signed by the president of the company.

"I regard this contract as the most important ever undertaken by the company," he writes, "because it makes us an integral part of the machinery of the United States government in its extraordinary internal undertakings. It furnishes every man in our organization a splendid opportunity to acquit himself honorably in the service of the republic.

"Surely, when the youth of the United States are freely offering their lives for their country and millions of men and women are sacrificing their means both to prosecute the struggle and to succor its victims, the man who is asked by the government to work at home in behalf of those who are to fight our battles abroad may be expected to give the full measure of his work, to the end that no stigma of inefficiency or waste shall attach to our expenditure of the government's money.

Company Is on Trial.

"This company is on trial. Its reputation depends on the quality of this performance. For us the building of this cantonment is the baptism of fire. We are in the fight and we have got to come through with flying colors."

Perhaps, as a Washington cynic sweetly suggests, the principal object in printing this pamphlet was to have it fall into the hands of an innocent and susceptible newspaper correspondent. Mebbe so. But the fact is that in Washington personal, professional, and political jealousy gives a jaundiced squint to many eyes, while a majority of the permanent population habitually wears blue glasses.

Kaiser Warns Neutral Ships.

COPENHAGEN, July 21.—The kaiser today signed a new order announcing that neutral ships would be regarded as enemies when chiefly owned by enemy citizens, when under enemy charter, or when sailing in the interest of the enemy.

FLAVOR OF HOME SMOKES SOON TO SOLACE SAMMIES

American smokes for the United States soldiers in the trenches have begun to come in to THE TRIBUNE, and soon that "somewhere in France" will begin to dispel the flavor of home and a comforting weed. Yesterday, by way of a starter, F. L. Farrell of 3247 Wilson avenue, sent a box of cigars, and an anonymous giver contributed 600 packages of cigarets for shipment to the soldiers.

At the war department yesterday it was explained that for the present there is no military machinery enabling the department to employ a company of cigarmakers to produce smokes for their comrades. But the department carried tobacco as a part of its commissary, purchasing it at wholesale and selling to the men at cost. However, there will be no obstacle thrown in the way of shipments of tobacco.

Tobacco will be received by THE TRIBUNE and sent to an eastern port, where the war department has arranged to give it place aboard the transports for shipment into France. Thus the chief obstacle has been removed and now all that remains for those desiring to have the soldiers comfortable is to make generous contributions of tobacco in any form.

Boy of 15 Is Missing; Left Home 10 Days Ago

Frederick Bolker, 15 years old, 281 Park avenue, Highland Park, disappeared from his home July 12 at noon and has not been seen or heard from since by his parents. He was wearing a brown coat and cap, long gray pants, tan shoes, blue shirt, has dark brown hair, big blue eyes, and is about five feet four inches tall.

Pythians to Celebrate.

Lincoln park will be the scene of a general Pythian celebration on next Saturday, when a picnic, speaking, bands, and many forms of entertainment will be provided.

HINKY DINK GOES ON MOTOR TRIP THROUGH EAST

Ald. Michael Kenna, accompanied by his wife, will leave Chicago today on an automobile tour to New England. He will strike the Allegheny mountains at Wheeling, W. Va., and continue his journey through parts of Pennsylvania and Maryland. Taking a sharp turn to the north he will motor over the Adirondacks and thence eastward over the White mountains, Berkshire hills, and Green mountains.

Bangor, Me., will be his destination, but he will not linger there more than a day. On his westward trip he will stay a few days at New York and Atlantic City.

He will arrive at Mount Clemens, Mich., this being his thirty-fifth annual visit, about Aug. 5.

Firestone Cord

FULTON added power and speed and comfort to water transportation. The Firestone organization, through the new Super-size Cord, has inaugurated new advances in motor car travel. Cord superiorities in the super-size form represent a broad stride forward from the regular type of automobile cord tire.

Masters of Transportation
ROBERT FULTON, American engineer, the first to propel a boat by steam. Original experiment made in 1803 at Paris. In 1807 Fulton built the "Clermont," the first steamboat in America. It plied the Hudson river between New York and Albany.

CHANDLER SIX

Chandler Records Are Owners' Records

Not to our knowledge has a professional motor car driver ever made a record with a Chandler Six.

But all the thousands of owners of Chandler Sixes, every day, are making the kind of records that count. Records of satisfactory service.

The Chandler Company has never built a racing car. Chandler owners do not want racing cars.

The 55 to 60 miles per hour speed that every Chandler car will do is speed much greater than you would ever ask for.

The Chandler Company has never built a special mountain-climbing car with short wheel base and low gear ratio.

The ease with which every Chandler climbs steep grades on high gear is satisfying to the Chandler owner.

The Chandler Company has never supplied any Chandler dealer anywhere with a special gear ratio for demonstrating purposes.

What any Chandler Six does your Chandler Six will do.

The manufacturer of one six can make just as big claims as the manufacturer of any other six. But

The Chandler is a Fact-Car, Not a Claim-Car, and These Are Facts, Not Claims

There is no other six more flexible in control, more responsive to your every demand, than the Chandler.
There is no other which will pull hard grades on high with greater ease.
There is no other so economical in operation.
There is no other which embodies in its design and construction so many features characteristic of high-grade high-priced motor cars.
There is no other of more beautiful body lines or greater riding comfort.

SHERIFF DOOMS ALL BLIND PIGS ON COUNTY ROADS

Coroner Says Fake Police Are Shaking Down Motorists.

[illegible] warfare was declared yesterday by Sheriff Traeger against the blind pigs which have infested the country districts of Cook county and the saloons which have been refused licenses by the county board. These saloons must be wiped out or become blind pigs—and as blind pigs they cannot run, says the sheriff.

"Each saloonkeeper, refused a license, will be given a few days to close up, to get out their stocks of liquor," said Sheriff Traeger. "Personal notices have been delivered telling of the board's action. Next week the deputies will go around again. If the places are not closed arrests will follow."

Fake Policemen.

Coroner Hoffman yesterday issued a statement warning motorists against [illegible] constables or wearers of "tin stars" who have bobbed up, he says, since the crusade began against speeders and drunken drivers. The coroner says that fake officers have "shaken down" many motorists.

"We have discovered that some of these people got on the job even before we did the first morning," he said. "We do not intend to persecute any one, but we will insist on every one obeying the state law so that life and limb may be safe.

"If any automobilists should be held up by any one wearing one of these 'tin stars' I wish they would report the facts and the description of the parties to the state's attorney, the sheriff's office, or to me so that we can get after those who are interfering with the efforts of the officers of the law to regulate this traffic.

May Appeal to Legislature.

"Unless the motorists coöperate with us and endeavor to keep within the law the legislature will be asked to police the Milwaukee avenue concrete road as Sheridan road and our park systems are now policed. That road is a great feeder for the lake region and more than 50,000 automobiles pass over it every Saturday and Sunday in the summer. It must be made safe to all.

"Another thing I wish to emphasize is the practice of truck owners of leasing their trucks to parties of joy riders. These are loaded with from thirty to fifty persons, who get several cases of beer on the load and then start down the congested highway.

"In most instances the crowd becomes boisterous from the effects of the drink. Empty bottles are thrown out, often broken on the roadway, and in some instances hurled at passing automobiles."

Orr & Lockett Sued for Taxes.

State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne filed suit in the Superior court yesterday against the Orr & Lockett Hardware company to collect $1,433.50 claimed to be due for 1916 taxes on its property in South Chicago.

HO, HUM! A DULL DAY: ONLY TWO ASK DIVORCES

Only two divorce suits were filed yesterday in the Superior and Circuit courts.

Mrs. Anna Maria Markham asks to have the marriage bonds that hold her to Romondo D. Makham, part owner of the Chicago Ferule company, severed. She says he deserted her.

Mrs. Lena Busch wants a divorce from Frank. She says during his woeing he told her he had vast amounts of money, but when they were married his income dwindled to nothing. She says she had to jump out of a window once during one of his attacks. She charges infidelity and habitual drunkenness.

Took Her Hat, Too.

Miss Melta Folkens, 4867 Winthrop avenue, fought with a robber in Ainslie street, between Kenmore and Winthrop avenues, on her way home early yesterday morning. He got possession of her handbag and took her blue silk hat just to be mean to her.

"Now, just for meanness I'll take that, too," said the footpad, seizing the hat and fleeing.

The handbag, valued at $6, she told the Summerdale police, contained $1.50.

CITY'S BEACHES JAMMED; TENS OF THOUSANDS OUT

Some Men, No Women, Sent Away for Too Scant Garb.

It was the men yesterday, rather than the women, who were chased off the beaches because of frolicsome bathing costumes. Tens of thousands of persons gathered at the beaches in an attempt to cheat the hot weather. There were few women, however, with suits that the police believed too scanty.

"There were so few violations of the bathing suit ordinance," said Charles McGee, director of the Clarendon beach, "that none was brought to the attention of the authorities. Last Sunday's many arrests are responsible, I believe."

Some Anneyers.

"We have had more trouble with the men than the women today," said a policeman at the beach. "We have sent a number of them home because of their bathing suits, and a few for annoying women in bathing."

Officials at the beach counted 18,000 bathers and 12,000 spectators. The estimates at Wilson beach were 8,000 bathers and 25,000 spectators; 6,500 bathers at North Shore beach and 11,000 spectators; and 5,000 at Diversey beach and 3,000 spectators.

Three Saved by Guards.

Two women and one man were saved from drowning by life guards. At the North Shore Miss Helen Peppke of 430 North Western avenue was seized with an attack of heart trouble and was pulled from deep water by Life Guard Richard Morris. Life Guards Leon Reeves and James Renshaw brought R. S. McIntyre to shore at Wilson avenue. His canoe had overturned in a gust of wind a mile from shore. A lookout on the intake off Wilson beach notified the life savers by telephone.

Renshaw also saved Mrs. Lillian Trippik of 13 North Kedzie avenue, who overturned in a canoe.

Board and Room Free, and It Keeps Him Out o' War

Richard Wagner, who in 1909 was found guilty of striking Philip Cleys, part owner of Manhattan beach, went to jail yesterday in default of $1,000 judgment returned against him after his conviction. He escaped in 1915, but was recaptured and now must remain in jail for twenty-six weeks if Cleys pays $3.50 a week for his keep.

Lake Steamer Again in Trouble.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 21.—Carrying hundreds of week-end excursionists, the famous Pere Marquette No. 3, once on the bottom of Lake Michigan, was towed into port late today with a broken shaft and steam pipe. It came from Ludington and was towed by the Yosemite.

CITY TAKES HAND IN MORGAN PARK 'NEGRO INVASION'

Health Commissioner Robertson took a hand in the fight against a Negro "invasion" of Morgan Park yesterday. At the request of citizens he sent investigators from his office to give the apartment building which was to house the Negroes an examination. It is charged that the building, containing about twenty flats, is in such condition as to be unfit for habitation.

The Colored People's Improvement association, Bessie Ray, chairman, and the Rev. Arthur Rogers of the Colored Baptist church are working with the white population to solve the problem and defeat the "invasion." The block in question is centrally located, with stores underneath.

Volunteers Resent Use of Names in Draft Lists

In a number of cases the draft has included the names of men who already are in the service. Resentment has been expressed following the publication of these names, the point being made that apparently such men have waited to be drafted when as a matter of fact they have been among the first to volunteer. One of these is John McIlvain of 112 Bellevue place. Mr. McIlvain is a member of the officers' training camp. It is explained that the names in the draft were published as a matter of record and not as having any bearing on the present or previous service of the conscript.

Youngsters to Have Field Day in Washington Park

Hundreds of children from over the city will be entertained on Friday, July 27, in Washington park, when a field day will be held by the Federated Daily Vacation Bible schools, which movement is operating fifty-one schools in Chicago through six weeks of summer. There will be a patriotic song chorus of 1,000, embracing the children of nearly every race.

Chicagoan, Wounded, Goes Back to Trenches

There is nothing of the conscientious objector about Emil Thaysen, whose mother lives at 3738 Eddy street. Thaysen left home a year ago, obtaining permission by saying he was going to work on a farm in Canada. But the adventurous spirit overwhelmed him and he joined the Forty-fourth battalion of Canadian troops and went to the French front. He was wounded on May 12 and sent to the Thirteenth general hospital, where he remained for thirty days. Now he is back in the trenches again.

EMIL THAYSEN

H. S. Hockin of Dynamite Fame Weds a Musician

Love, which endured through a prison term, brought about the marriage last night of Herbert S. Hockin, former national secretary of the ironworkers' union, to Miss Fannie Vera Ward of Indianapolis. Hockin was convicted in connection with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building and served a term in Fort Leavenworth. Miss Ward is a musician. Both are former citizens of Indianapolis. The marriage took place in the Evangelical church, at Thirteenth street and Ashland avenue. They have taken a flat in Sixty-third street.

Dr. A. E. Thomas Held to Jury on Murder Charge

Dr. A. E. Thomas, with offices at 1300 West Madison street, was held to the grand jury yesterday on a charge of murder by a coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Frances Rinehardt, 35 years old, 1011 Throop street. Mrs. Rinehardt died in Sceleth hospital following an illegal operation, performed, the police say, by Dr. Thomas in his office.

THE CALL TO LEADERSHIP

SO faithfully is the pledge of prolonged service built into Globe Tires that hardly a tire is ever returned, found even slightly lacking—in long life and great mileage.

While other tires have yielded, inch by inch, to the pressure of big-volume machine-made production, the makers of hand-made Globe Tires have stood their ground unshaken, holding sincerely to the high purpose of putting all the mileage into a tire that science and honest craftsmanship possibly could.

GLOBE TIRES GUARANTEED 6000 MILES
REDUCE THE OPERATING COST OF YOUR CAR

Whether your car cost $500 or $10,000, this long-lived wholesaler of mileage will translate your horse-power into a surpassing whirl of smooth, resilient motion.

The "spring" built tread

The unique GLOBE TREAD is hand made and consists of layer upon layer of pure, sun-dried plantation gum. Built like a multiple-leaved spring, it radiates road shocks instead of transmitting them into the body of the tire.

The double breaker-strip

The double breaker-strip is a thick cushion of rubber-saturated fabric, welded to tread and carcass with adhesive sheets of live gum. It shatters and dissolves the impact of blows, securing the safety of the carefully built Sea Island cotton duck carcass, which is the heart of the tire and the part you cannot see.

The "concrete" bead

The straight-side tire is bound at the rim by a special and almost indestructible bead made of 95 strands of interlaced copper-tin wire reinforced with live gum, on the principle of reinforced concrete, and vulcanized into a resilient cable that prevents anything working its way in and injuring the tire.

These unique features explain Globe Tire preeminence, account for Globe Tire service in long life and great mileage, and justify the Globe conviction that

PITIFUL SCENES CROWD AUSTRIA AS TOLL OF WAR

Food Grows Less, Women Suffer, and People Want Peace.

The following is a report of an interview given to Henry N. Hall of the New York World by Frederic Courtland Penfield, who, as ambassador of the United States to Austria-Hungary, has acquired authoritative information about conditions actually existing inside the dual monarchy. The information thus gathered is here presented, with Mr. Penfield's permission.

ARTICLE I.

The number of war orphans in Hungary alone exceeds 400,000, and misery there is everywhere growing, while the demand for peace rings louder each day. The masses—including the man with the hoe and the widow with children to feed—want peace, and want it quickly. They care not through whose instrumentality it comes so long as it arrives in time to keep them from starving.

Austria's food supply is being so rigidly conserved that the people have now three meatless days in each week, with other days when fats of every sort and butter are forbidden. At best the remaining days are but half ration days. Because the army has commandeered two-thirds of the cows there is a milk and butter famine in the land.

Food Transportation Lacking.

Austria was nearly a year and a half behind Germany in having a food dictator, and one or two experts had tried to organize the work before Gen. Hofer was appointed. A drawback to systematic handling of the food supplies is getting them from farming regions to centers of population. Since the beginning of the war no railway cars have been built and none repaired, while the military campaign on every front has played havoc with rolling stock, as with carts, horses, and cattle. Transportation on any organized scale is consequently impossible.

Last winter Vienna was almost coalless because there were no cars to haul the fuel from the mines.

Rigid Censorship Maintained.

There is no free speech in Austria, and hence the population learns only what is printed in government controlled newspapers. But millions of patient people have concluded that to go on with the struggle can profit nothing. Austria-Hungary has aided in defeating a few neighboring small nations, but cannot budge the big ones. The Russian bear holds 12,000 square miles of Galicia, while Italy has a firm hold on the Trentino and the Isonzo fronts.

There have not been sufficient cars to bring salt in needed quantity from the Salzkammergut, and housewives have had to learn to do without a necessary article of which the dual monarchy has a natural store sufficient to last for centuries.

Diplomats Out of Jobs.

Vienna is filled with a horde of diplomats thrown out of work by the war. A few are performing routine duties in the foreign affairs ministry, some are employed in the war ministry and other public offices, and a considerable number of men of junior grades in the diplomatic and consular services are engaged on the fighting fronts, but mostly in "staff work," or transport or sanitary duty involving no danger.

In the last few months the government has called in for the melting pot all denominations of nickel and copper coins, with a date limit when they become illegal as currency. In their place badly minted iron washers are in circulation.

Church Bells in Melting Pot.

Churches have been levied upon for war metal and hundreds of cracked and ancient bells have found their way to the melting pot. From St. Stephen's cathedral in Vienna, a massive but obsolete bell was removed to be fabricated into cartridge cases. The bishop of Trieste turned all superfluous church bells of his diocese over to be converted into ammunition.

Next to men, Austria-Hungary's most vital need is gold. The depreciation in the world's estimate of the value of Austro-Hungarian currency is a sore topic in official circles, and various theories are brought forward to explain it; but the truth is that the waning value of Austrian paper money is keeping pace with the efflux of the precious metal from the national vaults. In July, 1914, 100 crowns were worth $20.16; by December of the same year their value had fallen to $17.78. June, 1915, saw a further decline to $15.17, which kept steadily on, reaching $13.28 by the end of the year. Now the exchange has fallen to about $9.

Even Dogs Do Their Bit.

Dogs are doing their bit for their countries all over Europe, and especially in Austria-Hungary. The dog has brain and low visibility, and the military authorities make extensive use of man's best friend. It is now no uncommon sight in Vienna to see columns of dog teams trailing through side streets, each in charge of a soldier, en route to a fighting front. Two or four dogs are harnessed to low four-wheeled carts, which have proved a great service in transporting provisions and ammunition.

It is interesting to know that Vienna's birth rate now is but 50 per cent of what it was just prior to the war.

Women Work Everywhere.

"Women to the front!" is the industrial cry, and they are responding with the same alacrity that the men are showing in their military duties. One sees women conductors, women "cabbies," women teamsters, women ditch diggers, women mail carriers, women messengers, women bakers, women plumbers, women butchers, women telegraph linemen, women plowers, women munition workers, women gardeners, women electricians—women everything.

Vienna street lights now are turned off by 9 o'clock in the evening, in the interest of economy, while many are not lighted at all.

Tobacco Sales Limited.

The sale of cigars now is limited to one a day for each customer, and but ten cigarets can be bought at a time. The quality of both has greatly deteriorated, while the cost has doubled.

No fair minded person can withhold his admiration of the way in which Austria-Hungary is dealing with its war prisoners, as well as caring for the host of civilian refugees driven from Galicia and Bukowina by the Russian invasion. The government treats British and French civilians with every possible consideration. Most of them are allowed to continue their vocations under police surveillance, and only 200 or 300 British subjects and French citizens are interned. These men were watched over by the American embassy.

Still Stick to False Hope.

Nobody with any mind can carry on everyday relations with Austrians of the intelligent class without arriving at the belief that Germany and Austria-Hungary are saturated with the theory that they are to form the natural center of a great political and economic system, stretching from the North sea and the Baltic to the Persian gulf, and consequently enveloping Asia Minor, and that this combination is destined to draw in all the states on its fringe. Friedrich Naumann's book, "Mittel-Europa," is the gospel that has brought people to the opinion that this chain of allies made by the conflict will at once rise with the ending of the war to a political and mercantile union of world-controlling importance.

Managers of steamship lines, looking out for business following the end of the war, expect virtually the whole movement of cargoes and passengers to be from America to the dual monarchy when peace is declared. The greater part of the first cargoes will be cotton, rubber, copper, and other staples. The Austro-Americana company is keeping its fleet in readiness for an instant resumption of business, but the problem is how the company can thrive on one way traffic.

Millions Eat Horseflesh.

Horseflesh is today the food of millions. Poor people in Austria-Hungary always have consumed much horseflesh, but not half the quantity as at present. The price is half that of beef or mutton, and the article is claimed not to be unwholesome. The government forces horseflesh shops to plainly advertise their character and to sell no other meat. In Triest and Fiume very poor people have taken to eating donkey meat.

No one knows what Vienna war bread is made of, but it has been getting worse steadily ever since the war began. At first Indian meal, barley, and coarse cereals were mixed in the compound, and probably some potato flour as well. Now it is a hard, black, evil tasting substance which tries the stoutest stomachs.

Vienna Gay Despite War.

To a greater extent than any other war capital, Vienna has conserved its bright and gay aspect as in the happy days before the war. Not fearing the attacks of airships, flying machines, or other uncanny instruments of death, the Danubian metropolis remains brilliantly illuminated in the early evening, and the crowd of strollers is as big as ever.

There is work in Vienna for all who want it. Certain streets are gay with restaurant and music hall life, but there are side streets, many of them, where misery and suffering are rampant. There are charities for soldiers in hundreds of forms, soldiers in the trenches, legless, armless, or blind soldiers, and soldiers in hospitals. But the civilian poor appear almost to be overlooked, and their suffering is great. Countless poor women and children stand in line many hours waiting for the daily distribution of bread or milk.

Four of the 1917 graduates of the University of Chicago have decided to take the places of men who are leaving for the front. Sears-Roebuck has given college women the chance to train for managerial positions to replace men. Esther Harper, Katherine Chamberlain, Bessie Stenhouse, and Bula Chamberlain have taken advantage of the opportunity and have gone to work. It is reported that Margaret MacDonald and Theo Griffiths will start in next week. All the girls were graduated in June from the university.

MORE ICE MUST BE HAD TO SAVE LIVES OF BABIES

Hot Wave Brings Illness and Suffering to the Poor.

Hundreds of Chicago tenement babies suffered yesterday as a result of the heat and lack of ice. An effort was made by the United Charities to get every baby supplied with ice regardless of what it cost, but many infants were forced to go without and to suffer the consequent stomach disorders.

More money is needed to get ice to the babies. The response during the last few days has been better than at any other time this season, but if the tenements are to be free from sick and crying babies it will be necessary to distribute more ice.

3,500 INSANE PATIENTS GIVEN TREAT OF MUSIC

Every one of the 3,500 inmates of the Chicago State Hospital for the Insane, "all except those who could not be induced to keep their clothes on," said one of the doctors, gathered on the lawn in front of the old main building in Dunning yesterday afternoon, where a musical entertainment had been arranged by Mrs. E. Zippert, 3836 Gladys avenue. Grand opera and catchy one-steps all were received with enthusiasm. There was an occasional joining in the chorus when the air was a popular one.

Eager hands reached out for the tobacco and pipes and fruit that were distributed after the program was completed. No one was left out.

The program consisted of violin, vocal, and piano selections by Miss Frances Pick, Harry Louis Boyell, Sol Heller, Miss Esther Geitner, Miss Clara Bing, and Miss Florence Clifford.

VIOLET PHIPPS' WINDOW PROVES ACCUSERS ERRED

Judge Gemmill Cuts Fine $50, but Refuses a New Trial.

Judge William N. Gemmill, on an appeal for a new trial, yesterday reduced the fine of Mrs. Violet Phipps from $200 to $150 after he had found, he stated, that the morals inspectors who raided her apartment at 3624 Grand boulevard had deviated from the exact truth in their testimony. However, he refused a new trial.

The inspectors said they got a room in an apartment building adjoining that of Mrs. Phipps and viewed the proceedings in her domicile by peering across a ten foot areaway. Her apartment window, they said at the trial, was twenty-six inches wide. They sat in their room, the inspectors said, and saw the Negro maid put Mrs. Phipps to bed.

At the hearing of the appeal the window in Mrs. Phipps' apartment was produced and it measured but nine inches across. Additional testimony by the defense showed that it would have been an impossibility for the morals inspectors to sit in chairs in their room and see anything in Mrs. Phipps' apartment because while the floors of the two apartments were on the same level the bottom of the window in Mrs. Phipps' apartment was five feet from the floor.

"Although I found that the morals inspectors did not stick to the truth in some details, the evidence was sufficient to cause me to deny Mrs. Phipps a new trial," said Judge Gemmill.

Mrs. Phipps was adjudged guilty of conducting a disorderly house by a jury sitting before Judge Robinson on July 13.

MRS. JOSEPHINE CLEMENT. KOEHNE PHOTO

An "old folks' evening" is one of the treats in store for visitors to the municipal pier during Friday evening entertainments, Mrs. Josephine Clement, who has the entertainments in charge, announces. It is scheduled for Aug. 3 and is to be a regular New England evening of the middle of the last century variety, including a quilting bee, with pretty girls in hoop skirts and beaux in knee breeches; a husking bee, barn dance, and singing of the good old songs of long ago.

Next Friday night one of the chief features of the program will be group and solo dancing by pupils of the Marmein studios.

DEATH NOTICES.

IN MEMORIAM.

WALDRON—Andrew Frank Waldron, in loving memory of my dearly beloved husband who passed away one year ago today, July 22, 1916.

More and more each day I miss you,
  Friends may think the wound is healed;
But they little know the sorrow
  That lies within my breast concealed.
Peaceful be thy rest, dear husband,
It is sweet to breathe thy name.
In life I loved you dearly,
  In death I do the same.
And your memory is as dear today
As in the hour you passed away.
When days are dark and friends are few,
Dear husband, how I long for you.

OBITUARY.

Miss Anna E. Nicholes to Be Buried Tomorrow

Miss Anna E. Nicholes, who died on Friday at her country home near Traverse City, Mich., will be buried tomorrow at 2 p. m. from Neighborhood house, 6710 May street, where Miss Nicholes had been head resident of the settlement for a number of years.

In addition to her work for the Woman's City club, of which she was one of the founders and the first civic director, Miss Nicholes was in 1913 chosen a member of the Cook county civil service commission, serving as secretary until 1915, when she resigned in order to go on with her work at Neighborhood house. She was also a member of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association, and for some time editor of the woman's department of the Union Labor Advocate, being one of the first persons in the city to encourage the organization of working girls.

Miss Amelia Sears, present director of the Woman's City club and a friend of Miss Nicholes, said yesterday of her: "She has been for years the inspiration and originator of many of the biggest things which have been accomplished for the good of the city—a woman of broad vision; a dreamer who made her dreams real."

Miss Nicholes is survived by her sister, Miss Grace Nicholes.

FRANCIS AUSTIN KENDALL, 64 years old, mayor of Naperville, died yesterday at his home after an illness of about two months. Mr. Kendall was superintendent of the Naperville schools for many years, was a Shriner, and at his death was secretary of the Illinois People's Reading Circle. Besides his widow he leaves three sons and three daughters. The funeral will be held at Naperville tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

C. C. Heisen & Co. Cashier Robbed of $230 Payroll

Two robbers took a pay roll of $230.65 from H. A. Swidler, cashier for C. C. Heisen & Co., yesterday when he went into the engineroom of the building to pay employés. Swidler said he was approached by one William Algiers, a former employé, who held a revolver against him while a confederate took the money.

Boy Tumbles from Dam Over River and Drowns

Robert E. Sites, 7 years old, 3301 Foster avenue, while crossing the dam over the river near Foster avenue yesterday, lost his balance, fell in, and was drowned.

SAXON ROADSTER $495

Speaking of Economy

Saxon Roadster gives 30 miles to the gallon of gasoline

Thirty miles of satisfactory travel to each gallon of gasoline. Isn't this record a factor to consider in your motor car selection? Especially if those 30 miles are as easy and comfortable as automobile construction permits.

Saxon Roadster has definitely established itself with those who are seeking the most miles of satisfactory travel for the least money. With this car it isn't a question of "Can I afford it?" It is a question of "Can I afford to be without it?"

Take out your pencil and figure the time you can save in today's work with Saxon Roadster. Then multiply this by 365 and realize the time you are wasting during the year. And time is the most valuable asset we have today.

Isn't Saxon Roadster, which can be operated day in and day out for the present cost of your car fare, a decided factor in productive economy?

This car fully equipped with Wagner 2-unit starting and lighting system, 3-speed transmission, Continental motor, Atwater-Kent ignition, Fedders radiator, demountable rims and Hyatt bearings is $495 f. o. b. Detroit.

Peerless
All that the name implies

Famous Two-Power-Range Eight
Will Drift with the Zephyr or Race with the Gale

The "Loafing" Range

In its "loafing" range the Peerless Eight will drift with the zephyr.

Like a feather on a fitful summer breeze it will pause and drift or dart this way or that with the changing current of city traffic.

Its "loafing" range suffices for all ordinary driving.

And in its "loafing" range it consumes fuel so sparingly as to shame many a six of much less power—even many a four.

Eighty horsepower—yes—but with real economy.

WELL-NIGH unbelievable contrasts in performance give the Peerless Eight its distinctive charm.

Two power ranges make it at once an economical, ideally soft, smooth, lively car for ordinary driving —or a brute of a car for power and speed when you "have the road" and the need or desire "to burn it."

Let us show you why the Peerless Eight has come to be the choice of the country's most exacting motor car buyers.

The "Sporting" Range

But in the open stretches you can race with the gale in this same soft, smooth Peerless Eight.

You have only to open your throttle wider to utterly change the character of your car.

To see her perform in her "sporting" range, you would think she was built for tremendous speed and prodigious feats of power without regard for the gentler virtues which so distinguish the "loafing" range performance of this same car.

that's an EAGLE on Your Dollar —Not an Ostrich

the eagle is a fighter—he is an American bird.

the ostrich is a quitter. He doesn't belong in this country. We imported him.

it doesn't take much to scare an ostrich, and when he gets scared he sticks his head in the sand. Then it is an easy matter to sneak up behind him and steal his tail feathers for a hat.

you never saw eagle feathers on a hat.

the eagle—the fighter—is an American bird. That is why we put him on your dollar.

your dollars should be fighters—fighting eagles—ever alert for opportunities, and swift to take advantage of them.

the dollar that sticks its head in the sand at the slightest pretext isn't an American dollar—it isn't a fighting dollar. It's a quitter. And quitters never get anywhere in this world.

ten billions of fighting dollars are going to be let loose in this country this year.

ten billions of dollars!

that is $100 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

it is going to be all spent in this country.

at 6%, a fair estimate of the producing power of money, this means $600,000,000 in new wealth.

six hundred millions of dollars of brand new wealth.

you can get your share of it if you are alive and hustling—if your dollars have eagles on them. But you won't get it if your dollars have their heads sticking in the sand, waiting for something to happen.

if your dollars are ostrich dollars, this is not for you.

but if your dollars are eagle dollars, fighting dollars, keen, alert, wide-awake dollars, dollars on the lookout for opportunities, and not sand piles, here is a tip for you—buy a car—now. It will do more to increase your efficiency and earning capacity, and contribute more to your health and happiness than anything else you could buy.

your eagle dollars should buy a car—now, before they go up again. It needn't be a big car, nor an expensive car, but be sure it is the best car in its class. If you are buying a light car, get the best light car—a car fully equipped, an established, efficient, serviceable car. A car that will stand the punishment.

that car is the Maxwell! It is the best light car in the world Absolutely.

invest your eagle dollars in one of these cars and they will come back to you with more eagle dollars.

and other things better than dollars—increased efficiency and a keener appetite for yourself, bright eyes and rosy cheeks for your wife and health and laughter for your children.

O'NEIL GIVES POINTERS FOR TOURNEY PLAY

Golf Expert Calls It Best Method to Improve Game.

HINTS ON PREPARING FOR TOURNAMENT PLAY.

BY GEORGE A. O'NEIL.

[Copyright: 1917: By George A. O'Neil.]

Tournament play has a double value. In the first place, when undertaken in the right spirit and with proper preparation, it is the most effective means the player has of improving his game. Probably no player, whatever his ability, ever finds how well he can play or develops all the skill of which he is capable until he goes in for tournaments. For the sake of improving his game, therefore, every player who cares for excellence should look forward to taking part in these competitions.

In the second place, tournaments are of high value for character building. Every golfer can recall that as he has played he has been struck hundreds of times by the curious resemblances between the accidents and incidents of the game and those of life itself. In fact, many a man with a talent for such thinking will testify that he can find in golf illustrations of all the fundamental experiences and principles of life.

Brings Out Best Qualities.

But golf not only teaches reasons of life, it calls for the exercise of life's finest qualities—courtesy, fairness, honesty, good humor, cheerfulness under difficulties, ability to make a fight against odds of skill, and strength, and luck, and the spirit that refuses to be defeated until the winning putt has actually dropped in the cup.

If the player finds that tournament play is an injury rather than a benefit to him—in regard either to his game or his character he may be pretty sure that the reason is simply that he is not going at the matter rightly and in the proper spirit, and he ought immediately to begin a campaign to remedy the evil and obtain the benefits.

Work Basis of Success.

There are many players who have enough natural ability and a good enough style to become players of the very highest rank if they are willing to work hard enough. The players who lead the golfing world today are not freaks or accidents. Their success is in every case the result of hours upon hours of the hardest kind of effort, as well as of inborn talent for the game.

The general public may not hear of a champion until he flashes into success, and may believe that his success is a kind of miracle or God-sent gift, but there are always keen observers who knew how hard he has worked and who foresaw his success long before it came.

Cites Evans and Ouimet.

Vardon called Chick Evans the best amateur golfer in America when many thought him only a boyish freak whose early promise had no solid basis of fine and permanent skill. And four years before Francis Ouimet met Ray and Vardon in that historic match, Tom McNamara described him to the present writer as a boy who was bound to go to the top.

In these, as in all other instances of great golfers, long-continued, untiring practice covering every point of the game and aiming to take it out of the region of chance and happy accident into the region of accurate control, was the basis of their brilliant public achievements. Players who wish to equal them must work as they did.

How to Work.

These things may be recommended to the ambitious candidate for honors. He should have the instructions and criticisms of a good teacher from the beginning, in order to secure a good style. He must study his own peculiarities and compare his habits and methods with those of his superiors. He must imitate as closely as possible other players who are known to have a good style of play. When the candidate has become a first rate player he must still study himself and others and profit by every lesson he can draw from their successes and failures.

When to Work.

It goes without saying that no man can become a champion by postponing the taking of lessons until he has entered for the tournament. It is only in the [illegible] that a man can master the game and defeat the seasoned expert, even if the heart and hand of a [illegible] heroine are to be his reward.

But it is equally foolish for the player who aims at real success to attend to perfecting his play when he has slumped [illegible] off his game. It may be necessary to give it special attention then, but the time for improvement is, above all, when everything is going well, when the shots come off as they were pictured, when the approaches stop where they should, and the putts, short and long, drop unerringly into the hole.

Lessons at Top of Game.

The reason is that it is then above all other times that perfection can be cultivated, that the training of eye and hand can be made lasting and dependable. Don't wait for the slump. Study your game hard and unceasingly.

The first lessons an instructor gives to

CRAZY KENNEDY, DETECTIVE

Words AND Pictures

BY RING W. LARDNER

CHAPTER 1.

"MORRISON," said Crazy Kennedy, looking up from the telephone book, "how are you feeling this morning?"

I was about to answer when there were two short, snappy rings of the doorbell.

"Ah!" said Kennedy. "A street car conductor."

He had hardly got the words out of his mouth when a gentleman in a blue uniform crept through the keyhole. He looked a bit like Little Jeff.

Looked a bit like Little Jeff.

"I deduce," deduced Kennedy, "that you are working on the surface lines. How do you feel this morning?"

"Fare," replied the conductor. "But listen: There is something on my mind that is worrying me stiff and I have come to ask your advice."

"What other companies are you insured in?" asked Crazy. "Also, have you ever been refused the insurance you asked for, and is there tuberculosis in your family, and do you use tobacco or alcoholic liquors?"

"I am carrying all the insurance I can handle," answered Conductor Joe Gross, for it was he. "What I want now is the solution of this here mystery. I am a patriotic American citizen and consider it my duty to protect the government in every way possible. Well, my run is between the business district and a German settlement."

"Go on," snored Kennedy.

"Well," continued the nickelhound, "I have noticed lately that on one night of every week most of my passengers carry parcels—bulky bundles done up, mostly, in newspapers. This occurs on my last run, which is from downtown to the end of the line, about twelve-thirty at night."

CHAPTER 2.

"What of it?" laughed Kennedy.

"I fear," said our client, "that the parcels contain bombs."

"And on what night," said Kennedy, "does this mysterious thing happen?"

"Always on Saturday night."

"Now," said Kennedy, "let me repeat the facts. On Saturday nights your clients, most of them Germans, always carry home bulky parcels done up in newspapers."

"That is right," agreed the jit fiend.

"And this is Chicago," said Kennedy.

"And this is Chicago."

"Yes," replied our client.

"Well, my dear friend," said Crazy, "I must ask you to get out of here. I and Morrison are going to lunch."

"But how much do I owe you?" inquired the stranger.

"Ten cents," said Kennedy.

"Fare enough," was our client's reply.

EVANS HOOKS UP WITH STEEL MEN

Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., July 21.—[Special.]—Claiming the gallery's attention on the Shawnee Country club's links today was a four ball match in which Charles (Chick) Evans, national amateur and open golf champion, was a contestant. In the tournament proper the semi-final round winners for the main trophy were Harold B. McFarland of Huntington Valley and E. C. Clarey of Woodbury.

The four ball affair had Evans, Eugene Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel company; B. M. Mackal, assistant sales manager, and B. Warren Corkran, as principals. Corkran and Grace were partners, opposing Evans and Mackal. The latter combination won handily. Evans had 74, a fine score, considering it was his first effort here. His card was as follows:

Out ....4 5 4 4 4 5 5 3 4—38
In ....5 4 3 5 4 4 3 5 3—36—74

Evans intends to play here tomorrow, and will then have to return to Chicago.

Oldfield Beats De Palma in Two of Three Contests

Providence, R. I., July 21.—Barney Oldfield won two out of three races from Ralph De Palma at the Narragansett Speedway today. Oldfield won the twenty-five mile race in 22:54⅘ and the ten mile in 8:14 1-4. De Palma took the fifteen mile in 13:51 3-5.

MEET HONORS TO RAY AND FALL

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 21.—[Special.]—Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C. and E. H. Fall of the Chicago A. A. and Oberlin sensation, had little trouble in carrying off the events in which they were entered at the annual press meet at Forbes field this afternoon.

In the two mile race Ray gave an excellent exhibition and defeated Grove Caughey, P. A. A. star, by more than 100 yards, in spite of a 100 yard handicap awarded Caughey. Ray's time was 9:38 4-5.

Fall ran the one mile race and was pitted against five local speeders. Without any trouble at all he overcame the handicaps of four starters in the first two laps, but it was not until the final lap that he was able to show his heels to Hepler, of the Westinghouse club.

Fall's final spurt took him over the line forty yards to the good. He made the distance in 4:25. The time was excellent, despite the fact that at no time was the visitor forced to really extend himself.

Litchfield, Ill., July 21.—Ray Schalk, star catcher for the Chicago White Sox, is drafted. He registered at Litchfield and was among the first 100 drawn.

CROWD OF 15,000 SEES RED CROSS SPORT CARNIVAL

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Fifteen thousand persons attended the military and athletic carnival staged by the Twenty-fifth ward Democratic organization at Weeghman park yesterday for the Red Cross. According to officials of the organization above $3,000 was raised for the fund.

A number who bought tickets did not attend the carnival, and Harry Gibbons, who was in charge of the event, said it would be a week or ten days before the actual receipts are known. North side society girls volunteered their services to sell flowers and programs and President Weeghman of the Cubs gave his park gratis for the occasion.

Cops Win Tug of War.

The tug of war contest between teams representing the police department and the Western Electric company was the feature of the athletic program. The police won in two straight pulls. The coppers won the first pull by ten inches in three minutes and the second by two and one-half inches in the same time. The police team was easily the better and could have won the second pull by a larger margin if pressed.

There were races between boy scouts and members of the Second infantry. A band of 200 pieces from the Great Lakes naval station and two technical companies under the command of Chief Quartermaster Parfitt gave an interesting exhibition of drilling to show the public what is being done at the station at Lake Bluff.

Flag Raising and Music.

Following the drill an exhibition of flag raising was staged and when the Stars and Stripes were raised to the top of the pole the naval band played the "Star-Spangled Banner," all rising to pay tribute. Miss Flo Jacobson sang and Miss Francis Kennedy, with a band accompaniment, sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The Second Illinois infantry, under command of Capt. Adams, put on a sham battle and boy scouts of the ward went through a drill with wands. The ball game between the Ragen Colts and Rogers Park resulted in a victory for the latter, 2 to 1. Eddie Stack and Shorty Des Jardien, both of big league fame, took part in part of the proceedings. The game scheduled between the old timers was called off because enough of them did not put in an appearance to organize two teams.

Summary of Events.

Following is the summary of the athletic events:

75 yd. dash, boy scouts—Won by Langmayer, Troop 856; Bremer, Troop 836, second; Hanlon, Troop 836, third. Time, :09 3-5.

Relay race around bases for boy scouts—Won by Troop 856; Troop 838, second; Troop 873, third. No time taken.

Tug of war — Won by Chicago police [Magnussen, anchor; Welland, Zeller, Schubert, Schmidt]; two straight pulls from Western Electric Co.

Firemen's lift, boy scouts—Won by Troop 811; Troop 856, second. Two entries.

FRESHMEN TABOO

Wisconsin Opposes Any Change of Eligibility Requirements in Football This Fall.

Madison, Wis., July 20.—[Harvey Woodruff, Sporting Editor Tribune.]—Regarding the proposition of freshmen taking part in varsity athletics this fall, I heartily agree with Coach Murphy of Northwestern on this matter. I think that it would be a great mistake to let down our eligibility rules during the war period.

Intercollegiates are now on a sound basis and as long as the conference schools have in attendance 300 men above the freshman year we all certainly should be able to find eleven men to play. The whole standard of athletics will be somewhat lower, but that is no argument in my mind for going back to the middle ages and allowing the proselyting which would undoubtedly follow the abolition of the freshman rule.

Another point that I would make is this: The varsity letter at all schools stands for a certain amount of scholarship because of the one year rule and the scholarship requirement. It would hardly be fair to the old varsity men to have the letter worn by a youngster who had not qualified as they had done.

I think that any agitation in the conference toward the abolition of this rule is against the best interest of college sport. T. E. JONES,
Chairman Athletic Department U. of W.

FORCED TALLY HANDS COMBAT TO BRAVES, 2-1

Smith's Circuit Swat Clinches Game; 'Rabbit' Star.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Boston, Mass., July 21.—[Special.]—One base on balls by Al Demaree defeated the Cubs in the second game of their series with the Braves today, 2 to 1. That lone pass was given to Jesse Barnes, his slab opponent, with the bases full and two men out in the second inning. It forced home a tally which proved fatal.

Red Smith's home run in the fourth was the winning blow, but it would no more than have tied the count but for the free ticket for which Jesse worked Al in the earlier chapter.

Only five hits were made off Demaree and he gave no more bases on balls, while the Cubs tapped Barnes for a total of nine safeties without being able to beat two runs.

Rabbit Makes Great Plays.

Two great plays by Maranville made a difference in the score. The Rabbit stabbed a low liner from Flack's bat for a heartbreaking double play in the fifth inning when the Cubs had two on and only one out. Again in the eighth the Rabbit stopped a possible run by scooping a very wild throw to stop a steal.

After the fourth inning, when a home run and three bagger were made off Demaree in quick succession, the Braves did not get a man to first base, but the Cubs kept getting weaker with the stick and only two of them reached first in the last four innings.

Story of Forced Tally.

Demaree forced the winning run on Boston in the second round. Koney and Smith ripped off singles to right with one down. Rawlings flied out, but Tragesser poked a single across the slab and filled the bases. Barnes worked his opponent for a pass, which forced Koney to score. Maranville flied the side out.

The Cubs tied that run in the fourth, which Mann broke open with a single. Doyle and Merkle flied out without advancing him, so Mann stole second. Williams responded with a three bagger into the corner of right field, scoring the run. Deal flied.

Smith untied that knot in the fourth with a home run through right center after one was gone. Rawlings perished, then Tragesser tried to duplicate Smith's feat on a drive past Williams, but Sy retrieved the pill in time to nail Tragesser at the pan with the help of a swell relay by Mann.

Double Play Kills Chance.

The Cubs got a chance in the fifth when Wilson and Demaree singled, with only one out, but luck broke against them. Flack's liner was pinched by Maranville close to the ground, and Wilson was doubled up before he could get back to second. A double by Doyle, with one out, in the sixth gave the visitors another opening, but Merkle and Williams skied.

Demaree retired three Braves in a row in the fifth, sixth, and seventh, but was taken out in the eighth to let Wolter pop out for him, without affecting the result, but it required a swell play to retire the Cubs in that round. Mann singled with two out, and started to steal second, drawing a low throw from Tragesser. Maranville scooped the ball off the ground with one hand and slapped it on the runner.

Ouimet Will Be Placed Among First in U. S. Army

Boston, Mass., July 21.—Francis Ouimet, western amateur golf champion, former national amateur and open champion, is certain to be one of Uncle Sam's new army. His number is 2166, which was the one hundred and twenty-seventh number to be drawn at Washington. But he is the twenty-sixth man who must report in Brookline, his place of registration. There are no grounds on which Ouimet can claim exemption.

Notes

One game today between the same teams.

It is likely Reb Russell and Ernie Shore will be the slab men for the battle today.

It has not been decided when the tie game of yesterday will be played off. A postponed game already is booked for tomorrow, an open date.

Bottles were pegged from the left field bleacher after Weaver and Walsh had their little bumping episode in the tenth. Evidently the crowd wanted to let Walsh know it was mad.

Buck Weaver and Jimmy Walsh started to mix in the tenth when Walsh bumped Buck rather hard as he was tagged out at third. The crowd was sore at Walsh all the rest of the game, but he got a two bagger in the twelfth and a triple in the fourteenth, so he wasn't worried.

It isn't likely the Sox will be crippled by the army draft. Weaver and Jenkins were drawn in the early numbers and possibly Jenkins will have to serve. Weaver will claim exemption, being married as well as supporting his father. Risberg, Leibold, Lynn, Wolfgang, and Eddie Collins learned yesterday their numbers had been drawn away above the 2,000 mark.

Buck Weaver possibly established a baseball record in the fifteenth inning when he fouled off seventeen balls before he finally flied out. It got so bad that they ran out of balls and had to stop play. Buck sat down on the ground to rest and Eddie Collins, who was following Buck, went back and sat on the bench. For a time it looked as if darkness would stop the game before Buck could get out.

Notes

Boston, Mass., July 21.—[Special.]—Off day tomorrow.

Two more games with the Braves Monday and Tuesday will finish the second eastern trip of the Cubs.

Only two of Mitchell's tribe are not worrying about what to do about the army draft. They are Demaree and Zeider, both of whom are over 30.

President Tener of the National league was among the spectators. He was on his way to spend Sunday at his summer home near here and stopped off to watch his umpires work.

This made five straight wins for the Braves over the Cubs, and just evens up the season's series. The Cubs beat the Braves five straight before losing a game.

The proposed exhibition game arranged for the Cubs at a Rhode Island shore resort tomorrow was called off on receiving word from President Tener that the team there was using an ineligible player.

MANN WILL QUIT CUBS AUG. 5 FOR CALL TO COLORS

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Boston, Mass., July 21.—[Special.]—Leslie Mann will be the first loss the Cubs will sustain because of the war. He received orders today to report on Aug. 5 to Y. M. C. A. headquarters in Oklahoma City to be commissioned as physical director of the Oklahoma camp of conscripts.

Mann recently enlisted with the army department of the Y. M. C. A. for this kind of work. He will have charge of all branches of physical departments at the training camp, including calisthenics, baseball, football, and other athletic sports for the rookies. Mann qualified for his new work by his success in training Y. M. C. A. basketball teams at Springfield, Mass., and other places during his winter vacations.

Five members of the Cub roster practically are certain of being able to complete the season. They are Hendrix, Prendergast, Flack, Elliott, and Deal. They obtained their final registration numbers from home and made eager search of the early draft figures without finding theirs.

Today they all discovered their numerals among those who are not likely to be called to arms in the first half million.

Six Braves have secured the dope on their chances and all are outside the limit expected to be used to obtain the first contingent for training in the field.

DARKNESS ENDS LEADERS' FIGHT WITH COUNT 5-5

Each Side Scores in 14th Round; 22,000 See Struggle.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Fifteen innings of play and a score of 5 to 5 was the show staged by Chicago's White Sox and Boston's Red Sox in the third combat of their crucial series. Darkness finally ended it with honors even, and about 22,000 persons realized they had seen a baseball battle such as occurs only once in several years.

Had it not been for one awful inning the Sox experienced in their defensive work, it is likely they would have won in regulation time and everybody would have been home in time for supper. In the sixth round the south siders blew all to pieces and flung the ball into the coop and out by the pavilions with the most careless abandon, and Boston got a cluster of three runs, not one of which was deserved. At the time the blowup started each side had one tally.

Sox Tie It in Hurry.

However, the White Sox recuperated from their fall and came right back in their half of the same inning and knocked in three runs, every one of which was earned by splendid stickwork. That tied the count again, and then the two teams settled into the long grinding battle for the winning run.

It looked as if Boston had it in the fourteenth, when a base on balls to Agnew and a three bagger by Walsh drove in one run. No one would have given a dime for the chances of the Sox right there, but once more they came back. Swede Risberg was first up in the last half of the round, and he drove a terrific liner to the wall in left center for three bases, and after Schalk had fanned, Byrd Lynn went up as pinch hitter and bounced one down to the shortstop, which permitted Risberg to tear home with the tying run again.

Ump Finally Calls Quits.

Then the battle for the winning run continued, with darkness threatening to stop it at any time, and after two more rounds had been fought Umpire Dinneen decided it wasn't fair to all concerned to let the thing go any longer, so he called time and the players left the field with honors even.

All through the contest there were stirring plays which stopped many an opening for one or the other of the two combatants to break up the fight. Chicago used three pitchers during the affair and Boston used two. The game began with Red Faber on the slab, opposed by Dutch Leonard, but after his mates blew up in the sixth it was time for Red to give his place at bat to a pinch hitter. Immediately the rally was started that tied the count again and Dave Danforth came forth as hurler to continue.

Dave stuck until the visitors tapped him for that one run in the fourteenth, then he gave way to a pinch hitter and once more the count was tied, whereupon Claude Williams took the slab job and toiled to the finish.

Ruth Finishes for Boston.

Leonard stuck to the fight until nine innings had been played and then he didn't appear any more. Babe Ruth, the giant southpaw, took his place and buzzed the ball over in his most terrible fashion, about the only dent made in it being the three baser hit by Risberg in the fourteenth, which permitted the Sox to tie the score again.

A double by J. Collins, a sacrifice by Weaver, and a single by E. Collins got the first run. A double by J. Collins, an infield hit by Weaver, a triple by Jackson, and an infield hit by Felsch got the cluster of three in the sixth. Risberg's triple and Lynn's fielder's choice got the last tally in the fourteenth.

E. Collins' error paved the way for Boston's first run in the second, and in the sixth Jackson dropped a fly ball, Faber heaved one to the pavilion, and Weaver flung one away out in the corner, and those awful things, with a couple of singles and a sacrifice fly, gave Boston three. The final tally was clean, for Agnew walked and came clear home on Walsh's triple into the semi-darkness of right center.

16,000 TICKETS OUT FOR MATCH OF GOLF EXPERTS

Gardner Paired with Miss Sterling and Evans with Local Girl.

BY JOE DAVIS.

Having circulated a total of 16,000 tickets, officials of the women's branch of the Navy league expect to make the golf match at the Onwentsia club next Saturday afternoon one of the banner events of the season. To have the two national champions on opposite sides, Miss Alexa Stirling of Atlanta will team with Robert A. Gardner, former national titleholder, while Miss Elaine Rosenthal of Ravisloe, holder of the north and south championship and also the Florida title, will be paired with Charles Evans Jr., national amateur and open champion.

To add interest it has been decided to play a Scotch foursome, in which it is possible to win two points at each hole, one for winning the hole and the other for low total on the combined scores of each two players. This will bring Miss Stirling and Miss Rosenthal into more direct competition. The Ravisloe star has been playing finely, having recently set a record of 85 at Midlothian and a new mark of 84 at Flossmoor.

Played Here Two Years Ago.

Miss Stirling's last appearance here was in the national championship at Onwentsia two years ago, when she was defeated by Mrs. Clarence Vanderbeck of Philadelphia at the twenty-first hole in the semi-final round. Tickets for the match can be purchased from Mrs. Louis M. Stumer, women's section of the Navy league, 1402 Stevens Building.

Glen View.

E. M. Barnhart won the main honors of the members' tournament at Glen View, defeating Christy Brown 1 up in the first flight. In the other flights the results were: Second flight, R. E. Wilsey defeated F. A. Rehm, 2 and 1; third flight, J. H. Hall Jr. defeated R. M. [illegible], 4 and 3; fourth flight, A. F. Stevenson defeated Brown Pusey, 6 and 4; fifth flight, Perkins B. Bass defeated C. M. Goodwin, 3 and 1; sixth flight, T. H. McInerney defeated G. B. Foster, 4 and 3.

Results in the finals of the beaten fours were: J. E. Nyman defeated F. H. Scott, 1 up; W. B. Sawyer defeated J. C. Bannister, 1 up; N. H. Bokum defeated D. Fiske, 3 and 2; C. R. Latham defeated H. B. Riley, 2 up; F. C. Dakin won by default.

Ridgemoor.

At Ridgemoor C. H. Remien put the magic touch to his driver and holed out at the fourteenth, 178 yards, from the tee. In the eighteen hole handicap match against par M. E. Franklin won, finishing 3 up. Results in the second match round of the age limit tournament:

TOURNEY PLAY BEST AID TO THE GOLFER, SAYS GEORGE O'NEIL

a player are harder for both than the later ones, even if the player has already a good style. In the later lessons the instructor probably needs to make only an occasional suggestion; in the earlier ones he has first of all to study every feature of the candidate's style of play.

How Long to Practice.

A few comparatively short periods distributed through the day are better than one or two very long periods of practice. In learning many games it has been found by experiment that progress is most rapid when the periods of practice do not exceed fifteen minutes.

No accurate tests have been made for golf, but the periods may undoubtedly be longer, since the practice is usually broken into by the intervals of waiting for the caddy to find and fetch back the balls.

From forty to sixty minutes seems, therefore, a reasonable length for a practice period. After a longer time the nerves, as well as the muscles, tire, and the nerves the sooner. Tired nerves do not receive impressions as accurately or store them up as effectively as nerves that are fresh and vigorous.

What Shall One Study?

After the elements of the strokes have been mastered the constant aim of the candidate should be to obtain perfect control of distance and direction. Golf is a game of skill. It is won almost inevitably by the player who has the greatest accuracy.

In practice, therefore, the player should, before making each shot, picture exactly the shot he wishes to make—the flight, curve of the ball through the air, or its path on the green, and its final resting place. This will help to secure the exact result desired and will establish the habit of picturing exactly the shot that is desired.

If in making a putt you can in imagination see the exact path that the ball ought to take and can picture it as dropping duly into the hole you are likely to make your putt. If you picture the ball as rimming the cup it will—more likely than not—rim it.

Confidence in Putting.

In talking the other day at Midlothian with Francis Ouimet and Tom Macnamara about putting, I was interested to hear from Tom, who is widely known as one of the most unfailingly accurate putters that ever lived, his secret of accurate putting. It depends entirely, he said, on confidence; believe that you can hole a putt and nine times out of ten you can. I ventured to say that the real secret is picturing the shot properly.

In the special practice which precedes a tournament the player should not practice too long, and he should always stop while he is still playing in his best form and the shots are running as they should. Some persons say this is in order that the player may go into the match with confidence in himself. This is true and connected with it is the fact that it is then easier to picture his shots as successful.

If the tournament is on a course unfamiliar to you, do not be satisfied with merely playing over it once. Find its difficult hazards and its tricky greens and, with several balls, try shot after shot until you know each difficulty and how best to deal with it.

"Don't Try Too Hard."

In tournament play itself, your main difficulty will probably lie in yourself and will come from trying too hard. Even a momentary impulse of this nature is sometimes fatal, for it results in tightening the forearms and hindering the swing.

If you have planned to enter an important tournament and find that it is looming up as too important and making you nervous, try to destroy your sense of its importance. You can do this partly by the method of suggestion explained farther on and partly by entering another less important tournament meanwhile, and playing off your nervousness.

Above all things try not to think of yourself. Don't imagine that everybody is thinking about you and remarking on your awkwardness—or even your skill, for the latter is almost as fatal as the former.

Golf

DONALD EDWARDS was the star at Midlothian, scoring a 74 in the qualifying round of the members' class tournament. Dr. Paul Hunter was second, 76—1—75. The members, who had been denied the use of the course during the western classic except in desultory fashion, turned out in force. Pairings for the first round, with qualifying scores:

Class A—D. Edwards [74—scratch—74] vs. P. Hunter [76—1—75]; C. W. Booth, bye.

Class B—Irving T. Hartz [88—13—75] vs. W. J. Black [86—11—75]; R. Fitzgerald [88—13—75] vs. L. B. Burr [87—12—75]; F. M. Bostwick [93—11—82] vs. W. F. Hoyt [88—10—78]; H. B. Walden [95—14—81] vs. F. M. Warden [90—14—76].

Class C—W. D. Hurlbut [95—20—75] vs. D. B. Colbert [92—19—73]; L. W. Pitcher [96—18—78] vs. F. B. Houston [91—17—74]; W. A. Graff [93—16—77] vs. W. B. Edgar [93—16—77]; F. A. Helmer [93—16—77] vs. R. A. Dugan [96—20—76].

South Shore.

With a card of 35—37—72 and aided by a handicap of 7, J. H. Johnston won the handicap against bogey event in Class A at South Shore, finishing 5 up. In Class B A. R. Camp and William Buss tied with 5 up, each having a handicap of 13, while J. G. Drennan, with 15, finished 2 up in Class C. The second round for the class trophies was also decided and resulted as follows: Mosser trophy—J. F. Sheehy and J. P. Barrett, all even; H. M. Sedgwick defeated J. L. Sheehy, 3 and 1; F. H. Lloyd defeated F. T. Hamlin, 5 and 4; C. H. Scholle defeated C. F. Wiley, 2 up.

White trophy—William Buss defeated F. R. Jenkins, 3 and 1; A. R. Camp defeated J. W. Donchie, 2 and 1; C. A. Dunbar defeated J. J. Andrews, 2 and 1; S. F. Wilson and H. B. McNeal, all even.

Ridge.

George M. Murray, a son of Auld Scotia, won the President's trophy at Ridge, defeating C. S. Pillsbury, 3 and 2. In the penultimate round for the Banker's trophy, L. W. Sennett defeated A. Patterson, 4 and 3, and W. S. Graver defeated G. W. Critchell, 3 and 2.

In the second round for the Vice President's trophy, H. W. Davis defeated H. C. Olmstead, 2 and 1; W. F. Mackey defeated W. F. Momeyer, 1 up; D. R. King defeated G. M. Lawrence, 1 up, and G. W. Oliver defeated S. E. Thomasson, 1 up.

Worden trophy, first round—M. La Bosquat defeated C. A. Nash, 3 and 2; H. G. Speer defeated E. A. Oliver, 2 and 1; F. M. Baker defeated R. J. White, 3 and 2; W. S. Kline defeated P. Peters, 3 and 2; H. E. Baxter defeated J. H. Whitely, 3 and 2.

Edgewater.

J. C. Bolter, 84—17—67, wound up with low gross and net scores in the eighteen hole medal handicap at Edgewater. H. D. Fargo, 90—18—72, had second net, while H. L. Winters, 88—15—73, registered second low gross and third net figures. In the finals for the Liberty tournament, Class B, C. P. Myers defeated P. T. Starck by 3 up and 1 to play. J. Demerath defeated G. F. Douaire in Class C, 2 and 1.

Wheaton.

Close matches resulted in the first round for the club trophies at Wheaton. Summary: Class A—H. A. Schroyer defeated F. M. Blount, 1 up; Parker Nall defeated B. F. Newhall, 1 up; J. F. Chambers defeated H. W. La Rue, 2 and 1.

Flossmoor.

A new woman's record for the rejuvenated course and another ultra birdie were the features at Flossmoor. Miss Elaine Rosenthal at Ravisloe established the former with an 84. Miss Ernestine Pearce had held the record with an 87. Maj. E. B. Tolman went into the hall of fame by holing a mashie shot at the seventh green, 127 yards.

C. L. Dougherty, 100—28—72, won the 18 hole medal handicap for classes A, C, and D combined, while W. H. Rockwood won in class B with 89—10—79. S. F. Moulton and C. Wouters won by default in the Cheever cup event.

Chicago.

With a card of 90—15—75 F. O. Wetmore won the Saturday cup at the Chicago Golf club and became the season's first tautologist in the week end classic.

Calumet.

Grandfathers had their day at Calumet, in the first match round of their tournament, with the following results: J. B. Towle defeated W. H. Leonard, 2 up; G. C. Fry defeated A. H. Whitsleben, 2 and 1; R. S. White defeated E. C. Towle, 3 and 2; W. A. Cockrell defeated W. M. Timberlake, 2 up; E. M. Ashcraft defeated A. F. Chamberlain, 2 and 1; D. W. Heath defeated William Hough, 3 and 2.

Beverly.

J. M. Taft demonstrated his caloric propensities at Beverly by defeating R. L. Whitton, 2 and 1, in the final for the Baker trophy. In the eighteen hole medal handicap J. H. Levis registered 85—23—62 for low net score, but failed to qualify for the club championship.

The following qualified for the club championship: Dr. W. D. Mahoney, 153; J. A. Mudd, 154; H. R. Shollenberger, 158; Dr. B. A. Duffy, 159; C. R. Terry, 160; W. H. Eagle, 165; F. P. Carter, 165; S. K. Milligan, 166; Scott Joy, 168; C. G. Littel, 168; J. R. McKee, 170; M. A. Donohue, 171; E. R. Green, 173; P. J. Lawlor, 176; J. M. Taft, 177; R. L. Whitton, 177.

La Grange.

Three years of waiting and a liberal handicap enabled J. A. Walker to win the 1914 Vice President's trophy at La Grange. Selecting the choice eighteen of thirty-six holes, Walker had 88—32—56. Second round matches for the President's cup were decided as follows: H. C. Simon defeated E. N. Anderson, 3 and 2; W. B. Daniels defeated C. M. Denise, 2 and 1; R. T. Franklin defeated H. C. Dewey, 3 and 1; J. S. Perry defeated R. T. Llewellyn, 3 and 2.

Skokie.

The second round for the Half Century cup was decided at Skokie. H. M. Anning defeated W. Girling, 1 up in 20 holes, while the contest between G. W. Tracy and H. Cushman was postponed. A. F. Towne defeated A. A. Beebe, 1 up, and L. R. Sherman won from H. P. Pope by 3 and 1.

HAMILTON SWIMMERS QUIT WATER TEAM FOR WAR SERVICE

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Swimming coaches and followers of water sports who regarded the Hamilton club team of Chicago as antagonists to be feared wherever entered during the last season will have little to fear from natators wearing the Hamilton colors in any near future contests. The Hamilton team is scattered to the four winds.

This team was made up almost exclusively of sport loving boys under 21 years old, and their youthful prowess earned two straight Central A. A. U. junior titles and a host of other honors. When the call to war came the squad practically quit competition to enter the more important contest against Germany.

Briton Joins U. S. Infantry.

Clement Browne, himself a British subject, born nineteen years ago in the Barbados, joined the United States infantry, depriving the team of its biggest cog, or log if you choose. Lester B. White, son of the swimming coach at the University of Chicago, chose the cavalry. When he went the Hamilton club was without the best young breast stroke star in the country. Gordon Carveth, fancy diving junior champion of the Central A. A. U., also enlisted in the cavalry. He wished to be near his chum, White, but got into another regiment and now is quartered in Arizona, while White is in New Mexico.

The navy claimed Coach Harry Hazlehurst, who had whipped together the most promising lot of young swimmers ever gathered in a team. "Harry," as he is familiarly known by every one in the swimming game in Chicago, enlisted with the rank of chief yeoman at the Great Lakes naval training station, but has not yet been called out. He enlisted with the understanding he was to be swimming instructor in chief to the entire Great Lakes post of 8,000 or 10,000 young bluejackets.

Tully "First to Fight."

Joe Tully, a back stroke swimmer, enlisted direct at a navy recruiting station, and was last heard from by his mates somewhere on the Atlantic. Bayard McClanahan enlisted with his coach as a chief yeoman in the naval reserve.

The United States marine corps slogan of "First to Fight" did not escape the eye of the young blood in the Hamiltonians' team, and Roger Weld, breast swimmer, enlisted in the soldiers of the sea. When last word came from him he was at a Carolina port and fidgeting for fear some one might get to France ahead of him.

Out of a list of about twenty-five swimmers, ranging in age from 16 to 28 years, thirteen Hamilton club boys are already enrolled in war service. The officers' training camps, national guard, and various other arms of the national forces attracted others, while the list was further swelled by members of the Hamilton Club Seals, the live organization of regular club members, which is really a club of the swimming enthusiasts within the club itself.

Here Is Roll of Honor.

Legg Wins Gopher Title; Champ for Seventh Time

St. Paul, Minn., July 21.—For the seventh time Harry Legg of Minikahda is Minnesota state golf champion. In the final round of the tournament at White Bear he defeated Fred Mahler of the Town and Country club, 4 and 3, after a match which in the earlier rounds was a seesaw affair. Legg regains the title which was won last year by Dudley Mudge of St. Paul, who is now in the aviation service.

IS IT TOO MUCH?

Why our investment in OWL leaf alone totals over $1,000,000

Men are learning that a "factor of safety"—a little added security—is a great thing. Makes no difference whether it's a house, a bridge, an automobile, or—

Yes, even your 5c OWL Cigar or WHITE OWL at 6c. We call these two "The Million Dollar Cigars." Why "Million Dollars"?

Because in OWL storerooms there always lies aging—one million dollars or more invested in excellent tobacco leaf.

To make a cigar like OWL, tobacco leaf must have—Time—Time to age and become fragrant and mellow.

How much Time? Our idea is 1 to 2 years, depending on the characteristics of the crop the leaf comes from. All leaf that goes to an OWL Cigar-maker has therefore an average age of 18 months.

Now, leaf costs money. Time costs money.

To buy OWL leaf and then let it lie idle for 18 months' time requires quite an investment.

In the case of OWL, that investment totals $1,000,000—often more.

Is it too much?

It would be easy to cut that investment considerably. OWL and WHITE OWL would still offer unusual value. But they wouldn't have their Million-Dollar "Factor of Safety."

That is why we call OWL and WHITE OWL "The Million Dollar Cigars."

Try the shape you like best. Both have the same dependability—the same fine smoking qualities.

COBB AND BUSH UPSET YANKEES WITH BIG STICK

Tigers Take Opener, 4-3, in Ten Innings, and the Second Game, 11-2.

Detroit, Mich., July 21.—Detroit won both games from New York, taking the first, 4 to 3, in ten innings, and hammering three pitchers to win the second, 11 to 2. Bush was the star in the first contest. He scored three runs and drove in the deciding tally with a single. Peck was put out of the game for disputing a decision at second base.

In the second contest Detroit piled up a seven run lead in the second inning and Mitchell was never in danger. Cobb made four hits and a sacrifice in five times up. In the first game he got two triples. Scores:

Whitman Wins Cue Match.

In the three cushion tournament at Sutton's Whitman [28] defeated Ault [28], 28 to 19. Ault and Claybert play tomorrow night.

MELLOR, FAR IN LEAD, FELLED BY THE HEAT; LOSES TEN MILE RUN

Charles Mellor, the veteran marathon runner of the Logan Square A. C., dropped in his tracks from the heat when he looked like an easy winner in the ten mile run at the Cook County Democratic picnic, and Frank Gillespie of the Illinois Sportsman's club passed him for first place.

The runners plodded from the loop out to Brand's park over northwest side pavements and finished with a lap on the picnic grounds. Sixteen of the twenty-two starters who left the county building at 1 o'clock completed the grind.

Mellor jumped into an early lead while the runners were dodging motor cars in the loop. He won a silk shirt for being the first man out of the loop and another fancy garment for leading at the halfway mark.

Heat Too Much for Mellor.

Mellor cut loose with a long stride and as the runners neared North avenue he was two blocks to the good. Two hundred feet before crossing North avenue to win a third silk shirt he faltered and fell unconscious in the street before assistance arrived. It was half an hour later before he recovered from the heat prostration.

Gillespie, who was running second at the time, took the lead and never was headed. He finished the ten mile jaunt fairly fresh in spite of the blistering sun. The time was 1:03:24.

Honath, Gillespie's teammate, was a good second and Clarizio of the Greek Olympic club pulled third place. Thirteen other bedraggled runners survived the heat and followed in close order. Gillespie won a silver cup and the prize for leading at North avenue.

All Finishers Get Medals.

All of the runners who finished were awarded medals for the hot afternoon's work. The order of finish:

Gillespie, Illinois Sportsman's club.
Honath, Illinois Sportsman's club.
Clarizio, Greek Olympic club.

Woods and Waters By Larry St. John

SPOT TAIL: LIFE HISTORY OF A BASS.

> This story of a small mouth black bass, which will appear in three parts, is true to life as far as the natural history is concerned. The writer, when a boy, was among the first to take up the artificial propagation of black bass. Observations made then, and later, have given him a thorough knowledge of Brer Bass and his ways.

SPOT TAIL first became aware of life and its problems while he was clustered, with a whole swarm of his tiny brothers and sisters, in the shallow water of a hatchery pond. During the day, while the sun shone bright and warm, the whole cluster stayed near the surface, because the water felt so "comfy" there. Toward evening, as the sun traveled downward, the surface water became chilled, so the whole swarm allowed themselves to sink nearer the bottom. This is something Spot Tail and his whole family would experience the rest of their days—the seeking of an equable temperature.

This went on for several days while the baby bass were absorbing the food that they carried in the tiny yolk sacks attached to their bodies. Later, as this sack became absorbed, Spot Tail felt the first gnawings of hunger—something else he would carry through life. This hunger caused the cluster to break up, and they scattered into the nearby weeds. Here they found an abundance of minute crustacea or crablike forms of life.

To the human eye these "water lice" are tiny, indeed, but to Spot Tail they looked like a piece of home made bread, buttered and sugared, does to a hungry boy just home from fishing the creek. Besides, they aroused in Spot Tail a raging desire to kill—still another thing that would be a part of life as a bass knows it. He attacked them savagely, and every one that he snapped up and swallowed made him feel immensely pleased with himself.

Although Spot Tail did not know it, he was born in a breeding pond of a state fish hatchery, and the first time he felt the dread terror of the upstanding being with the voice like thunder was when the pond he lived in was seined. He heard them coming, so he hid in the thickest clump of weeds he could find and lay very still, burrowing his head deep into the oozy mud of the bottom. Suddenly he felt the meshes of the seine pushing him from his hiding place and, panic stricken, he dashed forward as fast as his little fins and tail would carry him.

Before he knew how it happened Spot Tail was lifted from the water and found himself struggling in the seine with hundreds of his brothers and sisters. He didn't like it a bit, as he could hardly breathe—something seemed to be holding his gill covers tightly together, and, besides, the shaking was far from pleasant.

The men holding the seine began to shake them all into big milk cans and Spot Tail was accidentally shaken to the ground. One of the men picked him up.

"Looks kinda like fungus on this one's tail, Bill," thundered a voice.

"No, I guess not," was the answer, equally as thunderous.

"Well, here's some new fungus dope we got from headquarters and we'll try it on 'im."

Spot Tail felt a stinging sensation and gave a flip that threw himself out of the unpleasantly warm and rough hand that held him. Fortunately, he landed in the can. My! How good that water felt as he pumped it in and out of his gills. It seemed that he could hardly get enough.

Up to now there was nothing about Spot Tail that distinguished him from his countless fellows, but the "fungus dope," wrongly used, made a black round spot on his tail that would make him a marked fish for the rest of his days.

"Lively little devils, all right," said the thunder, and then the can was lifted and carried away.

A little later Spot Tail was dumped into another pond, and now he came face to face with the harder side of life. He scurried into the weeds and began to feed on water lice. He chased one that looked particularly inviting, and was about to seize it when another bass, larger than the rest, dashed ahead of him and took it. It enraged Spot Tail, and when the larger fish came near he snapped at him. The other turned and, with fins erected, dashed at Spot Tail, who turned too late to avoid a painful scratch. Spot Tail learned his lesson and retreated into the heavy weeds and stayed there until night fall.

Bully, the larger fish, now proceeded to drive out all the other newcomers, and ruled that part of the pond like a tyrant. The next morning Spot Tail attempted to enter the space patroled by Bully, only to be chased away. In a few days success made Bully more dangerous to the peacefulness of the pond, and, as the water lice became scarcer in his corner, he began to catch and eat the smaller bass. When his hunger would become satisfied he took particular delight in chasing Spot Tail, following him around the pond for hours at a time.

Twice Spot Tail had very narrow escapes, and only his superior speed and resourcefulness saved him from being eaten. Meanwhile Bully waxed fat and the smaller bass became fewer in number. One day one of the hatchery men noticed this, and again Spot Tail experienced the seine. This time he was returned to the same pond and that was the last the pond folk saw of Bully.

Wrestling Tourney Off When Men Join the Ranks

Because of the draft, which resulted in several wrestlers going into active military service, the international wrestling tourney, scheduled to start last night at the Strand theater, was postponed until October. Money was refunded to those who had purchased tickets. The decision was reached after a conference between Promoter Larney Lichtenstein and E. H. Quigley, in charge of the theater.

Tie in Lincoln Park Shoot.

Charles G. Burmeister and W. P. Northcott tied for the high gun at Lincoln Park traps. The program called for 100 targets, 16 yards rise, for the D. A. Raymond trophies and two refrigerator baskets. A squall off the lake, which came up just as the program started, made high scores impossible. C. G. Burmeister and W. P. Northcott with scores of 91 were high amateur, while C. O. Emery was high professional with 98.

MORE CHICAGO AND COOK COUNTY NAMES FOR THE DRAFT

THE TRIBUNE herewith presents further lists of Chicago and Cook County men who under the great lottery are subject to examination for service in the new National Army. The lists, like those printed in THE TRIBUNE yesterday morning, are given with home addresses and are grouped under the serial numbers and approximately in the order these numbers were drawn in Washington.

The exact number in this city and county subject to call for the first draft is not yet announced by the war department. Therefore the degree of liability of the men not in the earlier numbers can only be approximated. Estimates of the number required from Chicago vary from 17,000 to 25,000. Twice the number finally needed will be called for examination within a few days.

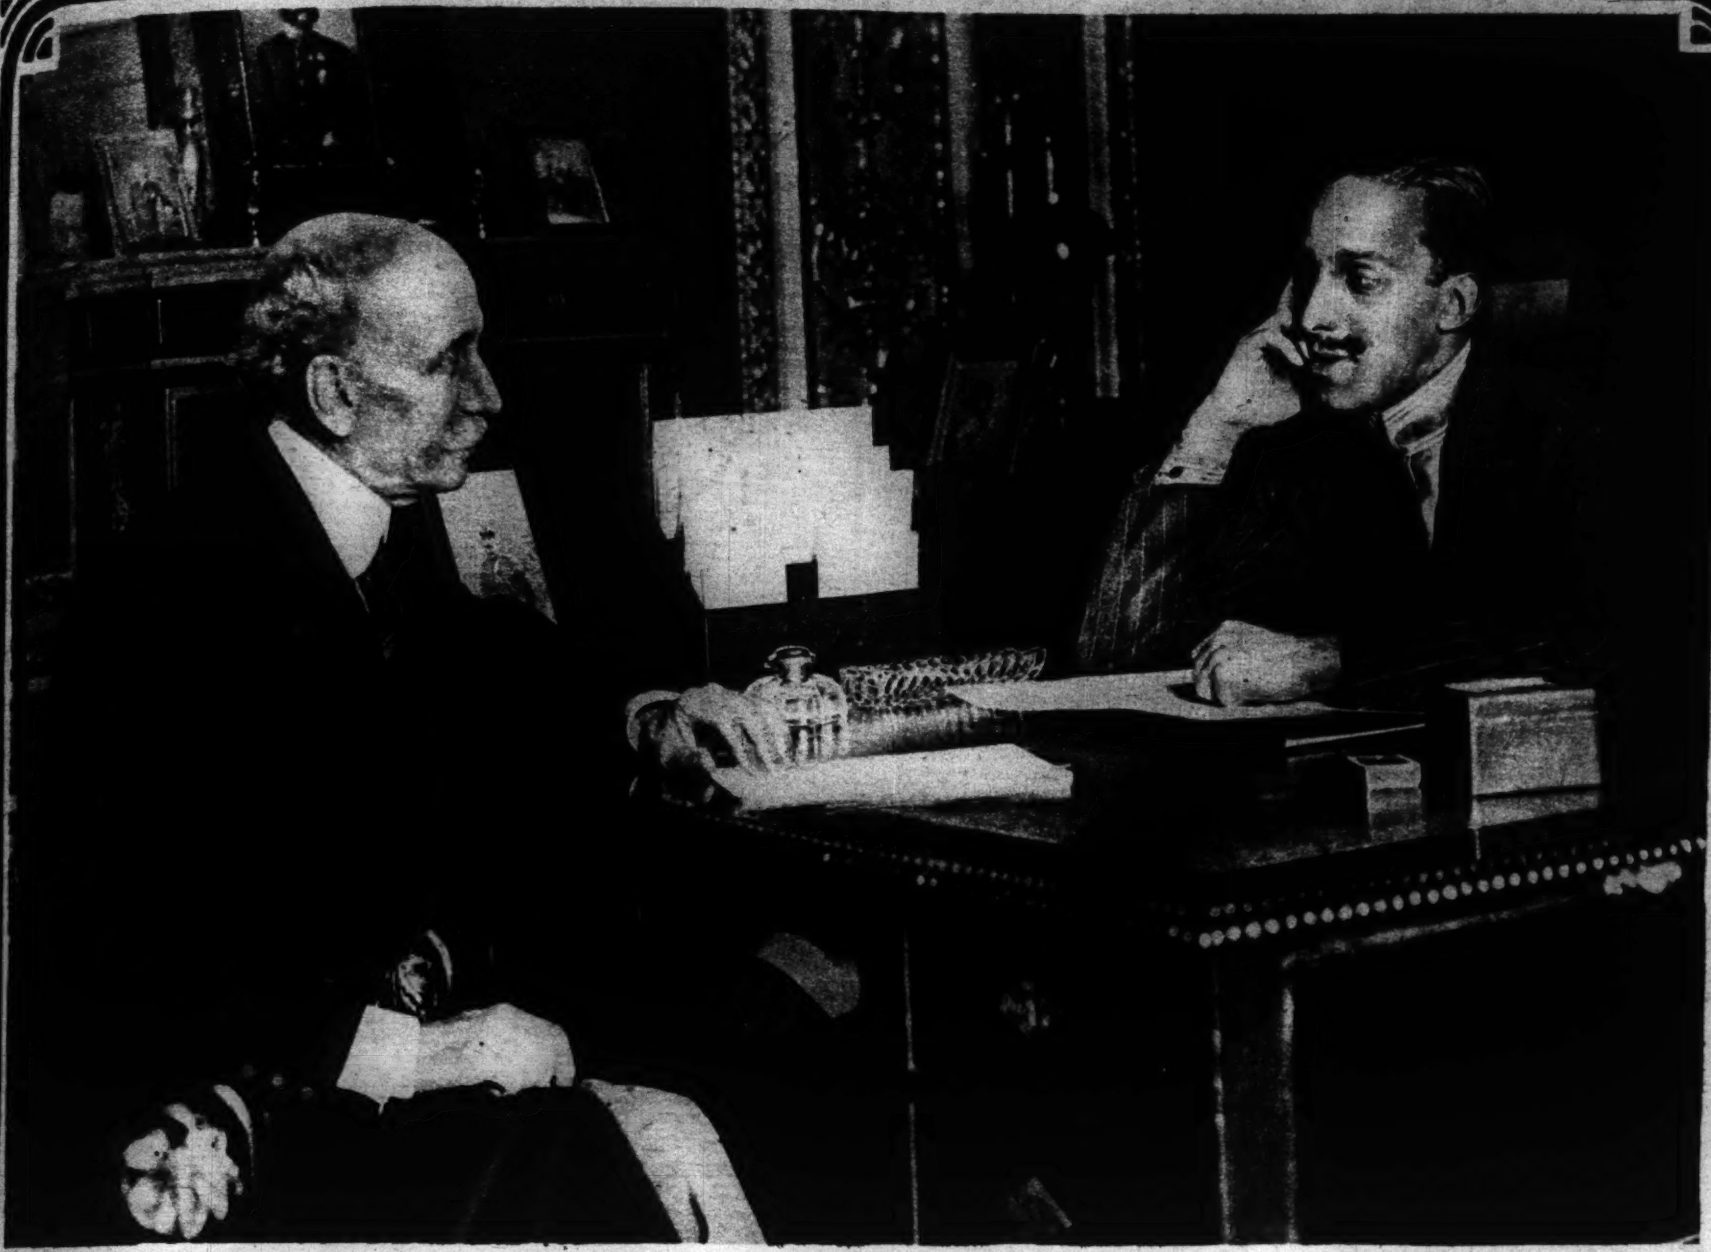
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

JULY 22, 1917



WILL HE GO THE WAY OF "NICK" AND "TINO"—THAT IS, UP IN SMOKE ?—This, the latest picture of King Alfonso of Spain, shows him in a recent consultation with Premier Eduardo Dato. A revolution, at this writing, is momentarily expected in Spain, due to three causes: the dissatisfaction of the army; the dissatisfaction of the democratic parties; and the unrest of the masses, brought about by the increased cost of living and the food shortage. Food riots have broken out at different times; the Monarchist Reformist party, made up of powerful Spanish leaders, has changed its traditional position and come out in favor of a republic; and the abdication of Alfonso is demanded by the Republicans, Socialists, and Radicals, who have merged into a bloc.

RODIN'S MARRIAGE—The aged little woman who had been the life long devoted model, friend, housekeeper, and wife "without benefit of clergy" of the great French sculptor, Auguste Rodin, at the insistence of Rodin himself became Mme. Rodin as officially recognized by society last February. Fearing that death might abruptly overtake the aged woman whose former beauty inspired and was the model for many of his best works of sculpture, Rodin arranged for the quiet wedding. Mme. Rodin died a few weeks later. Rodin is the bearded man with the artist's "tam"; to his left sits Mme. Rodin; to his right is Clementel, member of the French cabinet, and the man with the mustache in the rear between Clementel and Rodin is Rodin's son by his first wife. To the right of Mme. Rodin is M. Beneditte, curator of the Musee de Luxembourg.

LIEUT. LONG LANCE, a full blooded Cherokee Indian, graduate of the Carlisle Indian college and a student at West Point, joined the Princess Pat crack regiment of the Canadian contingent at the outbreak of the war. He was the only surviving officer of his rank in his battalion in the historic engagement of April 9 on Vimy Ridge. A few days later he was hit in the back of the head by a piece of shrapnel and was sent to the American base hospital. He is shown in tribal costume.

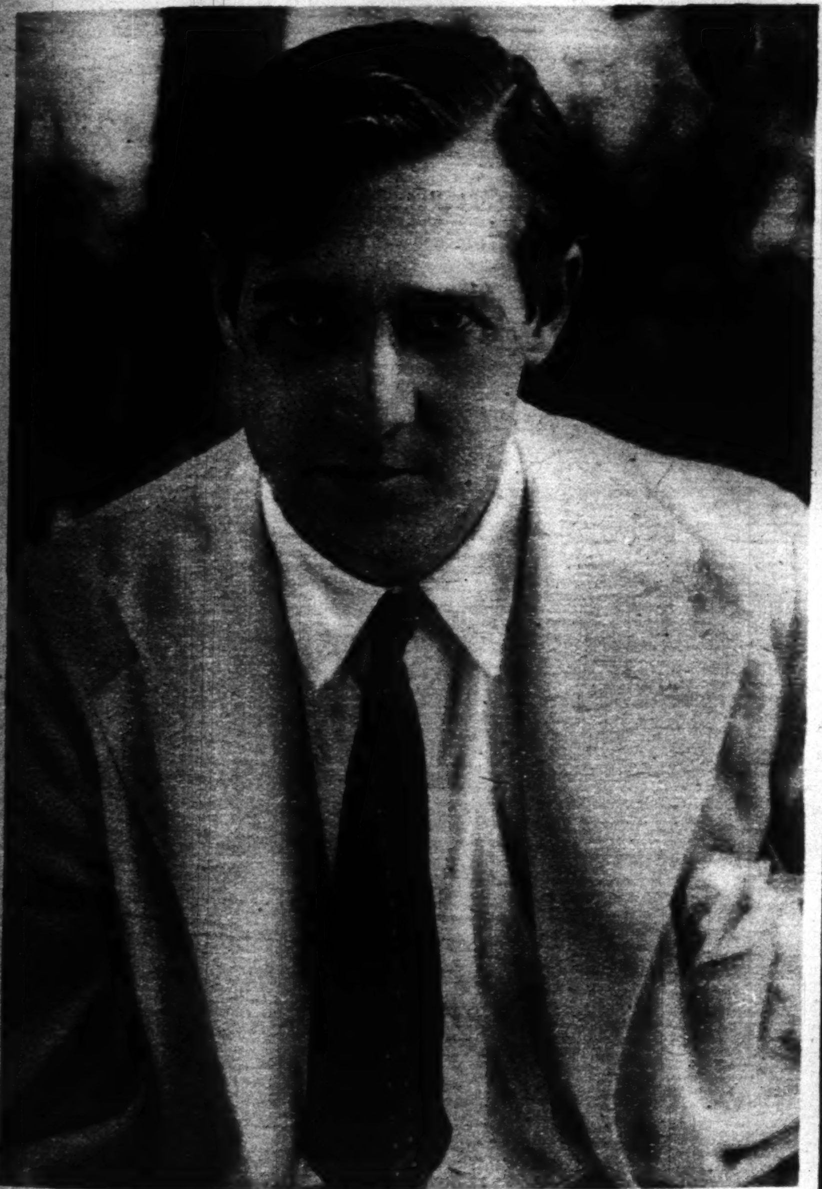
(Next week pictures of Emmy Wehlen, Constance Talmadge, Wilfred Lucas, and Henry B. Walthall will be found on this page.)

EMILY STEVENS in "The Slacker" expects and hopes to prove a definite aid to recruiting. She is with Metro and has been popular in the few pictures in which she has been starred. "The Wager" was a winner! Her stage career has been a brilliant one.

VIOLA DANA, Metro star, was, at the age of 15, heralded as "Broadway's Youngest Star" when she appeared in "The Poor Little Rich Girl." She had, however, been on the stage practically in babyhood. Her first successes in pictures were made in Edison films.



ELLIOTT DEXTER is the husband of Marie Doro and is steadily forging ahead in his quite recently adopted screen profession. On the speaking stage he appeared with such people as John Drew, Blanche O'Neil, Margaret Anglin, William Gillette, Blanche Bates, and Marie Doro. At present he's with Lasky.

EVELYN NESBIT (THAW) AND SON RUSSELL are appearing in the erring-woman-repents-and-comes-back film "Redemption." Miss Nesbit has decidedly surprised many by the simple sincerity and excellence of her work and it is prophesied that she will "make good" in pictures.

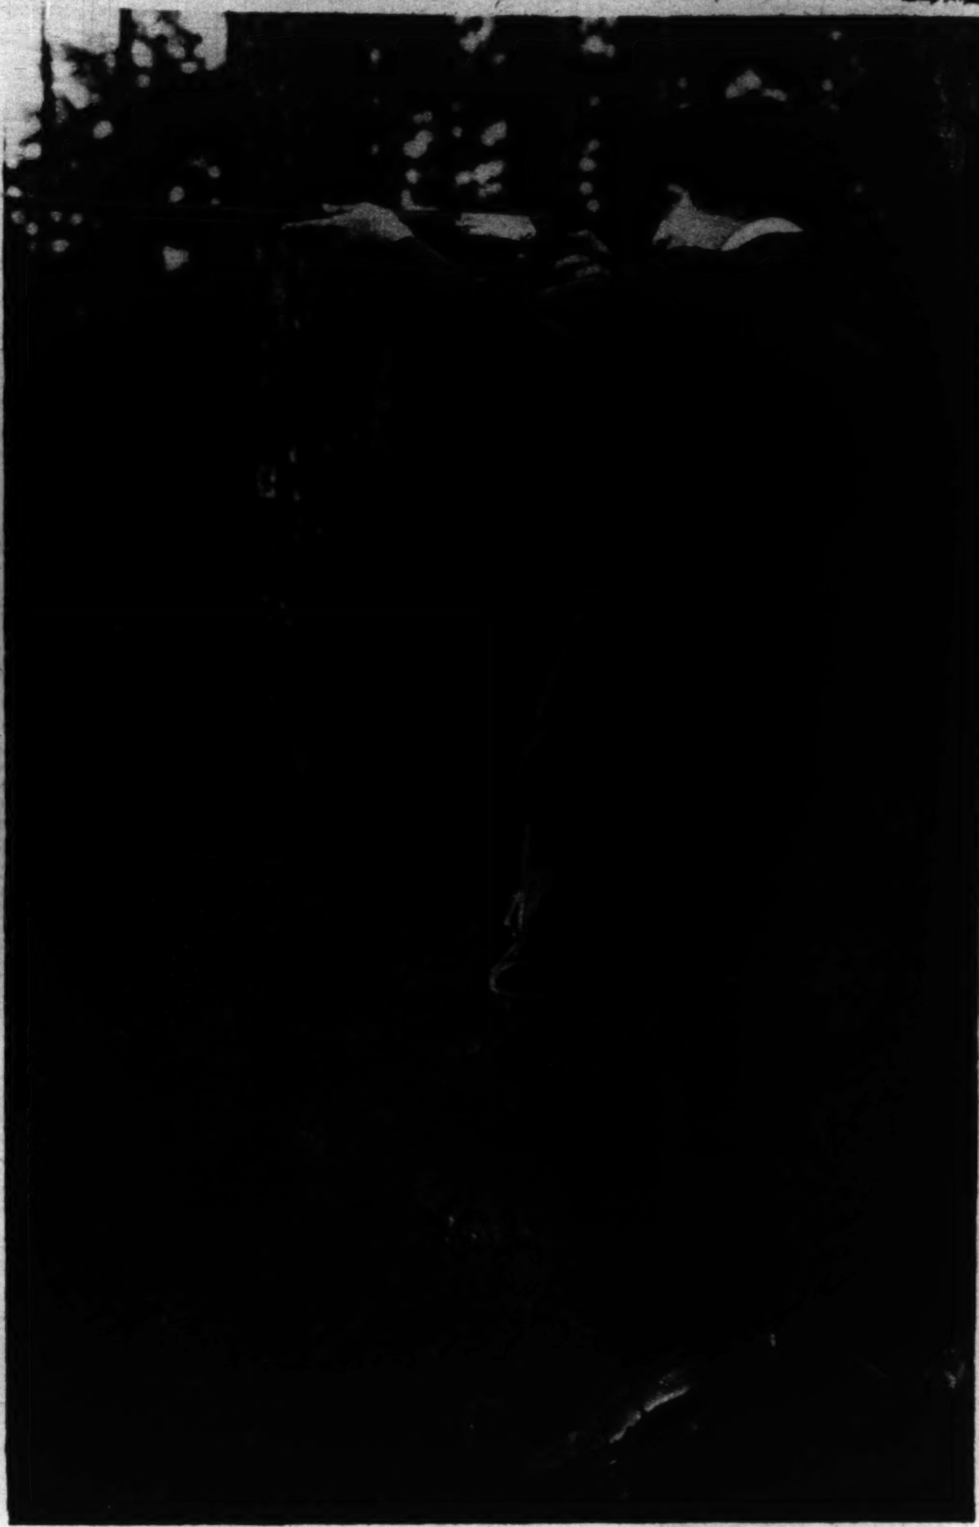
Of the many forms of sport in which Mrs. Gould engages, to her everlasting good health and beauty, rowing is one of her favorites, and this boating costume consists of a girlish and serviceable skirt of white serge and a white duck blouse with a collar of navy blue. The blouse is laced at the hips.



Mrs. Gould's superb figure is well set off by this hunting costume of dark green covert cloth, which is practical because Mrs. Gould is a crack marksman, and yet correct because Mrs. Gould is always a faultless dresser.

For the benefit of the Red Cross, Mrs. Gould gave a tea and a private exhibition of motion pictures at Georgian Court, her Lakewood (N. J.) home. In "The Enchanted Fountain," the film from which this scene is taken, Mrs. Gould posed with her daughters, Edith (at Mrs. Gould's left) and Gloria (at Mrs. Gould's right). The fairy of the fountain shown at the left is a movie actress.

GAS MASK OUR BOYS WILL WEAR—Representative Heintz of Ohio, who is a captain in the First regiment, O. N. G., is shown wearing the new gas mask which has been adopted by the war department. It is patterned after a German mask picked up on a battlefield in France. The bag attachment is an American improvement, an air filter, which will purify even the most noxious gas-laden air and insure the wearer of sufficient pure air to sustain him through a gas attack of several hours' duration.

"Pretty"—Yes, but so impossible to keep pretty!

"Impossible"—that is, with ordinary soap—cake soap that you have to rub roughly on the fragile material.

Such soap was meant only for plain laundering—it cannot help injuring fine silks and laces for which it was never meant.

Why laundering spoils your silk blouse

Alkali and rubbing are what spoil your prettiest blouse. The alkali makes the silk grow yellower and yellower each time it is laundered. Rubbing coarsens the silk and lace—takes away all the daintiness.

How you can keep your blouse lovely

Lux, the new product for all fine laundering, has absolutely no free alkali, and no rubbing is necessary, because in the transparent Lux flakes is concentrated more real cleansing value than is possible in any other form of soap. It dissolves the dirt—so that without the slightest friction the dirt drops out into the foamy Lux suds.

Your filmiest blouse comes from its Lux tubbing white and sheer as when it was new. USE LUX ON ANYTHING THAT PURE WATER ALONE WILL NOT HARM.

Try it at once. Your grocer and all the department stores have it. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

How to wash silk waists

Whisk a handful of Lux into a thick lather in very hot water. Add cold water till lukewarm. Dip your waist through the foamy lather many times—work it about in the suds—do not rub. Rinse in three waters, the first lukewarm, the second cooler, the last cold. Squeeze the water out—do not wring. Dry in the shade. When nearly dry, press with a warm iron—never a hot one. Georgette crepe waists should be gently pulled into shape as they dry, and also should be shaped as you iron.

LUX

For all fine laundering

Fight disease as they do in hospitals

Did you ever hear of any one who caught a disease in a hospital? You never did!

People are cured of diseases in the hospital, but they never contract them there.

Today, cases of diphtheria, typhoid and other contagious diseases are usually traced to some oversight—to some trivial uncleanliness in the home. In the hospital the proper use of disinfectants safeguards against this danger.

Guard the health of your family

Today, modern medicine offers you an easy way to keep your home as safe from disease as a hospital. Use Sylpho-Nathol in your home. It is a sure disinfectant for waste-pipes, garbage can and scrubbing.

Sylpho-Nathol is a germ killer three and a half times stronger than the U. S. Public Health Service standard. It is entirely safe. For thirty years New England women have used Sylpho-Nathol. The leading hospitals of New York and New England use this disinfectant. Let your home profit by their choice.

Keep your home sanitary

Destroy every menace of disease in your home. Use germ-killing solutions of Sylpho-Nathol in the course of your regular housework. This powerful disinfectant protects your family with no extra trouble to you. In the waste-pipes, in the garbage can, in the dark corners of the house, the cracks of floors and woodwork, in the closet bowl, in all these places, lurking disease is destroyed by Slypho-Nathol.

Four sizes—10c, 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sent prepaid on receipt of price if your dealer hasn't it. Booklet giving full directions with each bottle. The Sulpho-Napthol Co., 31 Medford St., Boston, Mass.

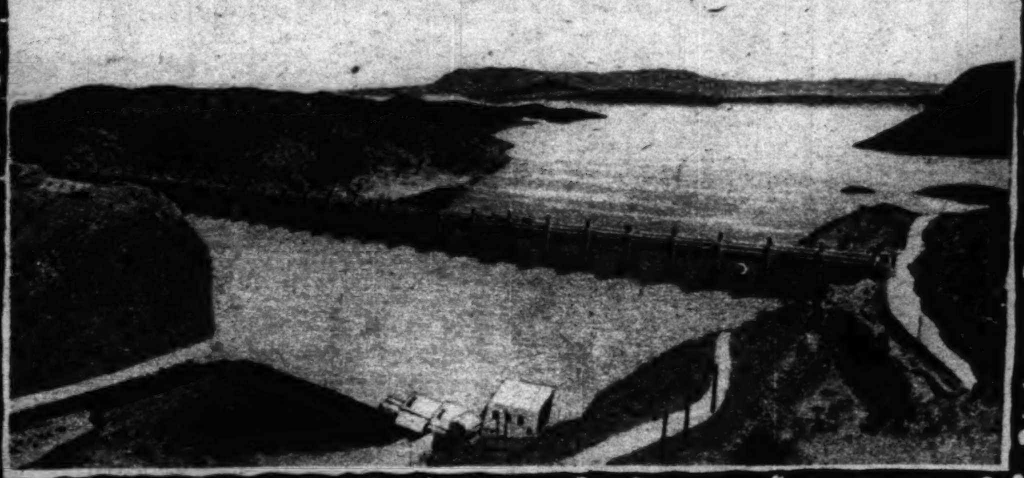
VIEW OF ELEPHANT BUTTE DAM COMPLETED THE LATTER PART OF 1916.



Read about the Mammoth Elephant Butte Dam in this great book. It tells you all about the largest artificial reservoir in the world, located on the Rio Grand River in south central New Mexico. Cost $5,000,000 and is operated by the U. S. Government.

Read about the 200,000 acres of high-grade farm lands accessible to this great project and producing large crops of alfalfa, corn, etc.

Since the completion of this project it is estimated that less than one-fifth has been put under cultivation.

If interested in future investment or development STUDY THE REMARKABLE ADVANTAGES AND OPPORTUNITIES PRESENTED TO YOU IN THIS ONLY AUTHORITATIVE BOOK.

NEW MEXICO—The Last Great West

Statistics in this book worth hundreds of dollars to small investors—thousands to those with larger capital.

It gives specific data on developed and undeveloped resources, and shows the revised laws on HOW TO ACQUIRE GOVERNMENT AND STATE LANDS. It contains timber statistics showing species and measurements in the 10,000,000 acres of forests; and full authoritative information on water and irrigation, farming, stock raising, class of soil and crops grown thereon in each and every section. Furthermore, the following subjects are covered: HOW TO ACQUIRE FOREST HOME SITES in resort, hunting and fishing districts—mining and minerals—railroad systems—roads and highways—and all commercial activities.

This book gives every bit of information you WANT and NEED, covering pertinent statistics by counties, including area, climate, population, agriculture, live stock, public utilities and banks, besides specially prepared county maps and topographical descriptions of townships containing either or both government and state lands open to settlement up to January 1, 1917, at which time there were 25,000,000 acres of government land available under three acts, one of which materially affects this section of the country, viz:

THE ENLARGED HOMESTEAD ACT SIGNED BY PRESIDENT WILSON AND MADE A LAW DECEMBER 29, 1916

The lands above referred to are open for homesteading to those who have not yet used up their right.

YOUR ATTENTION IS CALLED TO THE FACT THAT THIS IS THE LAST ACREAGE OF ANY SIZE OF FREE HOMESTEAD LANDS

State lands (original selection of 12,000,000 acres) under an act signed by the State Department and made a law March 12, 1917, can be purchased in any size tract desired from 40 acres up, either for cash or on the payment of 5% in cash with the balance due on or before 30 years from date and bearing interest at the rate of 4% per annum, interest payable annually.

The purchaser of these lands is not required to live on or improve them, but can buy for an investment if desired.

The government land acreage and state locations, together with complete topography, are shown in 2700 townships in which the above land is located. The same information furnished in this book, if obtained from any U. S. Land Office, would be charged for at the rate of $2.00 per township.

GET THIS BOOK NOW Its value is inestimable—fully illustrated with excellent photographic views. Ask your dealer for a copy—if he has not yet put it in stock, order by mail from us—but—GET IT NOW!!! PRICE ONLY $2

THE STATE GOVERNMENT OF NEW MEXICO ENDORSES THIS BOOK

So remarkable and complete is "New Mexico, The Last Great West," that the State Department of New Mexico, in a special endorsement, gives it the highest recommendation. Send for a copy of this endorsement or apply at this office.

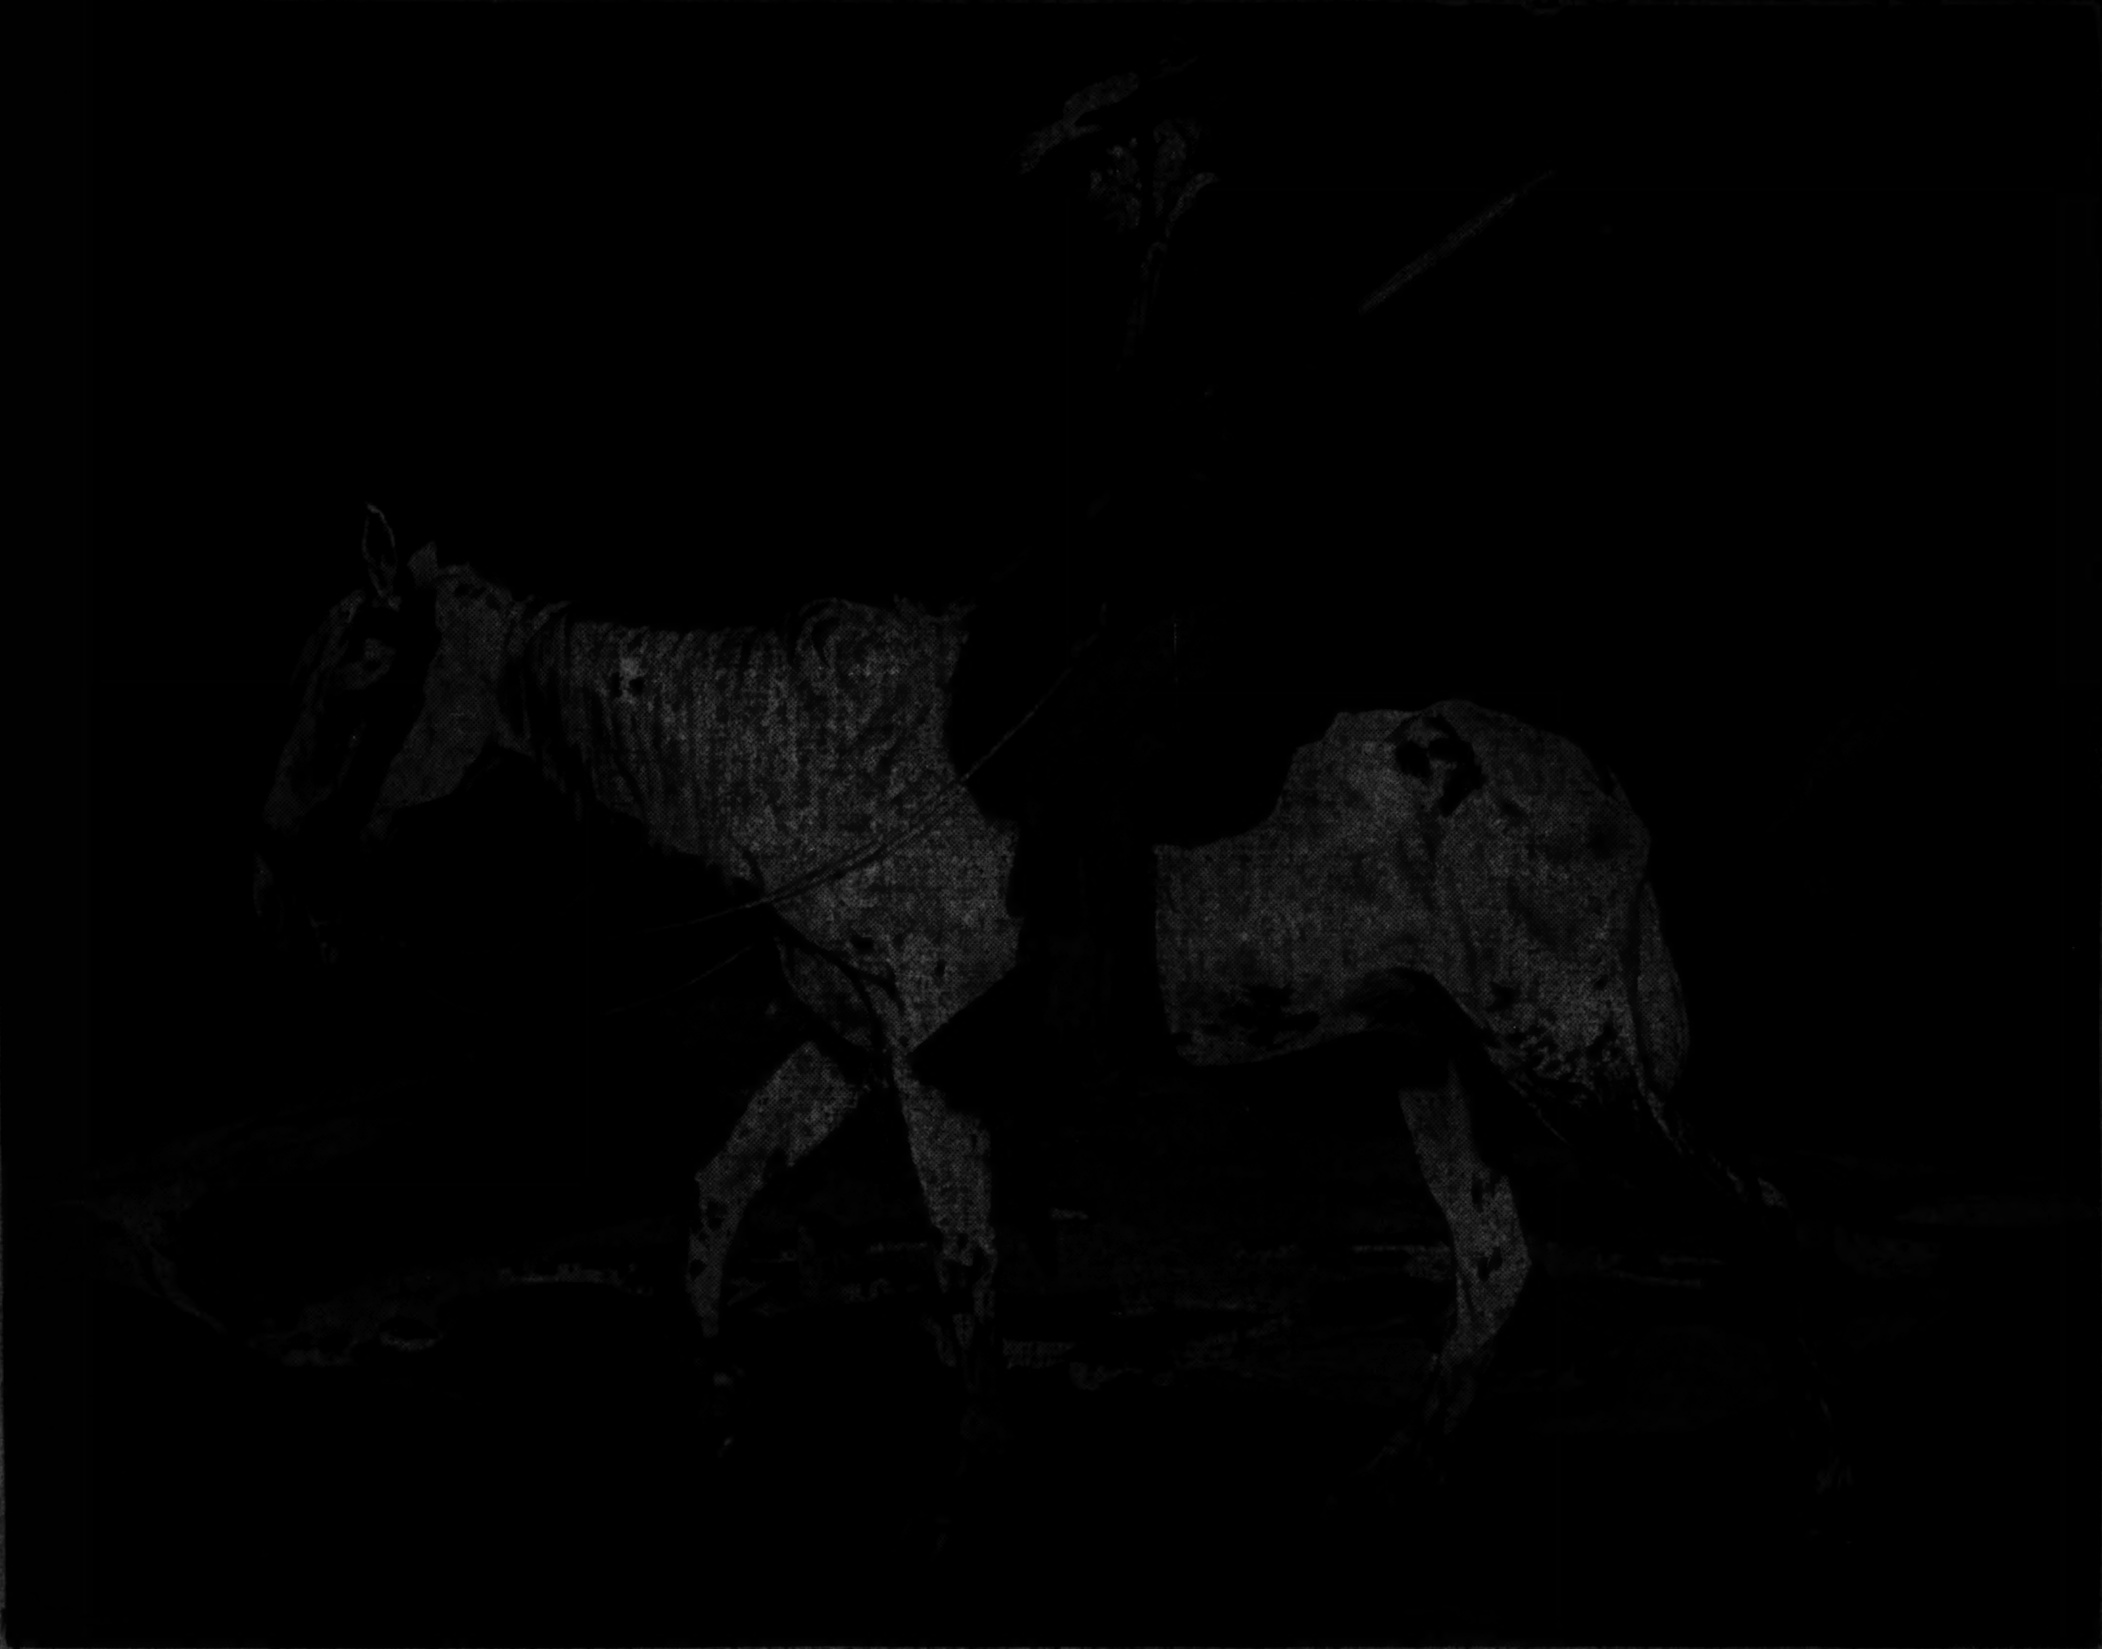
The Victim of the Fête Reproduction of a Painting by Zuloaga



BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"The Victim of the Fete," by Ignacio Zuloaga. Painted in 1910 at Segovia. 137 in. by 114 in.

FOR the last decade Ignacio Zuloaga has peopled the galleries of Europe with his matadors and trianeros, his beggars and his dwarfs, his seductively lovely women of society and his sense enslaved Carmens of the world's lower strata. Now his fame has penetrated this country and exhibits of his work, attracting much attention wherever they are hung, attest the enthusiasm with which America too has accepted this genius of somber, Gothic Spain.

This sinister, tragic Don Quixote of the corrida was one of the most impressive canvases hung at the recent exhibit of his works at the Art institute. According to the artist, he painted this picture partly as a protest against the sorry lot that befalls the poor horses forced to enter the arena. It is done in dark colors save for the splash of blood against the side of the weary, battle worn white horse, and, as always in his paintings of the arena, combines a certain picturesque grace with grim and terrible cruelty.

Zuloaga came from the town of Eibar, hidden in the Cantabrian mountains, and since his early boyhood his life has been one of restless activity and travel. Seized by a feverish impulse to paint when he was no more than a boy, he dreamed only of art and when he was 18 set out for Rome.

Years of stark struggle followed. He eked out a precarious existence, now in Rome, now in Paris, now in Vienna, and finally stopping in Seville, where he settled himself to consistent and strenuous labor. Here, urged on by his insatiable appetite for the primitive, he consorted with smugglers and cutthroats and matadors, living a hundred lives in one, that he might truly know the people of whom he painted.

Now, among his best pictures and those which Chicagoans had an opportunity to view in the early spring are his "Cardinal," with the drab background of Segovia for a setting; his portrait of "M. Maurice Barres," the distinguished Frenchman of letters; his "Mercedes" and his "Woman on the Balcony," this last canvas depicting some charming devotees of the corrida. He is represented in most of the prominent galleries in Europe and also in the Argentine, in Mexico City, and in many of the finest private collections of this country.

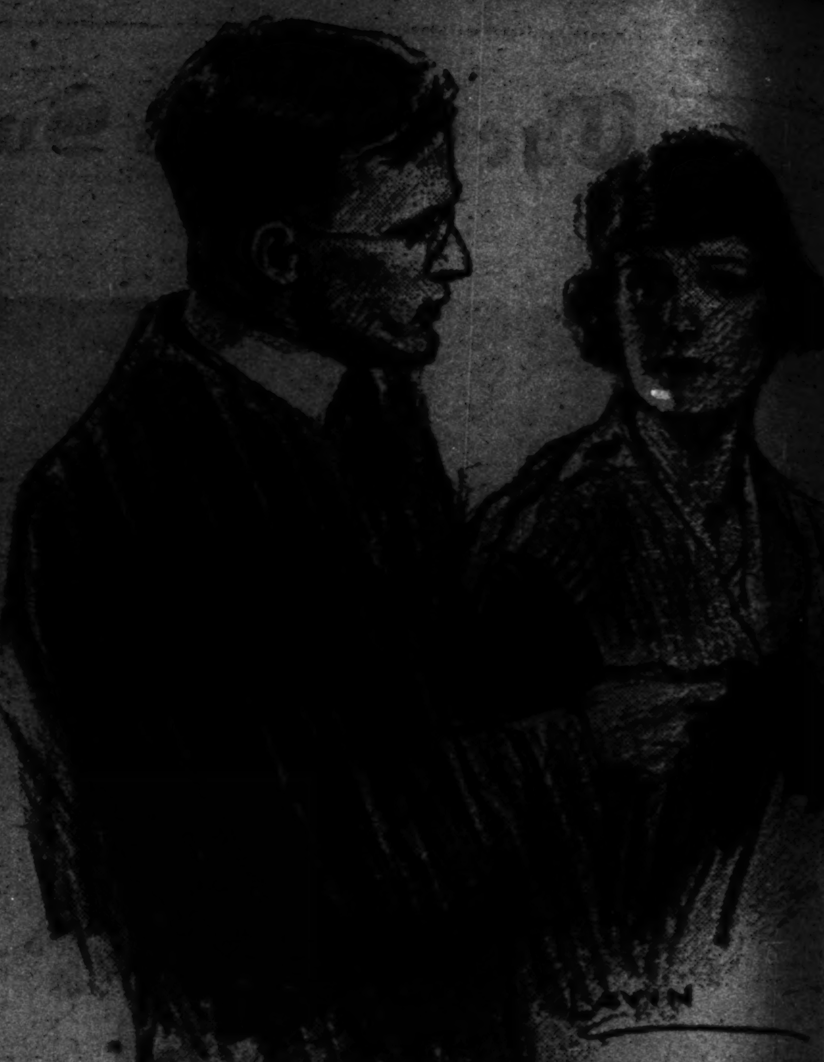
Zuloaga, in spirit and in desire belongs to the sixteenth century. He says quite frankly, "I belong to the sixteenth century. I hate things modern, the vagaries of impression and futurism. It all seems feeble, neurasthenic. I adore the primitives and everything that is Spanish. I am happiest still in a Carthusian monastery painting pictures of religion and of people! I put into my work emotion—only emotion. May everything else disappear!"

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

String

by Berton Braley

How the Practice of Even Such Virtues as Concentration and Specialization May Be Carried Too Far.



"But still I don't see," Gerald persisted.

I.

"THE trend of the day is specialization," said the professor of economics. "The man who succeeds is not the man who knows something about everything, but the man who knows everything about something." He paused with a pleased smile over his epigram, just as though it had originated with him.

"Therefore, young man, if you would make your life fit into the activities of this vast and busy world, pick out some one thing humanity uses or needs, and learn all there is to know about that. Do not diffuse your energies; concentrate them."

Gerald Harkins woke up just in time to hear these concluding sentences of his professor's lecture. The proximate cause of his awaking was a fly which bit him behind the ear. Thus aroused to an unwonted alertness, he imagined that the professor's remarks were directed distinctly and individually to him.

What was it the professor said? "Pick out some one thing humanity uses or needs, and know all about that." Great! He'd do it. He'd managed to dodge most of the unpleasant tasks in his college career, and he'd eased through by natural intelligence, unassisted by industry, but his parents, though indulgent, expected him to get his degree—and you couldn't graduate without writing a thesis. It was one of the few inevitable and ineluctable labors of the curriculum.

Very well, since he must write a thesis, he'd take the professor's suggestion, pick out some one thing, and write about that. And to make it easy he'd take something which he could know all about without having to know much. Fine. Now, what would it be?

Thinking about this made him drowsy, but just before his eyelids closed he caught a glimpse of a piece of common string lying near his foot.

"String!" he thought. "That's it. I'll write my thesis on string. Nothing could be simpler than that." He nodded drowsily, but the burr-r of the closing bell aroused him and he ambled out with the class.

"String," he repeated to himself as he walked down the stairs. "String. A thesis on string."

II.

In this fortuitous manner it came about that Gerald Harkins, perhaps the least industrious student in a not very hard working college, reversed the process of nature and suffered a metamorphosis from a somewhat slow flying social butterfly into a laborious caterpillar who gradually wound himself into an immense and intricate cocoon of string.

III.

"Did you know," he asked one of the boys at the fraternity table two weeks later, "that more than one hundred tons of string are used every year in the United States merely on these tags that cleaners hang on your coat buttons?"

"No," responded his fellow student, "and I don't give a darn. Can't you talk anything but string? Ain't you got any conversation but 'Did you know that it takes seventy-five million yards of cotton thread to sew on the buttons that are knocked off by the boots of irate fathers in these United States'; 'Isn't it wonderful to think that the corset strings used by peroxide blondes would go seventeen thousand times around the waist of Eva Tanguay, with enough left to make violin strings for Kubelik'; 'Are you aware that the pieces of string found in boarding house hash, if laid end to end, would reach from here to Kalamazoo'? String, string, string! That's all you think or talk about. Cut that string—break it off, wind it on the spool, and hide it away. You're a string fiend."

Harkins, with a sudden shock, realized that all his fraternity brother had said was true. He hadn't thought or talked anything but string for two weeks. It was becoming an obsession. His other studies suffered—he missed his meals sometimes, he was getting almost no sleep—all because he was following the clew of string. But he kept on, nevertheless.

"I must know all about string," he said to himself, "all about it. Pick one subject and—concentrate. Specialization is the trend—I specialize on string. I shall write the most comprehensive treatise on string that has ever been produced." Thus what had started as a compulsory task was fast becoming an aspiration.

When it came time to hand in his thesis he had accomplished none of it. "I have scarcely begun the outline yet," he explained to his class officer. "It is a big subject, very big—and I must be thorough. Here, I will show you what I have accomplished so far," and from his pockets he began pulling notes and sketches and outlines and codifications and synopses, which he heaped in a pile on the class officer's desk.

"But this is almost enough for a book," said that worthy; "you don't have to write a thesis that long."

"Yes, yes, I do," averred Harkins, with the gleam of purpose in his eye. "I must write all—all about string for my thesis. But I need a little extension of time! I think I shall come back this summer to work more effectively. But my parents rather expect me to have my degree this year, and——"

"I'll fix it so you can get your degree without the thesis," the class officer promised, "in order that you can go on with your work on string. It is very absorbing, I can see."

IV.

Gerald Harkins had been ten years in the shadowing of string when somebody suggested to him that he hire a secretary.

"What for, what for?" he demanded testily.

"To relieve you of detail," his adviser replied.

"Certainly, certainly," the string authority agreed. "It would be wise. It's a stupendous subject, string, and I shouldn't waste energy in routine. I must concentrate more completely. Send me a secretary; I'll hire one."

Thus there came one day to Harkins' study a young woman. She was extremely easy on the eyes, and she had wonderful dark brown orbs and a rich, soft, melodious voice. The scientist, however, did not notice these matters.

"I want you to help me in my work on string," he said abruptly.

Miss Morton waited for him to go on, but he didn't go on. So she replied, "What are the duties and the salary?"

"Duties, duties!" repeated Harkins absently, looking up from some proofs in which he had buried himself. "Why, your duties are to be my secretary. Do whatever secretaries usually do."

He plunged into the proofs again.

"And the salary?" gently insisted the young woman.

"Salary, salary!" Harkins repeated again. "O, whatever secretaries usually get." Once more he burrowed into the proofs.

Miss Morton laughed—and went to work. The study was cluttered and upset and dusty. She began straightening it up, but without disturbing the papers that lay all about it. That could wait until she learned to know all about those papers and what might safely be done with them.

This was the beginning of a new era in string. For Gerald Harkins found that the work went with amazing celerity since he had a secretary. No longer need he scramble over heaps of papers seeking the particular item he needed; they were always at his hand. The disorder and dust that had accompanied him in the past had marvelously disappeared, his engagements and appointments never got tangled and mixed any more, and his work went forward with a certainty and ease and precision he had never before experienced.

Brochures on string, monographs on string, volumes on string came from under his hand in an unbroken stream—string, one is tempted to say. And, without knowing exactly how it was being accomplished, Harkins found that he was getting his meals more regularly, and that life generally was much better ordered than in the past.

For Miss Morton was an exceedingly capable young woman, and it did not take her much time to realize that the absent minded and absorbed young man—for Harkins wasn't old, when you think of it—really needed not only a secretary but a valet and a nurse.

At first Miss Morton related to her friends with great glee the peculiarities and eccentricities of her employer, and poked gentle fun at his absorption in string. But gradually these gay comments upon her employer ceased, and one day she found herself indignantly reproving a flippant young student for making fun of the man she worked for.

"Why," she said, "he's a wonderful man—so wise and so deep and so—so kind; you ought to know him the way I do, and you'd realize that he was engaged in a tremendous task. Of course, a man like that hasn't time to be—O, like everybody else—for he's all bound up in——"

"String!" shouted the young student. But Miss Morton refused to laugh. For she, too, was taking string seriously.

She grew to speak of string with reverence and awe in her voice—a reverence and awe which included her employer. And so for five years these two worked together—on string, and talked together—on string—and on nothing else.

Then one day Gerald Harkins came down to his study at the usual hour and Miss Morton was not there. He waited half an hour for her, and when she didn't come he started to work. But he couldn't work. He thought it was because Miss Morton wasn't there to hand him the notes he wanted, but as a matter of fact the notes were under his fingers and everything was prepared for him to go on for several hours without her aid.

Shaking his head savagely, he plunged into the twentieth chapter of his latest volume on string. He must finish this chapter before nightfall. For half an hour he labored on the chapter—or thought he labored, but he glanced at the clock at least seventeen times in that half hour. Confound it! why didn't that woman come? How could he do his work if she wasn't there to help him? She ought at least to have telephoned. Here was this important chapter on string being held up because she hadn't arrived. Well, he'd wait an hour longer, and then if she didn't come he'd telephone. He waited—and then he telephoned. And when he finally got Miss Morton, all she would say was that he must read her note.

What note? The note she had left on his desk. Hadn't he found it? She had laid it carefully on top of his eye shade. He had forgotten his eye shade? Well, he mustn't forget it—he knew it was bad for his eyes to forget it, and if he'd look for it he would find the note. Good-by.

Harkins found the note, and it read:

"Dear Mr. Harkins: I'm sorry, but I cannot work for you any more. Please let this be my resignation. I have no complaint of my work or salary, but I can't—I just can't be your secretary any longer. Sincerely,

"MARGARET MORTON."

"Margaret," he repeated to himself. "Margaret is a pretty name. I didn't know she had one like that. Well, I'll have to get another secretary. Can't let the loss of one secretary stop the progress of my work on string."

Secretaries came by dozens—but he kept none of them long. They were efficient, capable, competent, but he couldn't work with them. He couldn't work with anybody. He couldn't work at all. What was worse, he found that he couldn't think of string. He had always been able to concentrate, and now whenever he thought of string his mind slithered off to Miss Morton. And the things he remembered about Miss Morton were not her reverence and respect for string, or her almost uncanny ability to give him exactly the materials he wanted to use in any work he was doing on string—no, he remembered that her voice was rich and vibrant, and that her eyes were deep and brown, and that——

"Well!" he declared suddenly one day, "I'll go and see her and ask her what's the matter."

V.

When Margaret Morton heard the voice of Gerald Harkins in the hall of her boarding house she told the maid to say that she was not at home. Then she told the maid to say that she would be right down. And she came.

"You've got to come back," Harkins said the minute he saw her. "There's a lot of work on my new book on string, and I can't do it without you. There aren't any other secretaries like you—they haven't the respect for string that you have, they think string is unimportant—and I've got to have you back, or—well, I don't see how I can do justice to string without you. Why did you leave me?"

"Because I was sick and tired to death of string!" she cried. "And it wasn't all for myself, either. I was unhappy at seeing you work so hard on a thing that was hopeless!"

"Hopeless!" repeated Harkins.

"Quite hopeless," Miss Morton reiterated. "You want to know all about string—and you imagine that's possible. You think you can do it, in time, don't you?"

"Why, yes," assented Harkins.

"But you can't, you can't! Because there's woolen and linen and hempen and cotton and silk string—and to know all about them you must know all about wool and cotton and hemp and linen and silk. So you have to know about agriculture, which produces these raw materials; and transportation, which moves them; and machinery, which works them; and chemistry, which dyes and prints and preserves them. And the study of machinery leads you back to mining—and forward to steel manufacture—and so you get into every industry directly or indirectly connected with the production of string. And at every stage all along the way you have to know about labor. And to really know all about labor you have to know ethnology and history and politics and economics—and then you must know literature and art and music and science; for labor is human, and humanity is affected by all these things. And the answer to the proposition is that you can't know all about string—because to know all about string—really all about string—you have to know all about everything—not just something about everything, as your economics professor said, but everything about everything. All the knowledge in the world. And even you can't do that!"

For fifteen years Gerald Harkins had studied and searched and delved and dug devotedly in quest of complete and absolute knowledge of string. Yet until this moment his mind had never applied cold analytical criticism to his ambition. He had been so close to it that he had no perspective on string. In spite of his insistence upon the importance and seriousness of the topic, he had no real conception of the breadth and sweep of string. But his secretary, viewing it less with the fervor of a fanatic and more with the eye of an onlooker, had kept her sense of proportion, and the cold wisdom of her words woke him from his fond dream like a dash of cold water on his face. "To know all about string he had to know all about everything!"

Why, of course! The logic of the thing was inexorable. A look, mingled of humorous disgust and dismay, came over his face as ruefully he made his confession.

"I never thought of that!"

"No, you never thought of that," Miss Morton went on; "you were just blindly determined to know all about string, and you wouldn't even pause a while and think about things a little. There was—there was sunshine and fresh air and joy and companionship and friendship in the world, and you forgot them all for string. You—you didn't know I was around, except as an adjunct to string. I wasn't a person to you; I was just a machine, I guess, for helping you unwind more string. And the other day I realized that I—I couldn't go on any more—I hated string and almost hated you, and—I'm only an automaton to you, anyhow—and don't you dare say string to me! And I won't come back."

Gerald Harkins, looking into the flushed face and listening to the indignant but half tearful voice of Margaret Morton, recognized what was the matter with her—and with him.

"Suppose I should say to you, Margaret," he asked, "that I want you to come back because I want you—just you; that it is your voice and your presence and your companionship that I miss. Suppose I should say that since you've been gone I can't think of anything but you; that I can't work—that, as a matter of fact, when you aren't around, I don't give a whoop about string! What would you say? Suppose I should say it isn't your work and your assistance I've been missing, but you, you yourself, and that I love you, and want you to come back and marry me. What would you say?"

"I'd say yes, of course," said Miss Morton.

"Hooray!" shouted Gerald, the years falling from him like a cloak. "We'll be married tonight, and then we'll hit for Florida and forget all about string for a while."

"We'll do nothing of the kind," Miss Morton said firmly, "until we've finished that last volume of yours. It's been delayed too long already."

Gerald, puzzled, started to speak, but was checked by a swift realization that there was a very red mouth very near his and that he'd like to kiss it. So he did.

It was some minutes afterward that his former thought recurred to him, and he said, "If you hate string so, I don't see why you're so anxious to get back to work. I——"

"Because the greatest authority on string must do his work," she explained, "and you're that person. And I'm awfully proud of you. And although you can't learn everything about it, you can keep on knowing more about it than any one else in the world."

"But still I don't see," Gerald persisted. "You said——"

"Never mind what I said," Miss Morton replied with a little laugh. "I wasn't really tired of the work; I was tired of being just an office appliance when—when I loved you. It's different now. You'll have to study a lot more than fifteen years, Mr. Gerald Harkins, before you know as much about women as you do about string!"

HECTOR

By H.C.BUNNER

It Was Clearly Impossible to Have a Man in the House, and So Hector Came.

It was such a quiet old home, so comfortably covered with wistaria from basement to chimney tops, and it stood on the corner of two such quiet, old fashioned streets on the east side of New York that you would never have imagined that it held six of the most agitated and perturbed women in the great city. But the three Misses Pellicoe, their maid, their waitress, and their cook could not have been more troubled in their feminine minds had they been six exceptionally attractive Sabines with the Roman soldiery in full cry.

For twenty years—ever since the death of old Mr. Pellicoe—these six women had lived in mortal fear of the marauding man, and the man had come at last. That very evening, at a quarter past 8 o'clock, a creature who called himself a book agent had rung the front door bell. Honora, the waitress, had opened the door a couple of inches, inquired the stranger's business, learned it, told him to depart, tried to close the door, and discovered that the man had inserted his toe in the opening. She had closed the door violently, and the man had emitted a single oath of deep and sincere profanity. He had then kicked the door and departed with a marked limp.

And Miss Pellicoe had decided what was to be done.

"Sisters," she said to her two juniors, "we must keep a dog."

"A dog!" cried Miss Angela, the youngest. "O, how nice!"

"I do not think it is nice at all," said Miss Pellicoe, somewhat sternly, "nor would you, Angela, if you had any conception of what it really meant. I do not propose to keep a lap dog, or a King Charles spaniel, but a dog—a mastiff, or a bloodhound, or some animal of that nature, such as would spring at the throat of an invader and bear him to the ground!"

"O, dear!" gasped Miss Angela. "I should be afraid of him!"

"You do not understand as yet, Angela," Miss Pellicoe explained, knitting her brows. "My intention is to procure the animal as a—in fact—a puppy, and thus enable him to grow up and to regard us with affection, and be willing to hold himself at all times in readiness to afford us the protection we desire. It is clearly impossible to have a man in the house. I have decided upon a mastiff."

When Miss Pellicoe decided upon a thing Miss Angela Pellicoe and her other sister promptly acquiesced. On this occasion they did not, even in their inmost hearts, question the wisdom of the decision of the head of the house. A man, they knew, was not to be thought of. For twenty years the Pellicoe house had been a bower of virginity. The only men who ever entered it were the old family doctor, the older family lawyer, and annually, on New Year's day, in accordance with an absolute custom, Maj. Kistedge, their father's old partner, once junior of the firm of Pellicoe & Kistedge. Not even the butcher, or the baker, or the candlestick maker forced an entrance to that innocent demesne. They handed their wares through a wicket gate in the back yard and were sent about their business by the chaste Honora.

The next morning, having awakened to find themselves and the silver still safe, Miss Pellicoe and Miss Angela set out for a dog store which they had seen advertised in the papers. It was in an unpleasantly low and ill kept quarter of the town, and when the two ladies reached it they paused outside the door and listened with lengthened faces to the combined clamor and smell that emanated from its open door.

"This," said Miss Pellicoe, after a brief deliberation, "is not a place for us. If we are to procure a dog, he must be procured in some other way. It need not entail a loss of self-respect."

"I have it!" she added with a sudden inspiration; "I will write to Hector."

Hector was the sole male representative of the Pellicoe family. He was a second cousin of the Misses Pellicoe. He lived out west—his address varying from year to year. Once in a long while Miss Pellicoe wrote to him, just to keep herself in communication with the man of the family. It made her feel more secure, in view of possible emergencies. She had not seen Hector since he was 19. He was perhaps the last person of any positive virility who had had the freedom of the Pellicoe household. He had used that freedom mainly in making attempts to kiss Honora, who was then in her buxom prime, and in decorating the family portraits with cork mustaches and whiskers. Miss Pellicoe clung to the man of the family as an abstraction; but she was always glad that he lived in the west. Addressing him in his capacity of man of the family, she wrote to him and asked him to supply her with a young mastiff, and to send her bill therefor. She explained the situation to him, and made him understand that the dog must be of a character to be regarded as a male relative.

Hector responded at once. He would send a mastiff pup within a week. The pup's pedigree was, unfortunately, lost, but the breed was high. Fifty dollars would cover the cost and expenses of transportation. The pup was 6 months old.

For ten days the Pellicoe household was in a fever of expectation. Miss Pellicoe called in a carpenter, and, chaperoned by the entire household, held an interview with him, and directed him how to construct a dog house in the back yard—a dog house with one door about six inches square to admit the occupant in his innocent puphood, and with another door about four feet in height to emit him when in the pride of his mature masculinity he should rush forth upon the burglar and the book agent. The carpenter remarked that he "never seen no such a dorg as that," but Miss Pellicoe thought him at once ignorant and ungrammatical, and paid no heed to him.

In conclave assembled the Misses Pellicoe decided to name the dog Hector. Beside the consideration of the claims of gratitude and family affection, they remembered that Hector was a classical hero.

The ten days came to an end, when, just at dusk of a dull January day, two stalwart expressmen, with much open grumbling and smothered cursing, deposited a huge packing case in the vestibule of the Pellicoe house and departed, slamming the doors behind them. From this box proceeded such yelps and howls that the entire household rushed affrighted to peer through the slats that gridironed the top. Within was a mighty black beast, as high as a table, that flopped itself wildly about, clawed at the side of the box, and swung in every direction a tail as large as a policeman's night club.

It was Hector. There was no mistake about it, for Mr. Hector Pellicoe's card was nailed to a slat. It was Hector, the 6 months old pup, for whose diminutive proportions the small door in the dog house had been devised; Hector, for whom a saucer of lukewarm milk was even then waiting by the kitchen range.

"O, sister!" cried Miss Angela, "we never can get him out! You'll have to send for a man!"

"I certainly shall not send for a man at this hour of the evening," said Miss Pellicoe, white, but firm; "and I shall not leave the poor creature imprisoned during the night." Here Hector yawped madly.

"I shall take him out," continued Miss Pellicoe, "myself."

They hung upon her neck and entreated her not to risk her life; but Miss Pellicoe had made up her mind. The three maids shoved the box into the butler's pantry, shrieking with terror every time that Hector leaped at the slats, and at last, when the two younger Pellicoes holding one door a foot open and the three maids holding the other door an inch open, Miss Pellicoe seized the household hatchet and began her awful task. One slat! Miss Pellicoe was white but firm. Two slats! Miss Pellicoe was whiter and firmer. Three slats!—and a vast black body leaped high in the air. With five simultaneous shrieks the two doors were slammed to, and Miss Pellicoe and Hector were left together in the butler's pantry.

The courage of the younger Pellicoes asserted itself after a moment, and they flung open the pantry door. Miss Pellicoe, looking as though she needed aromatic vinegar, leaned against the wall. Hector had his forepaws on her shoulders and was licking her face in exuberant affection.

"Sisters," gasped Miss Pellicoe, "will you kindly remove him? I should like to faint."

But Hector had already released her to dash at Miss Angela, who frightened him by going into such hysterics that Miss Pellicoe was obliged to deny herself the luxury of a faint. Then he found the maids, and, after driving them before him like chaff for five minutes, succeeded in convincing Honora of the affectionate purpose of his demonstrations and accepted her invitation to the kitchen, where he emptied the saucer of milk in three laps.

"I think, Honora," suggested Miss Pellicoe, who had resumed command, "that you might, perhaps, give him a slice or two of last night's leg of mutton. Perhaps he needs something more sustaining."

Honora produced the mutton leg. It was clearly what Hector wanted. He took it from her without ceremony, bore it under the sink, and ate all of it except about six inches of the bone, which he took to bed with him.

The next day, feeling the need of masculine advice, Miss Pellicoe resolved to address herself to the policeman on the beat, and she astonished him with the following question:

"Sir," she said, in true Johnsonian style, "what height should a mastiff dog attain at the age of six months?"

The policeman stared at her in utter astonishment.

"They do be all sizes, mum," he replied blankly, "like a piece of cheese."

"My relative in the west," explained Miss Pellicoe, "has sent me a dog, and I am given to understand that his age is 6 months. As he is phenomenally large, I have thought it best to seek for information. Has my relative been imposed upon?"

"It's har-r-rd to tell, mum," replied the policeman dubiously. Then his countenance brightened. "Does his feet fit him?" he inquired.

"What—what do you mean?" asked Miss Pellicoe, shrinking back a little.

"Is his feet like blackin' boxes on th' ind of his legs?"

"They are certainly very large."

"Thin 'tis a pup. You see, mum, with a pup, 'tis this way: The feet starts first, an' th' pup grows up to 'em, like. Av they match him, he's grown. Av he has arctics on, he's a pup."

Hector's growth in the next six months dissipated all doubts as to his puphood. He became a four legged Colossus, martial toward cats, aggressive toward the tradesmen at the wicket gate, impartially affectionate toward all the household, and voracious beyond all imagining. But he might have eaten the gentle ladies out of house and home, and they would never have dreamed of protesting. The house had found a head—even a head above Miss Pellicoe.

The deposed monarch gloried in her subjection. She said "Hector likes this," or "Hector likes that," with the tone of submissive deference in which you may hear a good wife say, "Mr. Smith will not eat cold boiled mutton," or "Mr. Smith is very particular about his shirt bosoms."

As for Miss Angela, she never looked at Hector gamboling about the backyard in all his superabundance of strength and vitality without feeling a half agreeable nervous shock and a flutter of the heart. He stood for her as the type of that vast outside world of puissant manhood of which she had known but two specimens—her father and Cousin Hector. Perhaps, in the old days, if Cousin Hector had not been so engrossed in frivolity and making of practical jokes, he might have learned of something to his advantage. But he never did.

For the first time in her life Miss Angela found herself left to watch the house through the horrors of the Fourth of July. This had always been Miss Pellicoe's duty; but this year Miss Pellicoe failed to come back from the quiet place in the Catskills, where no children were admitted, and where the Pellicoe family, two at a time, spent the summer in the society of other old maids and of aged widows.

"I feel that you are safe with Hector," she wrote.

Alas and alack for Miss Pellicoe's faith in Hector! The first firecracker filled him with excitement, and before the noise of the day had fairly begun he was careening around the yard, barking in uncontrollable frenzy. At 11 o'clock, when the butcher boy came with the chops for luncheon, Hector bounded through the open wicket, right into the arms of a dog catcher. Miss Angela wrung her hands as she gazed from her window and saw the head of the house cast into the cage with a dozen curs of the street and driven rapidly off.

In her anguish she sought the functionary who was known in the house as "Miss Pellicoe's policeman."

"Be aisy, miss," he said. "Av the dog is worth five dollars, say, to you, I have a friend who'll get him out for th' accommodation."

"O, take it, take it!" cried Miss Angela, trembling and weeping.

After six hours of anxious waiting Miss Angela received Hector at the front door, from a boy who turned and fled as soon as his mission was accomplished. Hector was extremely glad to be at home, and his health seemed to be unimpaired; but to Miss Angela's delicate fancy contact with the vulgar of his kind had left a vague aroma of degradation about him. With her own hands she washed him in tepid water and sprinkled him with eau de cologne. And even then she could not help feeling that to some extent the bloom had been brushed from the peach.

Hector was ill—very ill. The family conclave assembled every night and discussed the situation with knit brows and tearful eyes. They could not decide whether the cause of his malady was the unwholesomeness of the summer air in the city, or whether it was simply overfeeding. He was certainly shockingly fat, and much indisposed to exertion. He had lost all his activity, all his animal spirits. He spent most of the time in his house. Even his good nature was going. He had actually snapped at Honora. They had tried to make up their minds to reduce his rations; but their hearts had failed them. They had hoped that the cool air of September would help him; but September was well nigh half gone, and Hector grew worse and worse.

"Sisters," said Miss Pellicoe, at last, "we shall have to send for a veterinary!" She spoke as though she had just decided to send for an executioner. And even as the words left her lips there came from Hector such a wail of anguish that Miss Pellicoe's face turned a ghastly white.

"He is going mad!" she cried.

There was no sleep in the Pellicoe household that night, although Hector wailed no more. At the break of day Miss Pellicoe led five other white faced women into the back yard.

Hector's head lay on the sill of his door. He seemed too weak to rise, but he thrashed his tail pleasantly against the walls and appeared amiable and even cheerful. The six advanced.

Miss Pellicoe knelt down and put her hand in to pet him. Then a strange expression came over her face.

"Sisters," she said, "I think—a cat has got in and bitten him."

She closed her hand on something soft, lifted it out, and laid it on the ground. It was small, it was black, it was dumpy. It moved a round head in an uncertain, inquiring way and tried to open its tightly closed eyes. Then it squeaked.

Thrice more did Miss Pellicoe thrust her hand into the house. Thrice again did she bring out an object exactly similar.

"Wee-e-e-e!" squeaked the four objects. Hector thrashed her tail about and blinked joyfully, all unconscious of the utter wreck of her masculinity, looking as though it were the most natural thing in the world for her to have a litter of pups—as, indeed, it was.

Honora broke the awful silence. Miss Angela was sobbing so softly you could hardly hear her.

"Be thim Hector's?" Honora inquired.

"Honora!" said Miss Pellicoe, rising, "never utter that name in my presence again."

"An' fwat shall I call the dog?"

"Call it"—and Miss Pellicoe made a pause of impressive severity—"call it—Andromache."

The White Feather by Lechmere Worrall and J. E. Harold Terry

Herewith is presented another installment of one of the most thrilling serial stories ever written. It is from the pens of two famous English novelists and playwrights, J. E. Harold Terry and Lechmere Worrall.

"The White Feather" is particularly interesting at this time when the United States is just entering the war in earnest. It deals with conditions in England during the first few months of the war, when England had not yet awakened to the danger to the empire from the web of German spies which was woven throughout the social, political, and domestic life of Great Britain. The story is a masterpiece of plot ingenuity. The machinations of the spies, the reaction of England's women to the attitude of the slackers who refused to join the army, and the difficulties this attitude caused against patriotic and generous men are worked together in an inimitable and exciting manner. Throughout there runs a beautiful love story, unmatched in recent fiction.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens in the Wave Crest private hotel in an English seacoast town when England has been at war one month. Mrs. Sanderson, the proprietress; her son, Charles, serving in the English admiralty; Mr. Pollock, the justice of the peace; his daughter, Molly, 19; Christopher Brent, Molly's fiance; Mrs. Miriam Lee, a widow of 35, the latest arrival at the hotel; Miss Myrtle, a spinster; Fräulein Schroeder, a colorless little German woman, claiming twenty years of English naturalization; Pennicuik, a young English soldier, and Fritz, a servant in the house. Brent is looked upon by all the other hotel occupants, excepting Molly and Mrs. Lee, as an irresponsible idiot, due to acts and conversation he affects, especially when war talk, which is uppermost in all conversation, is conducted in his presence. A young English girl, an hysterical enthusiast, breaks in on the hotel party one morning carrying a basket of white feathers, one of which she is going to present to every man she meets who has not enlisted. In the presence of almost the entire hotel personnel she asks Brent if he is going to enlist, and why not. He says he is not, but his reasons are evasive. Molly cringes under the disfavor Brent thus brings down upon himself by what her father calls cowardice. Brent tries to gain Molly's absolute faith in him without disclosing the nature of his real business. But partly because of his lack of faith in keeping things from her and because of his seeming flirtation and constant attendance upon the widow, Miriam Lee, Molly wavers. Young Pennicuik proposes to Molly and warns her Brent is not the man to make her happy, his decision being based entirely upon Brent's peculiar reticence about himself, his unenlisting, and his attitude toward Mrs. Lee. Brent examines the fireplace and discovers a secret wireless installation. Brent discovers Mrs. Sanderson to be the widow of Colonel Von Mandel. Brent confronts Fräulein Schroeder returning from a seemingly innocent visit to the English harbor and its defenses, and finds that she has made a comprehensive drawing of these points. Brent installs a dictaphone in the living room of the hotel, and hears the entire conversations held therein by the German spies. He learns of an intended plot to signal a German submarine from the hotel by burning the hotel to the ground, the occupants along with it.

SIXTH INSTALLMENT.

Brent Suspected.

CHRIS listened for a moment with a little smile of sympathy and understanding tugging at his mouth. Then, as he recognised the "Danse Macarbe" and heard the dry rattling of the skeletons, he felt a little shiver. Why had she chosen to play that grisly composition tonight of all nights? He straightened himself, turned out the light, and went down stairs and out to the veranda. He knew that Charles Sanderson had been taken to his mother's room when he arrived and that the disaster to the pigeon must have been made known to him. What he did not know was whether the supposed map had yet been discovered to be a dummy. He went out along the deserted veranda to where his little Eavesdropper's Friend was concealed in the palm. He could see by the thin line of light between the drawn curtains of the sitting room that people were within, and, crouching down, he prepared to listen.

There were only two voices speaking in the sitting room, and they were the voices of Charles Sanderson and Fritz.

"So now you think it is Brent, do you?" Charles was saying.

He was speaking very low, but every word was audible through the mysterious agency of the little disc.

"I am sure it must be Prent. I watch and I watch Mr. Pollock and I see him do no more, but I see Prent with mine own eyes shoot the pird."

"But my mother says he did not seem at all upset or confused," remarked Charles. "Either he is an utter fool or excessively clever. I wish I knew which. Damn him, anyway! The work of months ruined, ruined, and all by this blithering creature with an eyeglass. But the map's safe, thank goodness."

"Ah, dat; yes," replied Fritz. "But I have more bad news. Another dreadful thing that has happened to me."

"What? Good God! Out with it, man! What have you done now?"

"It is not I who have done anything," replied Fritz in an injured voice. "Fräulein Schroeder, she give me a letter mit plans to post. She and Mrs. Sanderson go out, I was left to myself here. I begin to tidy the room. Suddenly from nowhere some one spring upon my back; my back, it is nearly broke, and tied dis handkerchief about mine eyes. One second only and I tear it off, but it is too late; he is gone, and de plans also."

Sanderson walked up and down the room for a moment, not trusting himself to speak. "What a damn fool you are!" he said at last. "First the [illegible], then the pigeon, and now the plans. Who is it? Who the devil is it?"

"It is Prent," Fritz repeated stolidly. "I am sure. Mr. Pollock, he is a strong man and heavy, but I do not think he could have leaped on my back like that. Anyway, here is de handkerchief," and he pulled a large red and green bandanna, still knotted, from his pocket.

Followed a little silence, during which Brent rightly guessed that Charles must be examining the handkerchief. Brent's shoulders shook a little with a silent laugh, for the handkerchief, as he well knew when he had used it, was not his at all, but the one Mr. Pollock had dropped during his indignant exit. The idea to use it had come to Christopher in one of those flashes to which he always trusted.

"Well, there's no mark on it," Charles said at last, "might belong to anybody. Pah! it smells of scent; scent and tobacco."

"Mr. Prent, he use scent," cried Fritz eagerly. "I see a pottle of eau-de-Cologne on his dressing table."

"This isn't eau-de-Cologne. Well, I must find out. You had better be getting on with the dinner now, Fritz. Clear out."

Fritz cleared out and Brent made his way into the hall. Molly was still playing stormily and took no notice of him.

She was dressed simply in a little pale pink gown with a blue sash, and the pallor which had been hers all day had given place to a bright flush on her cheeks. Brent thought he had never seen her look so triumphantly pretty and so childishly young.

Mrs. Lee, coming down the stairs in a wonderful black and gold gown, seemed suddenly old and faded to his eyes. Unconscious of this—indeed, aware of looking her best—Miriam came across the hall and under cover of the music spoke eagerly but very low to Brent.

"Well, anything fresh?" she asked.

"Nothing in particular," replied Brent, beginning to move slowly in the direction of the sitting room with her. "I think everything's fairly clear now. We have got to prevent 'em burning the house down tonight and we've got to get our signals through to the cruisers, that's all."

"It's horrible," said Miriam. "I shouldn't have thought human beings could have planned to do such a dreadful thing. It's fiendish."

Brent shrugged his shoulders. "They're logical enough," he said; "it's all war."

"It seems to me we're taking too great a chance, Kit," went on Miriam. "What's going to happen to the others? Suppose they do manage to fire the house, there's Miss Myrtle, Mr. Pollock—Molly."

"My dear girl, don't I know it? The fact that I know it and remain calm ought to show you how sure I am of success. If I were to give the show away now and have the whole bally lot arrested we miss nabbing our friend Um, to say nothing of perhaps letting a lot of other people get warned of the failure too soon so that they can slip away."

"All right, Kit, but I've got nerves somehow. What do you want me to do?"

"I want you to appear to go to bed in the ordinary way, just as if nothing had happened. And then——"

Here the door of the sitting room opened and Charles came toward them.

"Would you believe it," continued Brent, as though going on with a story, "he actually went three in no trumps."

"What is this tragic tale, Mr. Brent?" asked Charles.

"It's about an idiot who went three in no trumps without a spade in his hand. Can you imagine anything more ghastly?"

"Are you going to have a rubber tonight?" asked Charles, turning and strolling back into the sitting room with them.

"No, Mrs. Lee has challenged me to a game of snooker after dinner. We've got a pair of gloves on it."

"Have a cigaret?" asked Charles, "that is, if Mrs. Lee doesn't object," and he held out his case toward Brent.

"No, thanks, I'm a piper."

"Are you? What sort of tobacco do you smoke?"

Miriam, to whom all this conversation was so much Greek, watched the two with puzzled eyes. It was obvious to her that Charles was trying to find out something, but what, she could not tell.

"I have rather a special mixture," replied Brent casually, "a little tobacconist makes it up for me."

"O! It's scented, isn't it?" asked Charles.

"Scented? No, I don't think so. I'm sure it isn't," and Brent pulled out his pouch and sniffed at it.

"Most people jeer at scented tobacco," remarked Charles in a chatty manner, "but I rather like it myself. I have always had a keen sense of smell from my boyhood, and there's nothing I enjoy more than a really good sniff at a rose, for example, or even a good perfume. I suppose it's an effeminate habit, but I always use some on my handkerchief."

"O, do you?" Brent's voice betrayed nothing but a polite assumption of interest. "I don't myself. Can't stand it."

"O, then this handkerchief isn't yours, I suppose? Some one's evidently dropped it and I picked it up," and Charles sniffed again at the bandanna which he had drawn from his pocket.

At this moment Mr. Pollock, displaying a marvelous expanse of glossy shirt front, came into the room.

"Hello, Sanderson, you're back, I see," he boomed. "That's splendid. Telling Brent the latest news from town, eh?"

"No, as a matter of fact we were discussing perfumes," replied Charles casually, still drawing the handkerchief lightly across his nostrils. He suddenly held it out toward Brent. "It is yours, isn't it, Brent?" he asked.

Chris took the handkerchief and inspected it blandly, but Mr. Pollock, cramming his pincenez more firmly down on his nose, darted forward.

"No, dash it all, it's not. That's mine," he said, and snatched it from Brent's hands.

Fritz, coming in at that moment to announce dinner, stopped dead, bereft of speech.

. . . .

Dinner that night was a triumph of civilization. Mere animals cannot dissemble. That is an accomplishment which comes with education. And, always with the exception of Mr. Pollock and the Myrtle, every one at Wave Crest played a part and played it well during dinner. There was probably hardly a word of truth spoken.

After dinner the Sandersons and fräulein gathered together for a council of war in the sitting room.

Mrs. Sanderson had changed her black satin dress for another, also of black satin, cut in what is known as a "modest V." At dinner she had looked very pleasant, very dignified. Now her face was pale with anxiety, and the innumerable tiny veins that went to make her usual color showed patchily. She was very anxious; so was Charles. But he showed no signs of it beyond an increasing grimness in the setting of his lips and added pucker between his fair brows. Fräulein still burned with that inward glow and was the most confident of the three, because she was upheld with the fires of her spiritual conviction.

"Something tells me it is Brent," declared fräulein firmly.

"Fritz thought so for a time," said Charles moodily, "but now he thinks it is Pollock again. Certainly Pollock is quite strong and vigorous enough to have got those plans away from Fritz."

"But if so," argued Mrs. Sanderson, "why did Pollock admit that the handkerchief was his?"

"My dear mother, whoever we are up against is certainly no fool, and he may have done it as a blind. In fact, if he did do it, claiming the handkerchief was about the cleverest thing he could have done. The trouble is, we are faced with the two alternatives of Brent and Pollock, and whichever one of them it is must have a genius for acting. Whether it is Pollock's pompousness or Brent's fatuity that is the mask, the finesse of it is simply incredible."

"Ach," said fräulein suddenly, "what about Mrs. Lee?"

"Mrs. Lee! I wonder. . . . Yes, that is quite a possible idea. What do you think, mother?"

"I certainly think it might be Mrs. Lee. We know nothing of her. She simply sent a telegram and came down."

"It is quite the type," continued fräulein. "The charming widow, with money, traveling alone."

"And in that case," said Charles, pursuing the idea to its logical outcome, "it is probably Brent as well. They're thick as thieves."

Mrs. Sanderson shook her head. "I do not think so," she said. "[illegible] she is a very clever woman, as well as a very charming one, and she probably [illegible] upon Brent as her most likely [illegible]. [illegible] it was she who taunted him into shooting that pigeon this evening."

"We must make sure," said [illegible]. "What about Miss Pollock, the girl? She is in love with Brent. Surely there is a way we can use her."

"We might tell her that Brent's a [illegible] in the pay of the Germans," [illegible] Charles.

"Ach, she'd only laugh at us," said fräulein. "It must be done better than that. Brent has not yet explained why he won't enlist. Miss Pollock must be made to think of that. She will confront him, and if he doesn't satisfy her——"

"My dear fräulein," broke in Charles impatiently, "if Christopher Brent represents the English intelligence department, a [illegible] of beauty won't get the truth out of him."

They were interrupted by Fritz, who burst into the room obviously in a state of great excitement.

"Mr. Karl, sair," he cried, "[illegible] map it is not dat I place on the pigeon. Just now have I examined it and I find it has been changed."

"Damnation!" said Charles. "[illegible] it to me. By God, it is a substitution, waterproof silk and all. This proves [illegible]"

"That it is Brent?" asked fräulein. "[illegible] I am not surprised."

"We must muzzle him [illegible]," [illegible] Charles. "The question is how. [illegible] him up to his room on some pretext and gagging and tying him up there is too risky."

"Ach, but wait," advised fräulein. "I have a plan." She folded her little arms on the table and leaned forward across them to him, her shoulders hunched up under her brown shawl, looking not unlike a big bird of prey, with her features that were too sharp for the broad modeling of her face and her bright brown eyes.

"We will tell Mr. Pollock [illegible]," she went on, "and suggest he warn his daughter. Pollock is a magistrate. He doesn't like Brent and wants to get him out of the way as much as we do. If we make out a good case he will have him arrested at once on suspicion."

"Whatever kind of yarn can we spin on Pollock?"

"The truth is good enough for me," said fräulein placidly.

"The truth?" asked Mrs. Sanderson.

"Yes. Is not Charles a servant of the English admiralty? Does he not [illegible] valuable papers?"

"By Jove, fräulein," said Charles, "you have got it!" He did not gesticulate like Fritz or show emotion as readily as his mother, but even he seemed to glow with suppressed excitement, though he sat quite still in his chair.

"Find Mr. Pollock, Fritz," he said, "and ask him if he will come in for a moment. See that we are not disturbed."

"Very well, sir."

"I will go," said fräulein. "It would not do to have me, a German, present at this interview. You must tell me afterward." She wrapped her shawl about her thin shoulders and departed with Fritz.

A moment later and Mr. Pollock [illegible] in the doorway, his face beaming with after dinner redness.

"Fritz says you have been kind enough to invite me to have a cigar with you," he said cheerfully.

Charles rose and drew a chair up to the table for him.

"I shall be charmed if you will have a cigar," he said, offering one. "But the real reason of the request is that my mother and I want the benefit of your advice."

"Dear me, dear me," said Mr. Pollock, much gratified and pulling his chair in with the air of a chairman at a board meeting. "I shall be very pleased to do anything I can. As a J. P., of course, I have had great experience of human nature, and I may be able to throw a little light on anything that is puzzling you. What is it all about?"

Mrs. Sanderson leaned forward confidentially.

"You are very good, Mr. Pollock," she said. "The fact is, we are in a very awkward predicament."

"Indeed, you don't say so. I'm sorry to hear it, I'm sure."

"It is this way," began Charles, leaning forward in his turn, so that Mr. Pollock was fairly hemmed in by Sandersons. "[illegible]

[illegible] last night I [illegible] important papers— [illegible] papers have dis- [illegible] and eyes [illegible] what do

[illegible] which. Damn him, any- [illegible] The work of months ruined, ruined [illegible] all by this blithering creature with [illegible].

"[illegible]," replied Charles briefly.

"[illegible]!" said Mr. Pollock. "This [illegible]. Do you suspect any one?"

"We suspect that one of our number is [illegible]."

Mr. Pollock almost bounded in his chair. [illegible] thing to talk glibly about spies, [illegible], and all the rest of the bag of [illegible] just as one may discuss a terrible [illegible] accident on the other side of the [illegible]. It is a very different thing, however, [illegible] made real to one by some intimate [illegible]. Spies exist, of course; so do [illegible] accidents, but these things have [illegible] to do with one's self or even one's [illegible] and relations. If Mr. Pollock [illegible] pressed for definitions he would [illegible] they happened in newspapers, and [illegible] he was sitting at a table with the [illegible], being quite solemnly and quietly [illegible] that there was a German spy in [illegible] house.

"[illegible] really is true," he said, as though [illegible] himself.

"What is true?" asked Mrs. Sanderson [illegible].

"[illegible] and all that. . . . I suppose [illegible] is such a thing . . ."

"[illegible] Mr. Pollock," replied Mrs. [illegible], "you read us paragraphs about [illegible] from the papers every day; [illegible] every one, have always been [illegible] talking about spies. Why, [illegible] should you be so surprised?"

"[illegible] so different in the papers," said Mr. Pollock weakly. "What a terrible [illegible] in this house, you say, Sanderson? [illegible] you must be mistaken."

"[illegible] not," replied Charles quietly, [illegible] his eyes fixed on Mr. Pollock's [illegible] ever since that gentleman had [illegible] room.

"[illegible] it's either Fritz or fräulein," [illegible] Pollock.

"[illegible], I'm afraid. Fräulein's posi- [illegible] is too obvious for her to in- [illegible] even if she wanted to. [illegible] have all his movements ac- [illegible] for, and I have searched his room; besides, his Dutch papers are perfectly in order."

Mr. Pollock began to count off the remaining guests on his short, pudgy fingers.

"Well, then, there's only my daughter; that is out of the question, of course. Miss Myrtle"—and an involuntary smile of contempt broke from him—"why, the mere idea is absurd. Then there's Brent; he is too much of a fool, and Mrs. Lee—and myself." Here he came to an abrupt pause and slowly his face became suffused with an even stronger rosiness than usual. "Good heavens!" he went on. "You don't mean to say you have got the impertinence to suggest that I—if you brought me in here to insult me—that accounts for why that little foreign devil of a Fritz has been dogging my footsteps all way—by heavens!—I'll——"

"Dear Mr. Pollock," interrupted Mrs. Sanderson, "do pray keep calm; it isn't you we suspect at all. How could we? In fact, it is in your official capacity as a justice of the peace that we have called you in."

Mr. Pollock very slowly subsided again, rather like one of those penny toys blown out with air which diminish and collapse in front of the hawkers on the London pavements.

The Sandersons waited until calm was restored. Then Charles spoke.

"We suspect Mr. Brent," he said, "and, very likely, Mrs. Lee."

"Brent! Pooh; nonsense—too much of a fool."

"We have grave doubts," replied Charles, not without a certain dry humor, "as to his lack of intelligence."

"And Mrs. Lee, you say?" went on Mr. Pollock. "Mrs. Lee and Brent? By Jove, that explains a lot—why Brent wouldn't enlist and why he and Mrs. Lee have been sitting in each other's pockets. My girl's had a lucky escape, and so I shall tell her."

"That was another reason," replied Mrs. Sanderson, "why I thought you ought to be told."

"Very right, Mrs. Sanderson; very right indeed, but even in my private capacity, still less in my judicial one, I never jump to conclusions. Have you any proof against Brent? Do you know that he has got the papers?"

"No, the case rests on suspicion only at present," answered Charles; "that is where we thought you or your daughter could help us. You will not forget, Mr. Pollock, that it is your bounden duty as an Englishman to use every means in your power to discover those papers, which are of vital importance to the admiralty."

"Certainly; O certainly; but I don't see what my daughter can do."

"I gather from what my mother has told me that Miss Pollock has more influence with Brent than any one else has, and from what I have observed myself I should say that whatever duplicity he may indulge in elsewhere he is very genuinely devoted to her."

"I thought so until today myself," admitted Mr. Pollock. "But I don't believe Molly would consent to try to get anything out of Brent. When I tried to throw suspicion on him today about not enlisting and about Mrs. Lee she only said that she trusted him absolutely and all that sort of stuff. You know what women are."

"But don't forget," put in Mrs. Sanderson, "that Mrs. Lee is involved in this suspicion, too, when you arouse Miss Molly to take steps."

"Ah, if we could prove that, then Molly would be cured of this undesirable attachment. Upon my word, I almost wish we could."

"If I may speak for my son," went on Mrs. Sanderson, "I should say that even a hint that Mrs. Lee and Mr. Brent were working together would be sufficient to make your daughter determined to try and find out the truth."

A slow smile spread over Mr. Pollock's face. "Set a woman to catch a woman, eh?" he asked wisely. "Especially when there is a man in the case!" And he gave the satisfied chuckle of the man who understands all about women.

Mrs. Sanderson shook her finger at him. "You know too much, Mr. Pollock!" she said archly. "You make none of us feel safe."

"Observation, my dear lady, merely observation. In my position as a justice of the peace I have had very queer aspects of human nature brought under my notice, and one thing I have discovered—that all women are alike, all of them."

"You will understand, Mr. Pollock, why my mother and I called you in to help us. We feel that you, with your wide experience, are the man to handle the situation authoritatively and delicately."

"My dear sir, just leave it to me; leave it entirely to me. If I can prove even anything suspicious against Brent he shall be laid by the heels tonight."

"Let us hope, for his sake, that you will not be able to," Charles replied. "Have another cigar, Mr. Pollock. Mother, perhaps you will find Miss Pollock and ask her to come in here to her father. I will just go and have a turn on the cliff; it's a lovely night."

Left alone, Mr. Pollock puffed furiously at his cigar, determined to be both firm and tactful and trying to arrange how he should go about it. He felt completely master of the situation when Molly came into the room.

The bright colors still held in Molly's cheeks and her eyes glittered. She had been at the piano again since dinner, while the others were all playing their respective games, and she still had the tenseness of aspect which a piano can give, as though something of quality of its wires passed into the performer through the finger tips.

Molly had been playing like one possessed, and she was possessed by jealousy and fear, the two worst feelings known to the soul. Up till now everything had gone so easily for Molly. At school she had been popular with the girls because she was pretty and sweet and not clever enough to make them feel uncomfortable, and popular with the mistresses because she was intelligent enough, backed by her prettiness and sweetness, to do them credit. Also hers was the gift possessed by so many people who never feel intensely, the gift of attracting affection.

She had loved Brent quite naturally, and as easily as she loved a summer's day, or a dance, or a box of chocolates. There had never been anything about her love to make her afraid either of herself or of him—and perfect love makes fear. Fear of the fates, lest the whole universe from lightning to a taxicab should be bent on the destruction of the loved one. Fear of one's self that such known emotions should be stronger than a lifetime's training. Fear of the other lest he should wake up one morning and find himself no longer in love. The last of these fears had hold of Molly now and was touching her all the others. From merely loving she had fallen in love. Even Mr. Pollock saw something unusual and disconcerting about her tonight as she came into the room and stood in front of him.

"What's the matter, father?" she asked, and if such a thing had been possible when she was speaking to him, Mr. Pollock would have thought her voice sounded bored. "Mrs. Sanderson told me you wanted to speak to me about something important."

"So I do, so I do. Sit down, my child. You don't look quite yourself, and I'm not surprised, I'm sure. It has been a most disturbing day in many ways."

Molly sat down and Mr. Pollock came and loomed over her from the hearth rug.

"I have something of very grave importance to say to you. Something of international importance," he announced.

A little smile flitted over Molly's face. She was beginning to see the funny side of her parent.

"It all sounds very thrilling," she answered. "What is it about?"

"It is about your—your late admirer, Christopher Brent."

The polite attention went out of Molly's face. She leaned wearily back in her chair.

"O, father, don't start that again. I'm so tired of it. You have said quite enough about it."

"Have I, indeed? And let me tell you, miss, this is something you have never heard before," said Mr. Pollock, his tact flying away in his excitement. "You were not aware, I take it, that Mr. Brent is suspected of being a spy—a German spy?"

Molly stared at him a moment and burst out laughing. "O, father, that's really too ridiculous. However did you get hold of that idea?"

"This is no laughing matter. You may be sure, Molly, I should not distress you by telling it you unless I had good grounds for the assertion. Certain important documents which the admiralty had intrusted to young Sanderson have disappeared."

"That is no reason why Chris should have stolen them."

"I am quite aware of that. As a justice of the peace, Molly, I have learned not to connect statements too readily and without proof. I do not positively say that Brent has stolen them. What I do say is that suspicion points in his direction. As a matter of fact, it points in the direction of Mrs. Lee as well."

"Mrs. Lee!" Molly's supine figure straightened to uprightness. "I shouldn't be surprised if it was Mrs. Lee, I shouldn't be a bit surprised."

The process of reasoning that had taken place so quickly in Molly's mind was as follows: "Mrs. Lee is flirting with Chris. I love Chris. Therefore Mrs. Lee is a German spy." This satisfied Molly completely. She could not help feeling glad that Mrs. Lee was a spy. Although, of course, she was very sorry that important admiralty papers had been stolen.

"There you are, then!" cried Mr. Pollock triumphantly. "What was I telling you?"

"That's not the same thing as saying it's Chris," declared Molly somewhat elliptically. "I won't believe it of him, nothing would make me."

"Can you explain why they are so intimate then? If it isn't that, it's certainly something else," and Mr. Pollock resettled his pince-nez with an air of triumph.

Molly sat silent, clutching the arms of the chair.

"They are supposed to have met yesterday for the first time," continued Mr. Pollock remorselessly. "Any fool can see that's a fairy tale. Can't you?"

Molly did not answer, but her head drooped a little lower.

"Very well, then, if they had met before yesterday why did they conceal it? If their acquaintance is innocent why should not they be open about it? Then there's another thing. Why doesn't Brent enlist? He says he can't. Very well, then, let him give his reasons. He declines to. Something fishy about that, eh? Well, haven't you got anything to say?"

"Mrs. Lee a spy," repeated Molly thoughtfully, having taken not the slightest notice of this last speech of her father's. For it flashed across her that this would account for a great deal. If Mrs. Lee was a spy, and if Chris too was a spy, it meant that he did not necessarily care for her after all; that they were merely working together.

The TEENIE WEENIES [illegible] INCH STREAM OF WATER

THE General knew that if the army expected to rescue the Lady of Fashion and the Poet, who had been captured by wild men, it must hurry at top speed in order to save its little friends. All sorts of troubles popped up in its path, but the soldiers set their tiny teeth and plugged along in spite of everything. The army lost half a day when one of the baggage wagons broke down in a big mud hole, for the wheel had to be fixed before the army could again take up the march.

With the help of the scouts the army was able to find the best roads, for the Indian and the Cowboy, mounted on mice, rode ahead and picked out the best path. The Turk was of much help, too, in picking out the best roads, for he was able to see a great distance from the back of his bird aeroplane.

"General," said the Cowboy one afternoon as he rode up to the commander of the little army, "I believe there's more trouble ahead of us."

"What!" shouted the General. "Great guns, now what's the trouble?"

"Well, sir, there's a stream of water and I'm afraid we'll be forced to march a long way out of our road before we can find a place shallow enough to cross."

The General ordered the Turk to fly up and down the stream on a scouting trip while the army stopped for lunch. Late in the afternoon the Turk reported to the General that it would take a two days' march out of their road to a place where the stream could be crossed. The army pushed on and shortly after dark stopped near the stream, where it made camp for the night.

The next morning the Dutchman, Doctor, Old Soldier, and the General gathered for a council of war on the banks of the raging stream. The banks were very steep, and although the water was only twelve feet (three inches in our measurement) wide, it rushed along at a great speed.

"Vell," said the Dutchman, "it vould take der army two days to march to der blace vere der vater iss not so deep yet to cross, und it vould take about a day und a half to build der bridge. Vhy not build der bridge?"

The war council thought the Dutchman's idea a good one and the General ordered the men to start work at once. Pulleys and ropes were brought out of the army wagons and some big logs were cut from a bush near by, for supports. Several cat tails, which grew near the stream, were sawed up into logs for the floor of the bridge. The bird, who was aeroplane for the army, carried the workmen and ropes to the other side of the stream, where work was soon started on a fifty-two foot Teenie Weenie bridge.

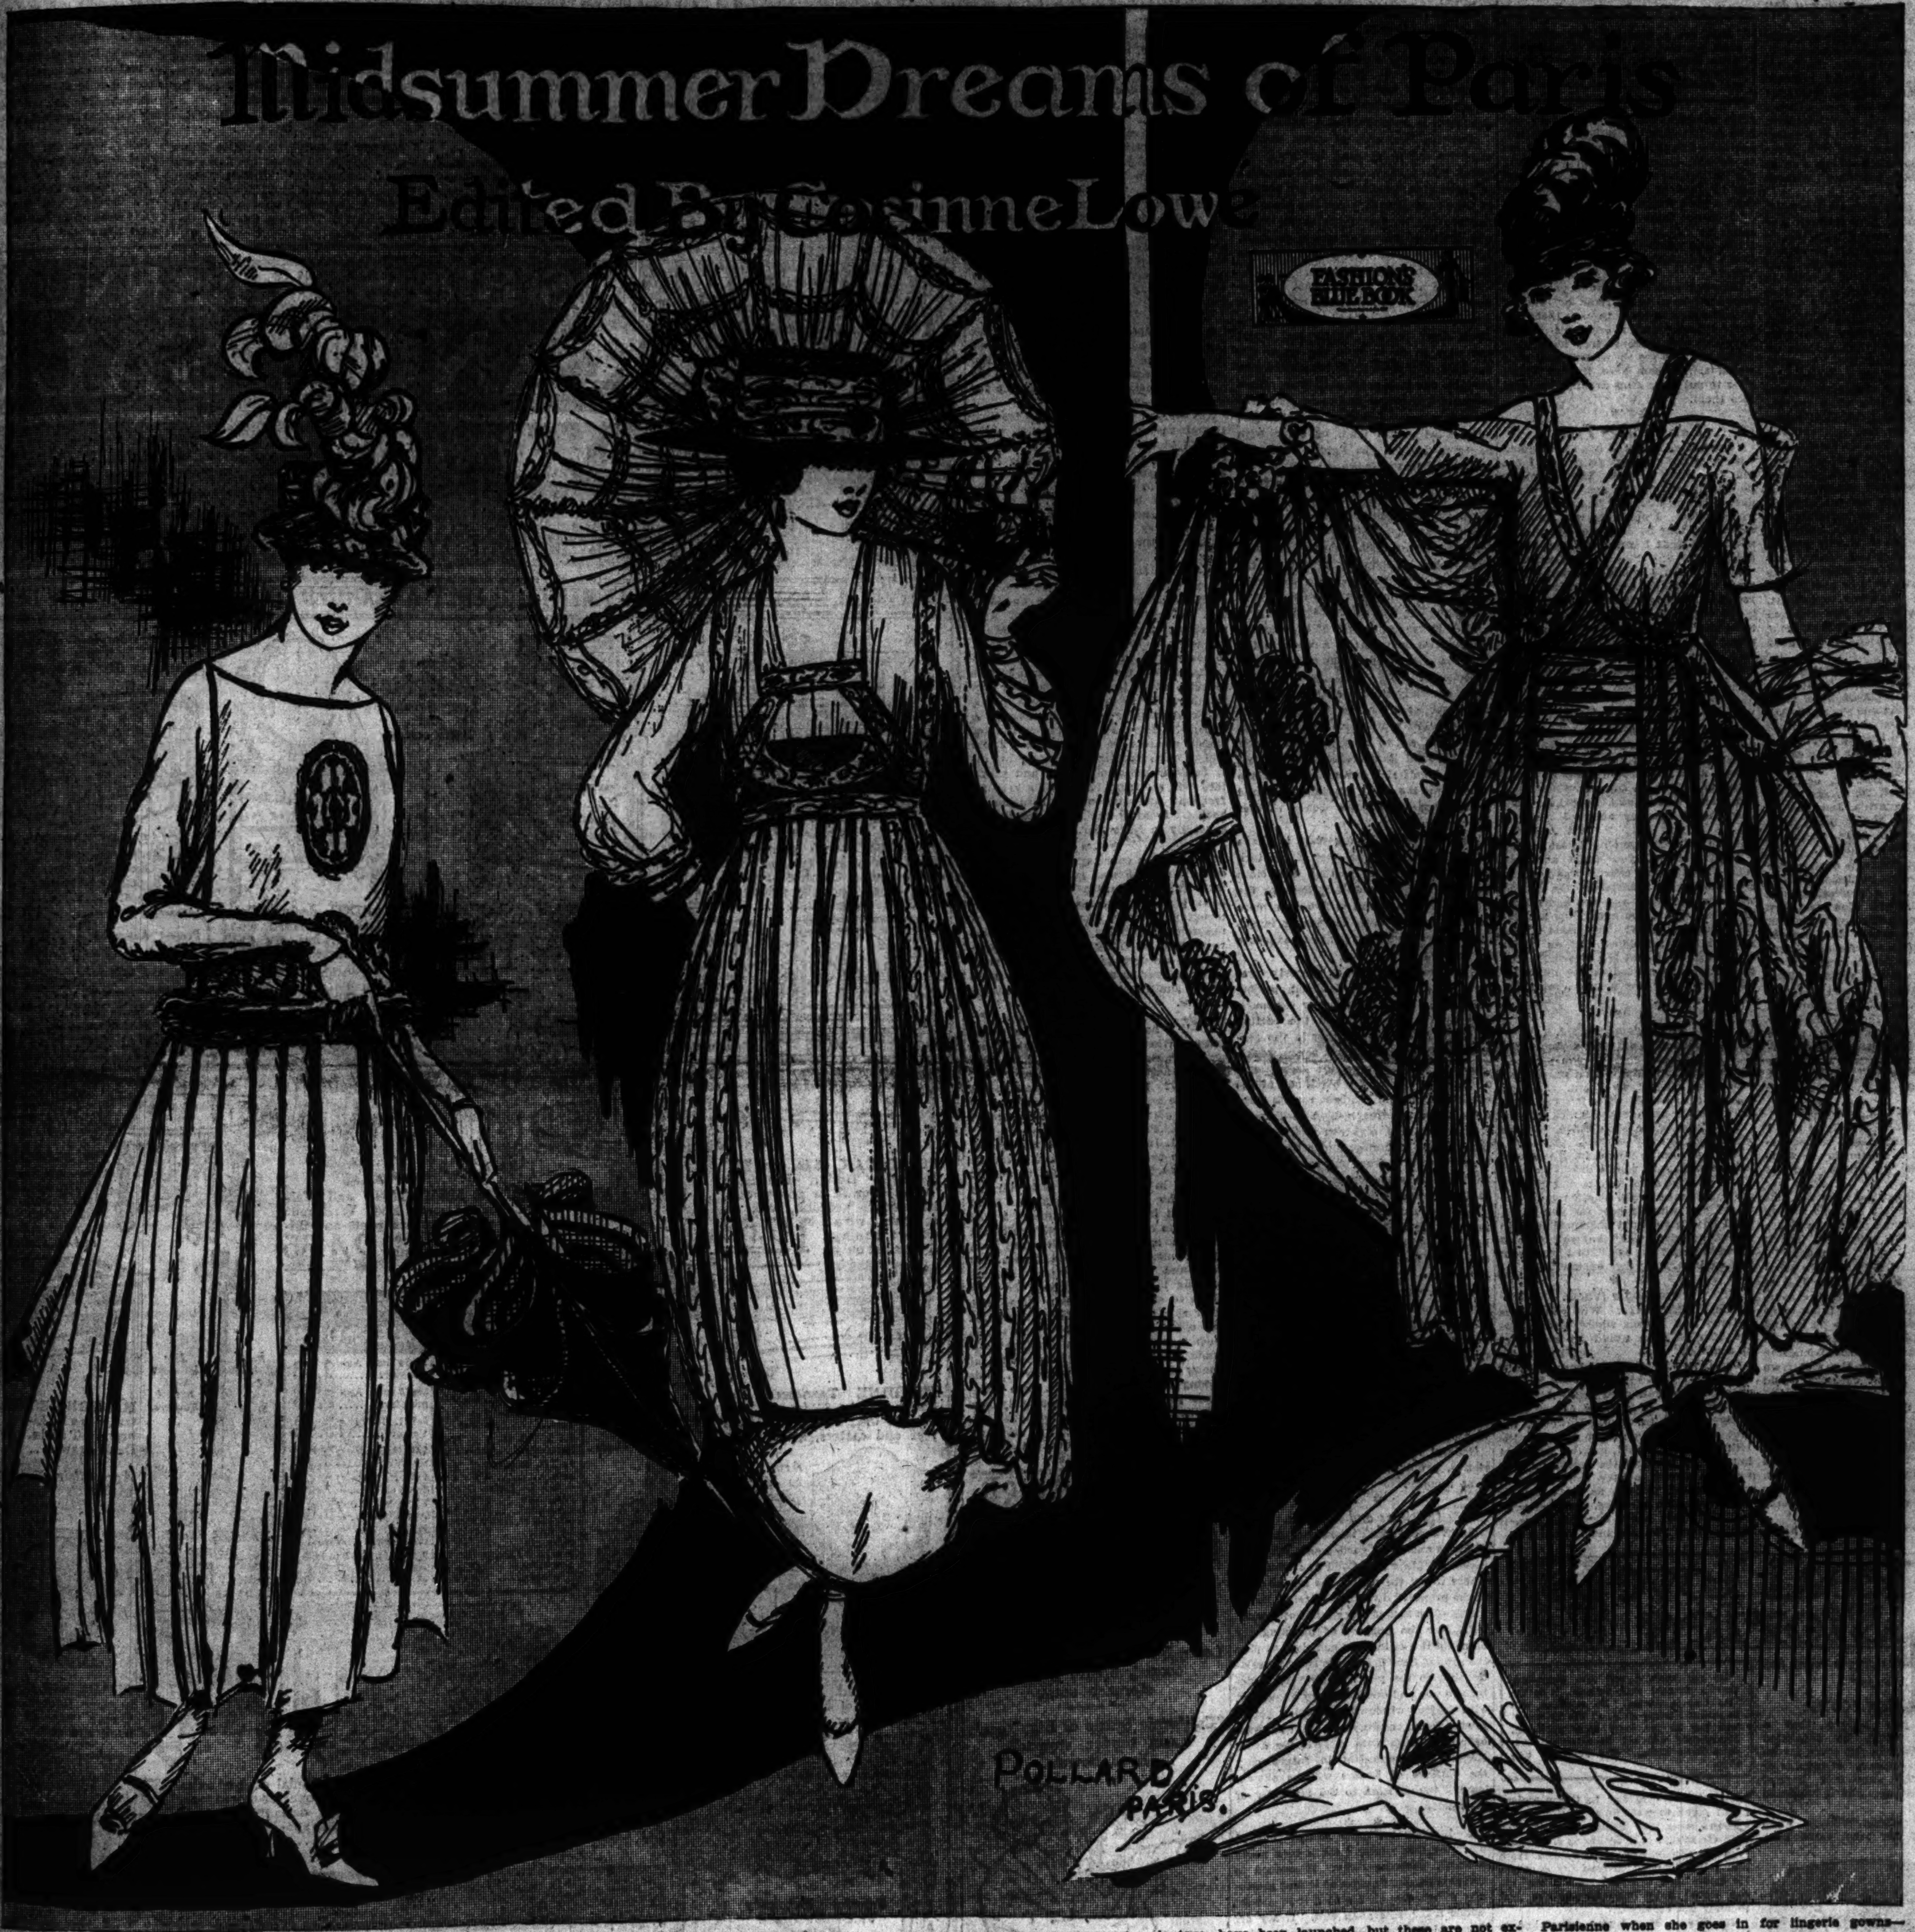
Midsummer Dreams of Paris

Edited By Corinne Lowe



This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

WHAT does little Miss Muffet of Paris care about the great big spider provided it be of macrame lace and safely enmeshed in her parasol web of filet lace. This accessory, worn by the central figure, is one of the caprices of the moment.

For the rest, the frock of pale yellow organdy is finished with ribands of filet lace, with a girdle of brown moire and don't overlook, please, the two cuffs and bracelet of filet! The simple effective hat is a black satin sailor draped with white filet.

The figure to the left wears a trotteur designed by Worth for Madame Berthe Bady, the actress. New of shoulder line, embroidered elaborately in tan and edged with the fashionable Siberian rat, it provides a model which—sans fur—might be charmingly adapted in linen. The hat, of coarse beige straw, has such an extravagant panache of beige coque feathers that even the Bois de Boulogne looked up.

The last lady is ready to keep her evening engagement in the oyster white satin frock designed by Paquin for Mlle. Alice Clairville. Bodice, overskirt, and the curious draped sash of emerald green net are trimmed with silver embroidery and a heavy empiecement of silver lace. With it a scarf of flesh pink tulle embroidered in Brobdingnag silver roses suggests a new thing in the bracelet of silver roses through which the arm passes.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.—It is second nature to the Parisienne to dress her moods. Just as she can say volumes by the lift of an eyebrow, the shrug of a shoulder, or a word, she is able to tell you just how she is feeling by the cut of her trotteur. Consequently Paris continues to clothe itself beautifully. But in those exquisite garments which we see today who could not read the great world stirring crisis? It is not the gay Paris of three years ago. It is a Paris where women continue to dress exquisitely, individually, even emotionally. And, though the silhouette of the moment is the long, straight, almost somber one where dresses cut straight from the neck to the hem are held to the body—generally in front only—by a high, narrow belt or a draped sash, there is no want of artistry, the lovely materials and the fine perceptions which we associate with the great French capital.

No, from the first Paris has not made the mistake of paralyzing one of her most important industries by a false idea of economy. Although the regulation evening gown is not seen at either theater or restaurant Paris makes up for it in other ways. And if one peeps in at the Ritz or Les Ambassadeurs—those two favorite dining places of the fashionable Parisienne—or if one wanders out to Armenonville, that most charming of restaurants in the Bois where tables are set against a background of green trees and the brilliant summer flowers which blaze beside the lake, one may see just how faithful Paris is to her old traditions of dressing.

The newest note in dressing is a sort of modernized Watteau effect. This note is so emphatic that many people are predicting that Watteau skirts will be developed in the fall openings in August. Strange, indeed, if this should prove to be the case! For Watteau, as we all remember, was the very apostle of that frivolity of spirit which prefaced the storm of the French revolution. And it would really be just a little bit uncanny if now—in this period of great stress—we should take up the panniers—quaint feminine extravaganzas—with which this poet-painter is chiefly associated.

The correct length of skirts is at present from seven to eight inches above the ground. Longer models, it is true, have been launched, but these are not expected to find favor for a year at least.

Pepper and salt mixtures, quite a novelty in conservative Paris where plain materials are almost always the rule, are new, and one sees checks on every hand. A smart pale gray pepper and salt suit by Cheruit worn in the Bois recently featured a mole gray duvetyn collar.

Foulard, crepe de chine, crepe Georgette, a little light quality taffeta, the now almost classic jersey in all its variations, satin voile and organdie, are all popular fabrics. A new Rodier material resembles black satin with gold pin stripe.

Bands of embroidery twelve inches deep are features of newest models. These are employed to hem skirts and loose panels. A few ribbon effects are being shown by the best houses and these will become more general later. Lace is popular, écru lace filet, cluny, and macramé being the most favored. The newest écru is gray in color.

Delicate gray suede gauntlets are the correct thing in gloves. Indeed, the smartest Parisienne has not donned white gloves since the beginning of the war!

A charming note on the somber beige gray and black gowns is the vivid, delicate hue of some exquisite fresh flower which the Parisienne pins into her corsage with all her inimitable chic and charm.

The center figure illustrates just how adept is the Parisienne when she goes in for lingerie gowns—really not a specialty of hers at all. This one is of yellow organdy—O, of course, of organdy—and its tunic is formed of ribands of filet lace. The underskirt, as you will see, is rather tight. But, perhaps, the most interesting touch of all is contributed by the accessories of this costume. Behold them in their proper and fascinating order. First of all, a brown moire waist belt; second, two lace cuffs and a lace bracelet; third—and this is really the latest Paris caprice of the moment—a parasol of filet lace mounted over flesh pink chiffon and taking the form of a huge web at one side which—a picture of watchful waiting—sits a big terrifying spider of macrame lace. The hat, noted recently at Les Ambassadeurs restaurant—is one so simple and effective that it ought to commend itself at once to the American woman. Just a plain, straight brimmed sailor with a draped band of filet lace, and there you are!

The white satin evening gown at the right was created by Paquin for Mlle. Alice Clairville. Bodice, overskirt, and the curious draped sash passing beneath the underskirt are of emerald green silk net and to this silver embroidery and a heavy empiecement of silver lace give a wonderful sea-foamy look. The evening scarf accompanying this gown is of flesh pink tulle scattered with huge silver roses and the arms pass through bracelets of silver roses.

Doris Blake Says

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

If you were born this week you are

A "Good Fellow."

If you were born this week you take your inheritance from the magnetic, commanding Leo, a sign that governs the heat of life and radiates energy and warmth. If you were born under this sign you are sympathetic, generous, kind hearted, and impulsive to a dangerous degree. You are determined and courageous, and this, coupled with impulse, often causes you to push to alarming extremes without counting the cost.

You are led by the heart, not the head, and can be governed only through love and sympathy. To argue with you is useless. You are excedingly loyal and make hosts of friends, though your reckless choice of them is a trial to others because you do not inquire into the whys and wherefores of a man's past; it is enough for you that he proves congenial and, once taken into your heart, you will defend him against all criticism. Your friendships are often the source of great disappointment to you, for in your enthusiasm you create and worship ideals; then when the unavoidable happens and the ideal comes in contact with the real you suffer a severe heartache. This is brief, however, and you transfer your affections to new fields, where they again progress with the same hothouse impetuosity.

"Making hay while the sun shines" is your creed. You are certainly the "good fellows" of the earth, and with your superabundance of vitality you fill each day to the brim with activity. Any pastime that makes an abnormal demand on the heart should be avoided, as should the inborn tendency to overeat, but it is not likely that you children of Leo will heed any request that tends to curb your indulgence in the good things of life.

You are advised to marry rather late in life when the hot headed intolerance of youth has been replaced by a more mature understanding and your ship has been anchored in a safe harbor. Do not marry until you are sure of your heart and try to look farther than mere externals for real worth. A marriage with Sagittarius, Nov. 22-Dec. 22, or with Aries, March 22-April 20, is apt to be harmonious, but Aquarius, Jan. 21-Feb. 19, would make you the happiest mate of all, because of its quiet, negative strength and unexcitable nature.

You will be most fortunate during your own sign and the week beginning Jan. 27.

In your choice of a profession your field is almost unlimited. You are a born leader, and as a statesman, politician, or soldier you should excel. You are not bound to these, however, for as decorator, milliner, cook, florist, musician, or actor you would also find success. Your birthstones are the ruby and the diamond; colors, green, red, and yellow.

The flower of Leo is the morning glory and more truly characterizes its people than any other. Like them, it is a symbol of nature's sunshine, wet with a few of her tears.

Judgment Good in This Case.

"Dear Miss Blake: My sister and I received a commencement announcement from a girl that attends the same high school as we do, but we did not send a present. We do not know her very well or care especially for her, but we have noticed of late that she is very cold and barely speaks. Will you please tell us if we acted properly? Thank you very much. S. and M."

You acted quite within your own province. I, for one, have a great deal of respect for anybody who has the courage, where the conventional thing to do is to make a present, not to do it, and you are more to be congratulated on your good judgment, if the friendship of the girl depended on the gift from you, which her recent coolness would indicate.

Admires His Reserve.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have just finished reading 'L. P.'s' question and would like to express my sentiments. No right minded girl would allow a boy to be so familiar and take such a liberty as to kiss her.

> Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

I know a boy who is neither handsome nor rich, but why does every girl I know like him? It is because he will not take liberties. He has escorted me to several dances and parties during the last winter and I cannot bring myself to think of this classmate as more than a good friend.

"I do not think of a boy as slow because he will not be forward. Rather I like and admire him for his reserve. Don't you think I am correct in this view? M. V. R."

Here you are, boys, just to prove that you don't have to be fresh or familiar with the girls in order to have them like you. I know that a great many boys have this idea, because they have written in and told me themselves that girls would think them slow if they didn't offer to put their arms around them and kiss them.

He's a Finicky Type.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a fellow for two years and I see him two times a week. The other day he hardly recognized me. I have not done him any wrong or he has not done wrong either. I don't see why he can't make sure that he likes me. Won't you advise me what I can do to keep better company? LAURA."

Well, Laura, I would certainly make short work of that kind of treatment. If you give him two evenings a week, surely he ought to appreciate that enough to be nice to you the rest of the time. He must be a pretty poor specimen of a man, I am thinking, and I would advise you to get interested in another without delay.

Getting Acquainted.

"Dear Miss Blake: Please advise me a good way in which to become acquainted with the young folks in a strange town? Also, how should a boy be introduced to a girl at a dance? When he is introduced, what should the girl say, and how should the boy answer? "R. A. W."

If you are a churchgoing person, which I trust you are, you might associate yourself with some church organization, acquainting the minister of the church with the fact that you are a stranger in town. Again, you might join a reputable dancing class! The name of the young lady is mentioned first, as "Miss Jones, may I present Mr. Brown?" The girl simply acknowledges the introduction with a bow and a smile, repeating the man's name.

Write Again, Adele.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl of 19 years and I come to you for your advice, for I am going with a young man two years older than I am. And he asked me to be his wife, but my folks don't want me to marry him. I do love him. Please, dear Miss Blake, tell me what shall I do. ADELE."

Won't you write me again, Adele, and tell me why your people object to him? There must be some reason, and unless I am enlightened it will be difficult for me to tell you what is best for you to do, but I have a good old fashioned faith in parental advice and I want you to abide by what your folks say until I hear from you again with further explanation.

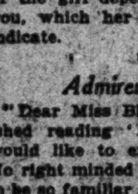
Becoming a Nurse.

"Dear Miss Blake: Will you please tell me if a person whose birthday is the 14th of June would be successful as a nurse?" FRANCES."

The lives of the Gemini born (May 20 to June 21) yield so bounteously in love, unselfishness, and good fellowship that the profession of nursing seems especially adapted to them. However, the fact alone that you were born on the 14th of June should not be sufficient impetus to take up the work, for you must be strong, as the work is hard; you must be patient, as it is a most trying vocation at times, and you must feel that, that above evrything else, it is the thing you are most fitted for!



Real Love Stories

HER SOLDIER LOVER.

Would you believe that a woman could be separated from the man she loves for an indefinite number of months or years and yet be supremely happy? That is my experience, and it happened this way:

During the Christmas holidays, when all the boys of our town came back from city or college, I received a proposal of marriage from two different young men. I had known them from childhood, and had always felt that I should marry one of them some time. Yet when the time came for me to decide which one it was to be I could feel no preference for either. They were both generous in giving me plenty of time. Strangely enough, each one told me the same thing—to wait until he came home in May and then give him my answer.

During the next months I was miserable. I felt ashamed that I had come to no decision. It was not fair to either of these men. Try as I would, I could not feel that one meant more to me than the other. More than once I was on the point of writing to both and saying no;

> Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction! It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. Manuscripts will not be returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

but that was contrary to the promises I had given to wait until May.

Then came our declaration of war with Germany. My father is a splendid type of citizen and patriot, and from him I had learned to love my country. He knew that if I had been a boy his son would have been among the first to offer his services.

One day in May I was astonished to learn that my two suitors had arrived home. I felt nervous and unhappy over the approaching calls, but there was no escape. However, I knew I was safe for one day more, when that evening they both came to see me.

The conversation turned immediately to the war. My father was eager to know the attitude of the people in the two cities that they had come from. To my surprise, Don showed no interest in these tremendously vital matters. Like a flash it came to me that he expected to marry me at once, and the hateful name of "slacker" came to my mind. Still, I meant to be fair and wait until I saw him alone before I passed judgment.

Don went home first, and I had a few minutes alone with Bert. He was plainly embarrassed, but no more than was I. Any minute he was going to say, softly and hopefully, "Can you give me your answer now, dear?" and I was miserably aware that I could not. But what he said was this, in a strained, unnatural voice: "Mary, I'm sorry, but I can't ask you now for your answer. I—I've enlisted."

Perversity, thy name is mine! The minute I learned that he didn't want me—or was it that he wanted something else more?—then I loved him. He saw it all in my eyes, I suppose.

Anyway, that's how it happens that I am to be separated from the man I love—for how long, no one can tell—and yet I am supremely happy. M. W.

The Successful Home Garden.

By J. F. H. Heide

No. 137.

[Copyright: 1917: By J. F. H. Heide.]

[Owing to the numerous requests for information on roses the series on "Planning the Home Lot" will be interrupted long enough to treat fully the queen of flowers.]

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

HOME ROSE PROPAGATION.

Rose plants are so cheap that the propagation of any but exceptional specimens is not advisable. It requires real patience and an actual love for plant life. Once thoroughly established, however, the rose bush is resistant and a lasting joy.

After the first crop of roses, usually after the middle of June, but much delayed this backward season, cut slips of three eyes from the stronger portion of the young growth which has bloomed. Remove the lowest of the three leaves and cut back the upper two to one-half. Immediately after cutting, put the slips in water till ready to use.

Prepare at once a flower pot or window box with two portions of sand to one of rich garden soil, well sifted. Press down the soil lightly and insert the slips so as to have the lower eye one-half to three-fourths inch below the surface, one inch apart each way. Then saturate wtih water and cover completely with a pane of glass or a mason jar, painted with thin mud, or cover with paper to exclude the light. Place the box or pot in the shade.

The foliage is moistened two or three times daily with a light spray. After ten days the glass is raised a half inch for ventilation, gradually increasing to an inch, during calm weather, in seven days more. Gradually brush off the mud and raise the glass to the point of complete removal in four days more. After another five days, begin to give a daily increasing length of exposure to the morning sun. After a week in the sun, the critical operation of potting is undertaken.

Lift carefully with a spatula, exercising great care not to break off the delicate white root, about one inch long. Hold it in a two inch pot and gently fill in around it soil consisting of half sand and half rich garden loam. Place it at about the depth previously covered in the pot or window box. Water thoroughly.

Place the potted young plant in shade and hang cheese cloth over it, an inch above the plant, moistening the cloth three to five times daily. Remove the cloth in five days and in five days more begin to give a daily increasing length of exposure, reaching complete exposure in six days.

Then transplant to a properly prepared spot in rich garden soil, preferably sandy loam, with sunny exposure. The time consumed from the cutting of the slip to final planting in the permanent bed, will be about seven weeks.

Heavy soil, such as the clayey soil of the west side or the black soil of the southwest, should for best results have a tile drain or a trench filled with coarse stone or cinders, eighteen inches below the surface, extending under the middle of the rose bed, from end to end, either with sewer connection or with an outlet to lower ground.

For the cuttings, well decomposed manure, preferably stable manure, must be thoroughly incorporated with the soil of the bed, at the rate of 375 pounds per square rod (sixteen and one-half feet each way), spading to the depth of ten to twelve inches.

After the first heavy frost protect the young plants with a three or four inch mulch of straw, leaves, hay, or strawy manure. Uncover when the ground is thawed out, about April 1, prune according to variety, and a good crop of roses will result, if indeed there were not blossoms even the previous September.

General rose culture, selection of varieties, pruning, etc., will be taken up next Sunday.

Questions and Answers.

Q.—We were much taken with the plan of house and home garden on a fifty foot inside lot [July 8]. Coud you advise us where to get the pan of the second floor of the proposed dwelling?—Mrs. C. B. W.

Ans.—The second story was not worked out. For the purpose of planning the home lot it was thought sufficient to plan the ground floor in order to show its relationship to the yard. However, I pictured a one and one-half story bungalow, with dormer windows, a sleeping porch, sewing room, child's playroom, and three bedrooms, each with closet. To avoid similar disappointment in future only the outlines of houses will be shown, leaving the division to the ingenuity of the reader.

Q.—1. After my pink azalea finished blooming last winter I set it in a north window, watering daily. It seemed to thrive till a month ago and is now gradually dying, though I placed it in a west window for afternoon sun. 2. My six year old striped aspidistra has lost one leaf after another lately, till it has dwindled from a large, beautiful plant to one of six leaves. 3. The stem and leaves of my holly ferns are dotted with a raised brown mass which seems sticky inside. I inclose a typical frond for examination. 4. Other leaves of the same fern are scattered over on the under side with small, brown, indented pustules at regular intervals. 5. Thanks to your valuable articles, I have a vegetable garden that, I am told, even an experienced gardener might be proud of.

Ans.—1. Plant it, with pot, in a shaded place outdoors. Apply liquid manure once weekly during the summer. Spray water from above and below with hose and nozzle. When frost is predicted move the plant to a cool place indoors. Liquid manure may be prepared by partly filling an old bucket with horse manure and water enough to cover. Let it stand a few days before using. 2. Reset it into good, fresh soil [obtained at a florist's] in a well drained pot, with pieces of broken pottery in the bottom. Set it out in a shaded place in the yard and move it inside in September. 3. It is a scale disease readily eradicated with a nicotine spray as described for aphids or plant lice July 2, No. 117. The following day rinse well with water, hose, and nozzle under force. 4. The leaf is healthy and vigorous. The brown specks contain the spores or life germs by which ferns are propagated. 5. Congratulations. Thorough, frequent cultivation is the secret of successful gardening.

Q.—1. Tiny white flies appear under the leaves of my fuchsias. Washing with soapsuds gives only a few hours' relief. Must I lose them? 2. A white mossy bug appears at the joints and under the leaves of my begonias. I shall appreciate your advice.—C. L. C.

Ans.—1. For the "white fly" the usual greenhouse treatment with potassium cyanide must under no circumstances be used about the house. Spray in the evening with nicotine (used in an atomizer) diluted according to directions, and rinse with water, hose, and nozzle in the morning. Repeat four times at intervals of five to seven days. Unless promptly treated the plants will lose their leaves, but will not die. Do not set them outdoors before cured or the pest will spread to neighboring plants of the tomato family, multiplying rapidly. 2. They are "mealy bugs." Either give them one nicotine spraying with the fuchsias or take an artist's brush, dipped in wood alcohol (a poison), and touch each bug with it, taking care not to get any on the plant.

Q.—The foliage of our peonies grows luxuriantly, but there were only one or two blossoms the last two years. The buds start and then shrivel up. I do not see insects enough to account for the trouble.—R. N. L.

Ans.—They probably need feeding, though they may be of varieties which do not bloom satisfactorily in this vicinity. The frost of June 16 may have affected them. Dig a trench around each plant in autumn, sufficient to contain a half bushel of manure of any kind, replacing sufficient soil to cover level. Every spring apply liquid manure from time to time.

Q.—1. My tomato plants are two and one-half feet high, in good foliage, and eighteen or twenty blossoms on each. The flowers wither and drop off with no sign of fruit. Could you tell me the reason? 2. What time in fall is best to cover lawn with manure?—J. E. L.

Ans.—1. The trouble is general in this vicinity, owing to the unseasonably cool weather. It is a semi-tropical plant, and a midsummer temperature averaging under 70 degrees with an excess of cloudy weather is unfavorable. There will be more blossoms, and as the weather becomes uniformly warm and sunny they will set fruit. Meanwhile keep up frequent and thorough cultivation or hoeing. 2. After the first hard freeze, generally in November.

Through the courtesy of the director's office, United States geological survey, THE TRIBUNE Garden Department has been placed in possession of contour topographic maps of such parts of a radius of fifty miles as have been surveyed to date. They are excellent specimens of cartography and will prove helpful in answering more intelligently some of the multifarious questions of nearer readers.

Q.—1. I have a great deal of wood ashes. When and how much can I use on my garden and lawn? 2. Have currant bushes to be trimmed every year, and how? 3. What is the cause of the blossoms drying up and falling from my tomato plants on sandy soil enriched with chicken manure?—N. K.

Ans.—1. In late fall or early spring, dust the entire lawn in moist weather. In the garden it will suffice to dust it on only in early spring, after turning under the manure in autumn. Don't spread it in hot, dry weather. 2. Red and white currants will bear fruit next year on spurs which will start next spring mostly from wood grown last year and the year previous. Annual pruning is necessary to keep the bush down to six or eight main stems with their side branches. The youngest and the oldest wood must be removed in such manner as to admit sunlight and allow air circulation. Keep sufficient young stems to start new growth, while aiming to remove such as have stood three years. 3. The unseasonably cool weather. As it becomes more constantly warm and sunny they will set fruit. Meanwhile, keep up frequent and thorough cultivation or hoeing.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

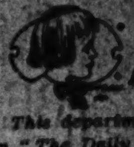
Look, Mother! See if tongue is coated, breath hot or stomach sour.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.



Bright Sayings of the Children

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

My little nephew, Arthur, went into the kitchen, where the maid, Ella, was making fried cakes. He wistfully eyed the crisp, brown rings for a moment, then asked, "Ella, may I have one of those?"

"They are very hot now, Arthur," Ella answered, "but as soon as they are cool enough I will give you one."

The little fellow said nothing, but turned and went out into the back yard. Returning presently, he held up a little stick and wistfully asked, "Ella, don't you think that one would cool quicker on this?"

"Yes, Arthur, I think it would," Ella answered, as she slipped a plump, steaming hot fried cake over the stick in the little hand. H. A. B.

The Tribune Cook Book

PLANT LEAVES AS FOOD.

DRY every celery leaf this year, and every year, if you cannot use them fresh. Use the celery leaves for delicious greens when hot, or cold celery greens for a salad.

In making a vegetable soup base of celery leaves, one or the other or both together, use a little cayenne pepper to set the flavor of the liquid. The solid parts can always be utilized as salad material. The outer stalk of the summer celery is not blanched in many cases and the only profitable way to use it is to cook it.

A celery liquid, though without energy value, contains a nutritive element that is more needed than anything in a meat liquid or stock. This latter has hardly any calories, unless it contains more of the fat than is usually left in, than a celery soup base.

Eat some kind of plant leaves every day of your life, if you want health. There is always cabbage to be had when you can get no other leaves. This advice is authentic, and comes from an authoritative source, or rather is based on the authoritative work done by a feeding expert, working these many years on feeding problems. He has proved that no single one of the grains, not even wheat, will of itself support life for any great period of time in an adequate way. But there is something in the leaves, the laboratory of the plant, that is more efficacious, though they contain so few calories.

This authority and others have through wide observation proven rather conclusively that the spring tonic and other patent medicines got the credit that they used to get because people took these medicines when they also ate eagerly of the health restoring greens. Through the long winter people got debilitated through lack of the something that is abundant in plant leaves. It was the greens that really restored them, though the diluted alcohols of the medicines stimulated them for an hour. The real curing was done by the plant foods.

Food leaves help us in summer to eat less of the highly concentrated foods, which contain from sixteen to forty times as many food or energy units per pound as the greens. The labor of digesting these concentrated foods in hot weather often leaves us excruciatingly uncomfortable. In the winter the leaves and next best the root vegetables add flavor to our diet, and give us that unknown element which is absolutely necessary to health.

The beet greens, Swiss chard, mustard, turnip tops, purslane, several kinds of cabbages, all the lettuces, and the salad greens we may plant for fall use, are some of the things we may use daily to perfect our menus dietetically. The pod of the string bean is perhaps as much of a laboratory as a leaf and the green pea is the same. The green onion tops should be used in cooking, and every bit of the unknown nutritive principle which resides in them utilized.

The cresses, which include the leaves of the nasturtium, as well as water cress, garden cress, and the other pepper grasses, add great spice to our salads.

The okra is one of the laboratories of that unknown good food element. It is one of the vegetables to dry whole or in slices strung on a string. Its mucilaginous quality adds a great deal to soup and is excellent in various combinations.

The kohlrabi is an above-ground bulb that partakes of the nature of a leaf. It may be eaten raw or peeled and sliced and cooked gently in a little water and served in butter. It is excellent cold in a French dressing.

Mustard and Cress.

The mustard seed we buy to season pickles may be planted in a little earth, in a strawberry basket or box, and if kept watered it will in about four days give us the spiciest of little leaves and these to sprinkle over sliced tomatoes in a salad, or over blanched lettuce, or how you will. In London these little leaves of mustard and of cress are sold in the market the summer through. Get cress at seed store and mustard, too, in 5 cent packages. Or we can grow them in a north window on a piece of flannel or any cloth kept wet. They do not thrive in the sun. For a party salad they are especially gratifying. Prepare a platter with the wet cloth and strew the seed over it four or five days before needed. You can use these little bits for an appetizer in the dainty [illegible] dishes of so many sorts now popular.

Okra and Cabbage.

Wash and cut up some cabbage and put it to cook. After it has cooked for twenty-five minutes add to it a third or a half as much prepared okra which has been prepared after it has been washed by just snipping off the ends. Cook until okra is tender, or about fifteen minutes longer for the whole. Finish with butter. Okra may be used in the same way with string beans, but with the cabbage it is most delectable, having something of the flavor of the best asparagus plus something reminiscent of [illegible].

Chicken Okra Soup.

Allow for each quart of chicken stock one-half cup of chopped or sliced okra, one chopped tomato, half a dozen string beans broken in small pieces, one small onion cut fine, one stem of celery, one-half a medium potato diced, one or two tablespoons of rice, and a few pieces of shredded chicken meat. Put all together and cook from half to three-quarters of an hour, or for a soup of a little darker shade fry the vegetable gently in a tablespoon of butter, then add the chicken stock, and cook until the vegetables are tender. Put together it has a little more positive and perhaps a more agreeable flavor.

Okra Salads.

Both stewed and raw okra, sliced, is used with a French dressing for a salad. The nice little pods are, of course, needed for the raw salad.

Cream of Okra Soup.

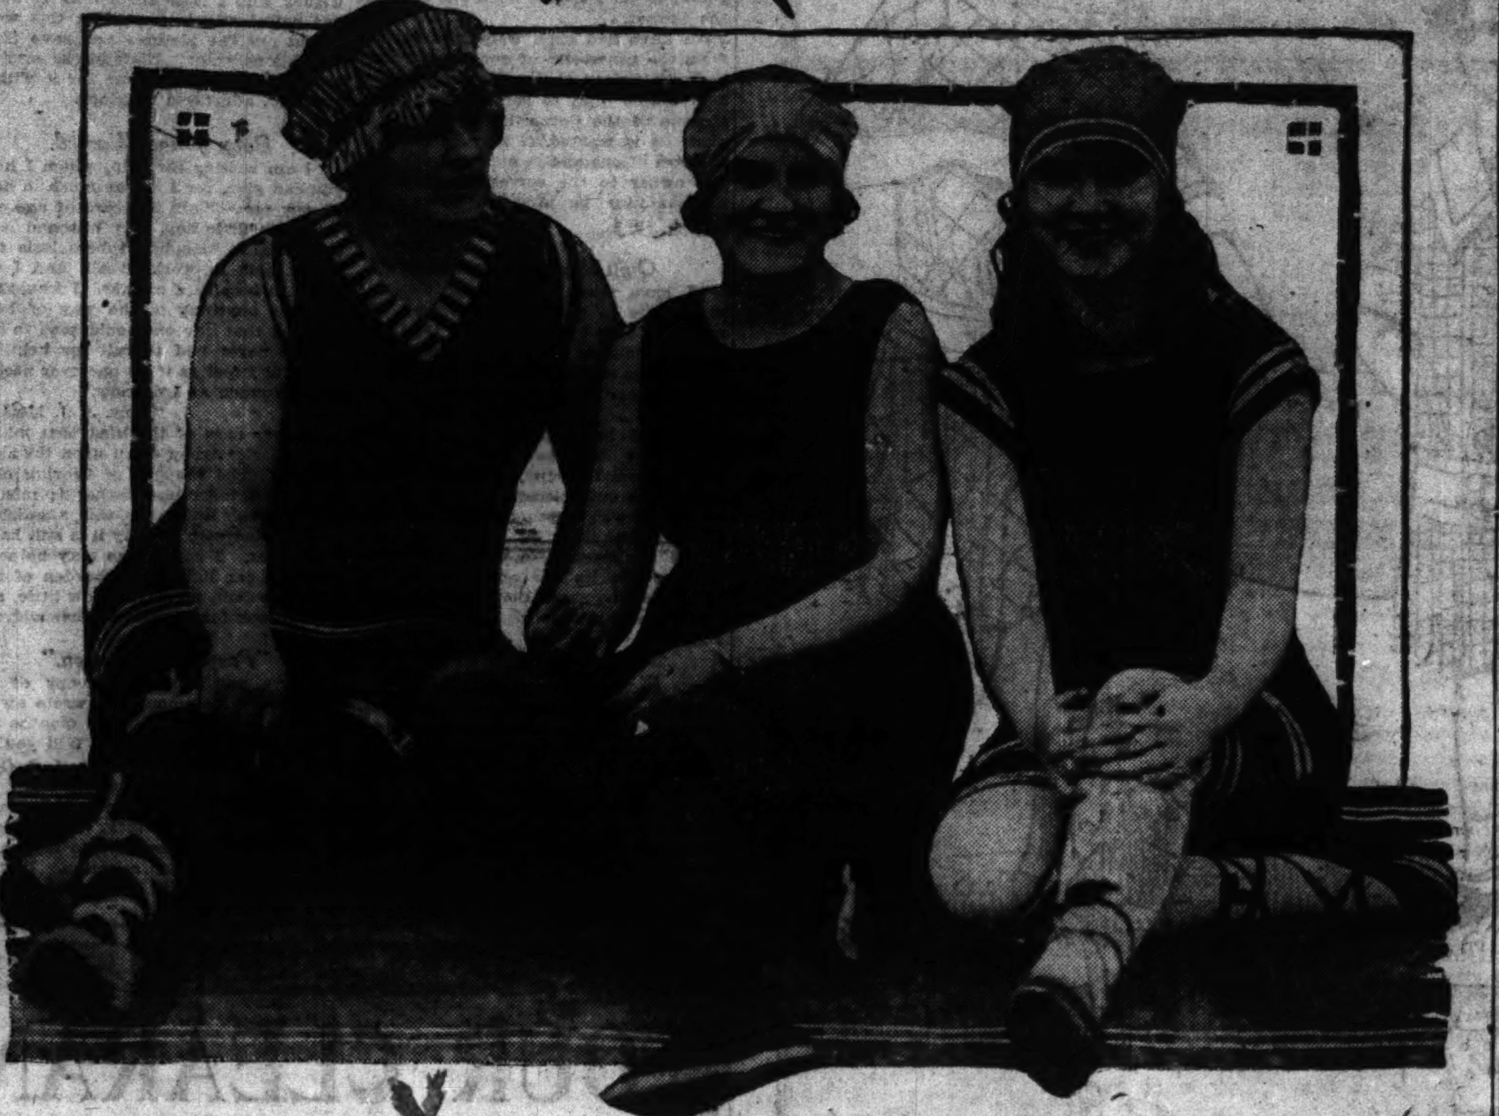
Chop and stew the okra and add it to a thin white sauce or instead of a white sauce use milk thickened with granulated tapioca, one heaping teaspoon to a pint of milk. Cook together for fifteen minutes, then add to each pint of milk used a cup of stewed okra which may be mashed or left in slices. Season with a little butter before taking it from the stove and for a finish some whipped cream may be added or plain cream, a tablespoon to each cup of soup, may be added just before the soup is taken from the stove.

Cucumber Cutlets.

Choose short bulky cucumbers; wash, cut off ends, and peel and cut into three or four pieces and blanch or boil for about five minutes. If boiled more than five minutes the seeds will loosen. Drain and cool the cucumber, dip in lightly beaten egg yolk, then in crackers, and fry in butter gently, turning once. Serve plain or with a piquant sauce. These are good for a vegetarian meal, though the egg makes them less vegetarian than they seem.

How the Youngest Grandmother in America looks it!

says Antoinette Donnelly



Which is Grandmother? Look at end of story and see if you guessed right.

If you missed the Antoinette Donnelly series telling how she reduced Mrs. Eva Lane thirty-six pounds in six weeks, or how she added twenty pounds in five weeks to Miss Helen Barnett's weight, or how she corrected a head of dry, thin, falling hair and an oily scalp with dandruff, or the article on treating Miss Hill's complexion for pimples and blackheads, send a stamped, addressed envelope and the information will be mailed to you. Any other questions pertaining to beauty and hygiene will be gladly answered.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

HAVE you a little cannery in your home? Well, put into it without delay "When Grandmother WAS a Girl." No more past tense for grandmother. Grandmother IS a Girl, is the correct form of expression these days! In fact, grandmother is the girl of the hour!

Look at Grandmother Lawson of whom I write. Aged 44! With a perfect figure; the trimmest ankles you ever laid eyes on; not a wrinkle in her face; a neck that a debutante could wear becomingly; her skin as firm and fine grained as that of her granddaughter, aged 14. As nimble on her feet as a 10 year old. She passes easily for her granddaughter's sister. When this big 14 year old girl addresses Mrs. Lawson as "grandmother" you suspect the youngster of trying to be funny or something like that.

Mrs. Lawson claims to be the youngest grandmother in America. Do you know any one with a better claim to the title? There are any number of grandmothers of 44 in America, to be sure, but Mrs. Lawson bases her claim on being the grandmother of a 14 year old grandchild and feeling no older in spirit than the latter. Mrs. Lawson was a bride at 13—the youngest in the state of Missouri—she was a mother at 14, the youngest mother in the state of Kansas, and she was a grandmother at 30.

She is younger looking than her daughter by years. And here's one point of my story about this youngest looking of grandmothers! Mrs. Lawson has never let the standard number of pounds for her height and age, which is 138, be swallowed up with excess flesh. And her daughter, with her 30 years, has let herself go up to 187, and only after being taken frequently for her own mother did the age effect of avoirdupois weigh heavily enough upon her to set her to reducing. Even with her successful reduction of eighteen pounds her mother still looks the younger of the two!

How does the youngest grandmother in America look it? Well, she says:

"I've always been active. I've done my own housework since I married, not because financial reasons made it necessary, but because I loved to do it. I love good, nourishing food, and to be sure that is what I'm getting I cook it myself. I have studied the kind of foods that make strength without making fat and I've been scientifically thorough about the daily elimination of waste foodstuffs. I'm a crank on cleanliness, both outside and in, and I know you can't keep your skin clean and your body clean without it is taken care of from the inside as well as the out.

"Of course, being an active person, I had time on my hands aside from that my housework demanded. And I didn't sit and mope around the house and feel sorry for myself. I saw too well what kind of an unhappy frame of mind that gets a woman into. So I went in for club and social life and also some charity work.

"I allowed myself one hour every afternoon for absolute rest. I made it a practice early in my life to have this hour as my very own and no infringement was allowed upon it by even a member of my family. I didn't always sleep the hour. I just lay down and rested. At first I had to force myself to remain lying down the whole hour, but I realised the good it did me and I stuck to my intention until it became a habit and a most enjoyable one for me.

"Then I've always associated with young people. I won't be relegated to a fireside group. Not if I live to be 100! I'm going to die young, even if the funeral doesn't happen until I've reached a ripe old age.

"I'm not nervous—not even a little bit. I learned long ago to laugh off the little worries of everyday life. This I did by learning to compare them with the big troubles others had to face. And then when my own big troubles met me I was strong enough to meet them and come off not much the worse for them.

"I come of pretty hardy stock, too. I was born in Missouri. My mother was one of twelve sisters, all of whom did hard manual labor on the farm, although they were all comparatively small women. My mother, who is alive today, is 67, and she doesn't look a day over 50.

"I've only had two massages in my whole life. But I attribute my good skin to the general care I have taken of my health, the food I've eaten, and the creed of cleanliness I practice. When I am invited out to meals I am cautious as to what I eat. And then I am not one who will ever have to pay the price of drink. I've been most temperate. I've kept close watch on my weight and of I found myself taking on any I got busy and reduced.

"I am awfully fond of dancing and I do quite a lot of it. I swim, too, and always have. I play tennis—so you see I don't give my muscles much of a chance to get old, and I suppose because I keep them young my mind is alert and I feel good for fifty years more of girlhood."

P. S.—My good readers, Mrs. Lawson's recipe for keeping the past tense out of your girlhood days until you are 60, at least, bears my best recommendation and as such I present it to you. [Grandmother in center, her daughter at her right, her grandchild at her left.]

Answers to Inquiries.

GEORGE: THE CRUSHING OF hard foods is an essential exercise in maintaining good teeth and gums. The plain and coarse diet of the aborigines is responsible for their strong white teeth. The foods of today that require no mastication are responsible for much teeth decay and trouble. Eat an apple every night before you go to bed. Follow it by proper brushing, of course. The fruit acid will protect the teeth from the action of bacteria during the night. Lime water is the best alkaline mouth wash there is. I have instructions on mouth hygiene too long to reprint here so soon, but if you'll send me stamped, addressed envelope, I'll send them to you.

JULIA: A WOMAN FIVE FEET two inches at 39 should weigh 127 pounds. You would better get busy with the reducing process before you take on thirty pounds more.

MRS. JACK: I SHALL HAVE TO agree with you that double chins are to be listed with the beauty liabilities rather than its assets. Many people who are otherwise not fat have acquired the two chin look through incorrect position of the head and neck. To prevent a double chin hold your head up. Never let your chin sag or fall forward on your chest or bury itself in your neck. And above all don't wear high, tight collars. A good exercise is to stand erect and twist the head first to one side and then to the other, stretching in each direction as far as possible. Then drop the chin slowly on the collar bone. Follow this with a quick movement that is not a jerk. This brings all the muscles into play. Repeat ten times night and morning, gradually increasing to fifty times. Do not tire the muscles too much at first. Rubber chin bands if worn at night and a daily neck massage will also help to reduce the chin.

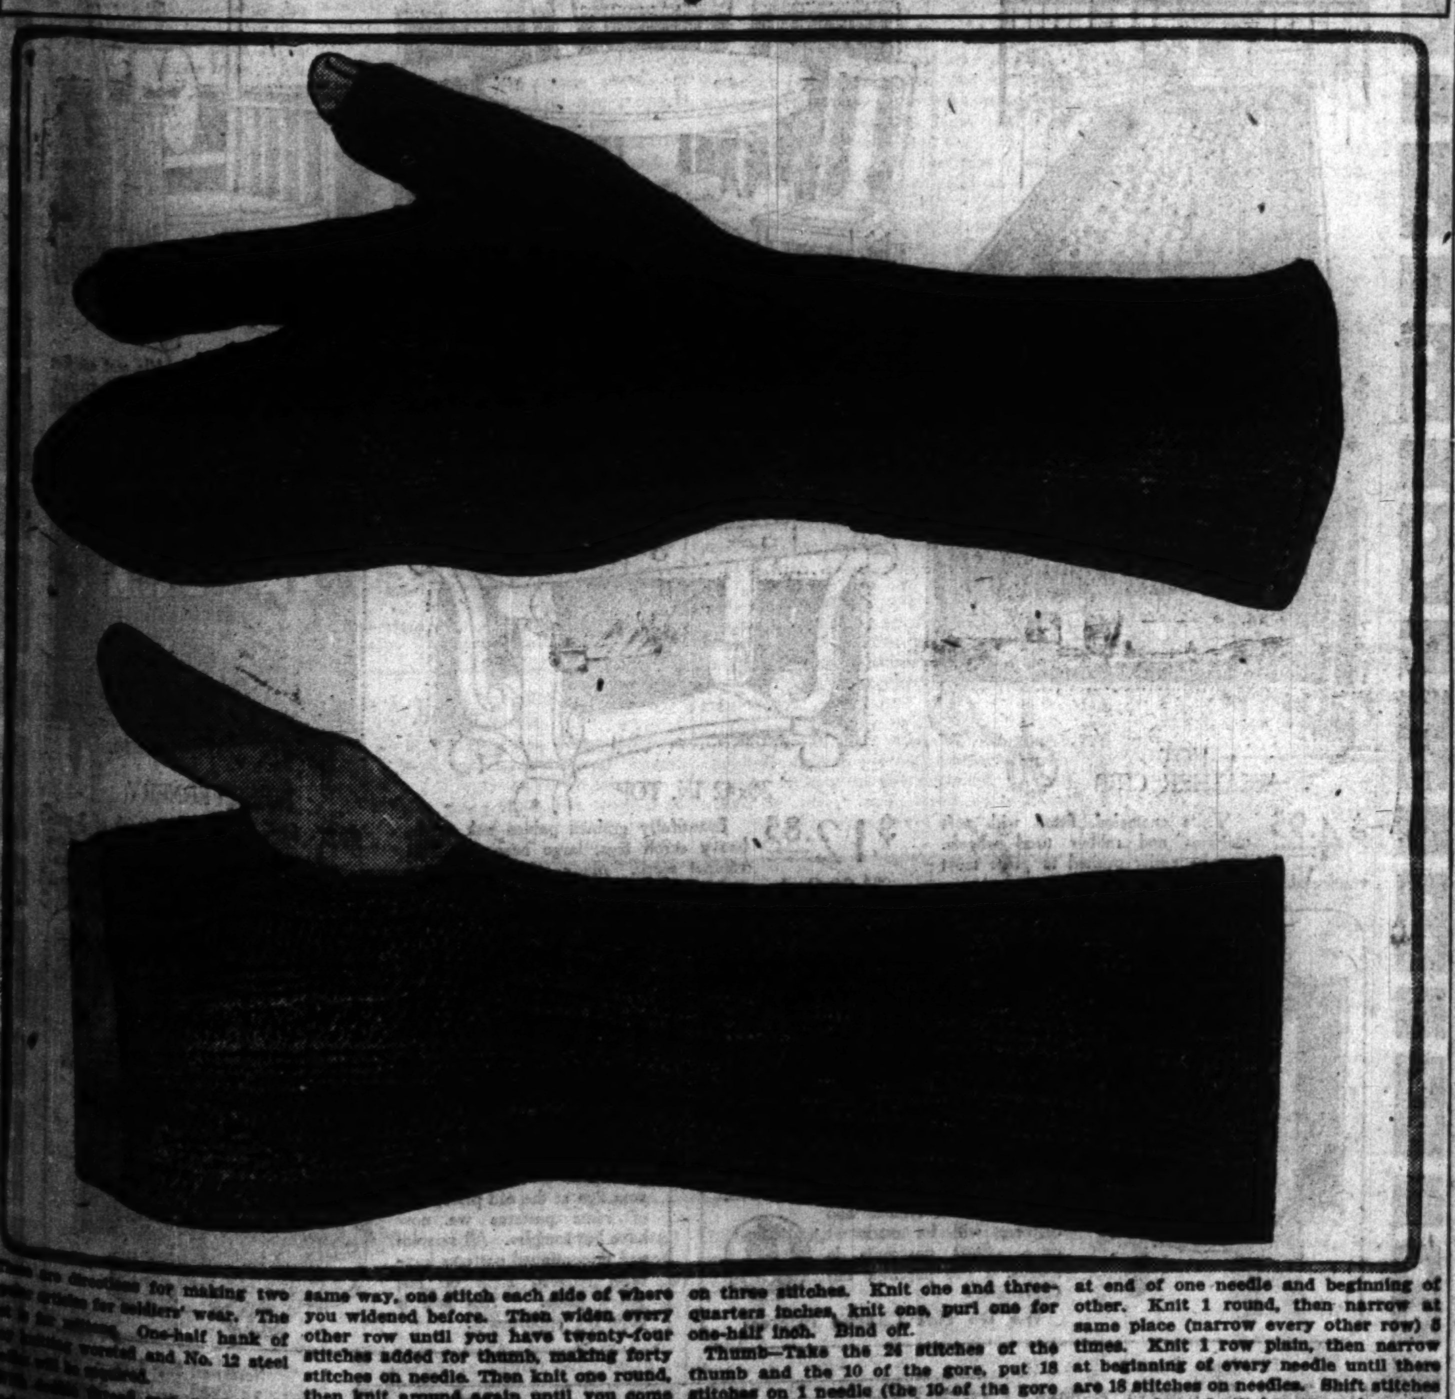
M. E.: DIET AND EXERCISE WILL aid you in general reduction, but if you wish to especially reduce the bust I know of nothing that will do the work more quickly than tennis and swimming. The breast movement may be practiced on land as well as water. Stand with the feet about eighteen inches apart and with arms bent at right angles and hands back to back shoot the arms directly forward, inclining the whole body that way. Then sweep the arms and hands forward in a horizontal plane, extending them backward as far as possible without straining. Any exercise that involves action is recommended. But more important than exercise is diet, and you must avoid such foods as cakes, pastries, candies, ice cream, and alcoholic beverages, in order to have the desired results.

Practical and Fancy Needlework. By Clotilde.



These are directions for making two popular articles for soldiers' wear. The first is for mittens. One-half hank of gray knitting worsted and No. 12 steel needles will be required.

With double thread cast on fifty-six stitches on three needles; sixteen on the first and 20 on the other two. Knit 2, purl 2 for six inches.

Begin widening for thumb on needle with sixteen stitches. Widen thus: Insert needle in the first stitch, make a stitch, then in back of same stitch make another stitch; now slip stitch off needle; this gives you two stitches in one. [illegible] in first two stitches [illegible] sixteen stitches. Knit [illegible] round widen in same way, one stitch each side of where you widened before. Then widen every other row until you have twenty-four stitches added for thumb, making forty stitches on needle. Then knit one round, then knit around again until you come to where the thumb stitches begin. Take off the twenty-four extra stitches on a large safety pin.

Cast on ten stitches on needle just used; knit one round. On the next round narrow one stitch at beginning and end of the ten stitches. Do this until you have fifty-six stitches on needle [the same number on each, as at first]. Knit plain for two inches from bottom edge of gore.

Index finger—Knit ten stitches, slip all the stitches on safety pins, except the last nine stitches, use three needles, cast on three stitches. Knit one and three-quarters inches, knit one, purl one for one-half inch. Bind off.

Thumb—Take the 24 stitches of the thumb and the 10 of the gore, put 18 stitches on 1 needle (the 10 of the gore and the 4 on each side of it) and 8 stitches on each of the other 2 needles. Knit 1 round plain. Then on each succeeding round, until the gore is gone, narrow 1 stitch at the beginning and end of the 10. Knit plain for 1 inch. Rib as for finger. Bind off.

Three Fingers—Pick up all remaining stitches and the three extra stitches at bottom of finger. Shift stitches on needles so as to have 2 needles, join at the outside edge of hand. Knit 3¼ inches and begin to narrow on outside of hand thus: Knit 2 stitches together at end of one needle and beginning of other. Knit 1 round, then narrow at same place (narrow every other row) 5 times. Knit 1 row plain, then narrow at beginning of every needle until there are 18 stitches on needles. Shift stitches so as to have 6 stitches on each needle. Then narrow on every needle (beginning and end) until 2 stitches are left on each needle. Draw yarn through these 6 stitches and fasten on wrong side.

For the wristlet one-half hank of gray knitting worsted and one pair of No. 11 steel needles or No. 3 amber needles will be needed.

Nine stitches equal 1 inch; 10 rows equal 1 inch. Cast on 52. Knit 2, purl 2 for 12 inches. Sew up, leaving slit for thumb 2 inches long, 3 inches from one end.

GIRLS AID RECRUITING.

AT the luncheon table the other day one of the girls surprised everybody by exclaiming, "I'm doing my best to discourage my brother and fiancé from enlisting. They both feel that they ought to join the service of the United States, but I am bringing to bear on them every excuse and argument I can think of to prevent them from enlisting. I can't contemplate having either of them go to war."

"I have two brothers enlisted," said one of the girls, "one in the army and one in the navy. They have been in since war was declared; but they asked neither my advice nor my approval on their action."

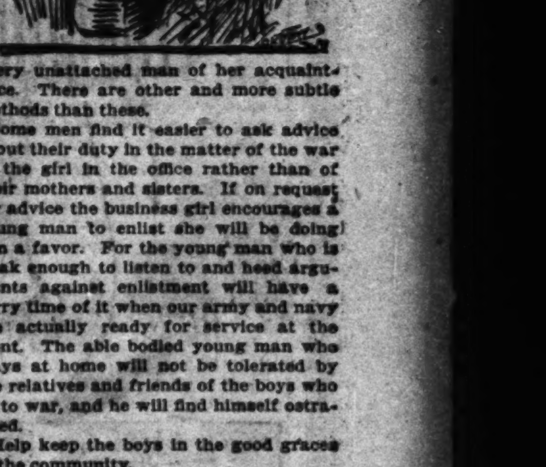
"Well, I guess we're differently constituted," said the first speaker. "I love my brother and fiancé too well to have them sacrificed in war. I know some women who have given up husbands, brothers, and sons without a pang. They seem absolutely callous and devoid of womanly feeling."

No one spoke for a moment after this outburst, and I noticed that the girl opposite me, whose two brothers had enlisted, had grown suddenly white, even to her lips. She seemed about to reply when one of the other girls changed the subject.

The above conversation might well make one reflect. The girl who is unpatriotic enough to try to prevent enlistments is not typical of the girl in the business world, but I believe that few working women realize how great an influence they have on the men with whom they are associated in business. And, failing to realize this influence, they do not encourage and approve the men who are on the point of giving their services to the country.

It is taken for granted that the girl who has the courage to get into the business world and support herself is made of the stuff that will enable her to give up any man, no matter how close are the ties that bind her to him, if he is especially fitted for war service. She will give him up not only without protest but without loud lamentations. Only a nature made up of the grossest selfishness would try to prevent a healthy young man, with no financial obligations toward his family, from offering himself to the government at this time. She might call her attachment love, but a love that is incapable of inspiring a sacrifice is a puny thing that is easily destroyed.

The woman in business can do more than give up willingly her brothers and sweetheart to war service. As she is constantly in contact with men who are desirable to the government, she can by her kindly encouragement and wholehearted approval do a great deal toward swelling enlistments. She need not go about openly recruiting nor demand to know the intentions in the matter of every unattached man of her acquaintance. There are other and more subtle methods than these.



Some men find it easier to ask advice about their duty in the matter of the war of the girl in the office rather than of their mothers and sisters. If on request for advice the business girl encourages a young man to enlist she will be doing him a favor. For the young man who is weak enough to listen to and heed arguments against enlistment will have a sorry time of it when our army and navy are actually ready for service at the front. The able bodied young man who stays at home will not be tolerated by the relatives and friends of the boys who go to war, and he will find himself ostracized.

Help keep the boys in the good graces of the community.

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your past come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Cost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Tribune."

The Acid Test of Temper.

We had been going together all winter, and I had begun to think I had found the man of my dreams. He was good looking, athletic, and clever, and, above all, seemed to have the naturally even and sunny disposition which has always seemed to me the most important requisite in a husband.

None of the irritations of city life—crowded cars, congested sidewalks, or inefficient waiters—had ever ruffled him, and when we met that summer in the country his temper stood the strain of mosquitoes, picnics where the food was lost, rough roads, and days of rain, and I was congratulating myself upon my discovery when—the fatal day!—he asked me to play golf with him.

I noticed from the beginning a new tenseness in his manner, and the strain grew worse and worse, until, on the fifteenth hole, when he had wasted three shots in a futile effort to get out of a sand pit, he flung down his club, swore at his caddy, kicked the ball, and ended by a violent denunciation of the architect of the course; and I realized that no girl was competent to judge of a man's temper until she had seen it submitted to the acid test of golf. E. F.

Too Fast for Paul.

I had felt it in my bones for weeks that Paul was really in love with me and on the verge of proposing, but still he said nothing. I began to search my mind for a reason, and then to search the minds of my friends. After some inquiry I found that the consensus of opinion was that I was "too slow" to completely satisfy him. So at my next opportunity I decided to remedy that.

I expressed a wish to go to one of the rather questionable cabarets in town. I loathed the experience, but pretended to like it, and even went so far as to order wine and ask for one of his cigarets before the evening was over.

I never saw Paul again. Although I wrote him and tried to explain, I dared not tell my real reason for my actions. I hear now that he is married to a "slow girl." R. D.

Lift Corns Off With Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Corns and calluses loosen and fall off! Magic!

Few drops of Freezone take all pain and soreness from corns instantly

No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without a particle of pain or soreness.

Wonderful discovery by Cincinnati man

This remarkable drug is called freezone and is a compound of ether discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon any tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted right off with the fingers.

Freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels or rather loosens them without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards. Try a little and see for yourself. It is surprising.

Few drops stop corn-pain

Take soreness from any corn or callus instantly

Women should keep freezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice. If a corn starts hurting just apply a drop. The pain stops instantly, corn goes!

Tiny bottles of Freezone cost but a few cents at any drug store.

Just Try This When Hairy Growths Appear

(Modes of Today)

A smooth, hairless skin always follows the use of a paste made by mixing some water with plain powdered delatone. This paste is applied to the hairy surface 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. No pain or discomfort attends the use of the delatone paste, but caution should be exercised to be sure that you get real delatone.—Advertisement.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery. Patrons are requested to send stamps instead of dimes, as money is frequently lost in the mails.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Man's Place in the Home.

Before we married my fiancé held forth at great length on the subject of woman's place is in the home. I saw myself as a stay at home and grow-old person if I married him. But I took a chance. I am glad to say it isn't as I expected. Hubby insists on staying with baby while I go to the "movies," and we hear no more about woman's place in the world. M. J.

Keeps Him in Style.

Before our marriage, which was not so long ago, I was proud of the stylish appearance my future hubby made.

A few years can make great changes. He is still stylish, neat, and good to look upon if I do not forget to press his trousers, polish his shoes, wash and iron his shirts, etc.

Proud of him yet? Sure; but I think my pride is justified considering the time and labor I put into his "style."

"Love All!"

Not paying strict attention to what I was doing while playing tennis, I made a most deplorable serve, which only met with a smile and a joke from my friend on the other side of the net.

"After marriage" at the next court, however, was a different thing. She, serving low swift balls, played doubles shortly after my fumble, and this was friend husband's comment: "O, heavens, why don't you take the net away altogether? If you can't raise 'em, let's quit." The latter accented by a swing at the air with his racket.

No married life for mine. K. L.

ETIQUETTE

By ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

HOST AND GUEST.

COMPANIONSHIP and sociability are delightful in themselves, but they are sometimes misinterpreted. A guest who insists upon the constant company of and entertainment by her hostess may, after a short stay, prove wearing and anything but a pleasure. Likewise, a hostess who gives her guest no time for solitude and thought shows a lack of consideration which is appalling. Each must give the other a chance to be alone, so that the company of both may prove dearer and more desirable.

In the matter of conveniences and personal property, guests are sometimes careless. Although a woman puts her home, her servants, and her belongings at the service of whomsoever she may be entertaining, she does not want her kindness abused. A guest should never use the telephone without asking first if it be convenient; she should not ask special favors of servants. To preserve a pleasant impression, in this case as in all others, restraint and consideration are necessary.

Unless the visit is unexpected—one of the impromptu kind—guests should bring their own small accessories as well as clothes. A man or woman who borrows continually from his host or hostess soon becomes a nuisance and is open to a criticism which may be unspoken, but is nevertheless keen.

Last of all (because its rightful place is at the end of the visit) comes the question of tipping servants. In some households this is offensive to the hosts. In Andrew Carnegie's stately home in Scotland, where he often entertains forty or fifty people at a time, in each guest room there is a card requesting that the guests refrain entirely from this custom. But in most establishments it is the correct thing for guests to give those employés who wait on them a small sum of money. Upon the visitors' good judgment will depend the amount of these gifts, and upon their good taste will depend the fact that they are given without being mentioned to host or hostess.

E. VON F.: It is quite correct for a girl to order a sandwich or ice cream when a man takes her to supper after a dance.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life Was When——." Address Embarrassing Moments Editor, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Write on only one side of the paper. No manuscripts will be returned.

Seeing the Parade.

My most embarrassing moment came from my size, being short and slight and the confusing styles of the moment, sport suit and simple hat, make the view from the rear uncertain of age. I was watching a parade in company with some children, and having a hard time to see over taller neighbors, when to my surprise a husky young man standing just behind me placed a hand on either side of my waist and lifted me up and held me saying, "There, little girl, you can see now." He was as surprised as I when he saw my face.

Back for Breakfast.

I lived in a country town when I was younger and was going with a young woman, who lived about six miles out in the country. One evening I hired a rig and took her for a drive and after leaving her started for home. I fell asleep and somewhere along the way the horse turned around and when I awoke it was morning and we were in the girl's yard.

Round and Wooden.

It was late when we arrived at the theater and the house was dark. Our seats were in the balcony, and as I went down the aisle I laid my hand on what I thought was a post, but, lo and behold, it began to move. What was my horror to find that the object was a man's bald head. In my embarrassment I stammered in an audible tone, "O, pardon me, I thought you were a post." G. S.

Time to Go Home.

One evening I attended a movie with a man friend. When the play was over I asked him if he were going to go or stay for the next play. I didn't get any answer, so I looked at him and he was asleep. I shook him to wake him up and to my horror he exclaimed, "Ma, the cows are out," at which every one began to laugh. M. S. W.

In the Ticket Line.

One evening my sister and I attended one of the neighborhood movies. As it was so close to home, I did not take the trouble to "doll" up as much as usual, and in going up to the ticket window sister asked me why I didn't fix my hair in the back, as it was all falling down. While I was purchasing the tickets sister stepped from behind me around the railing, to wait, and I, not knowing this, turned around and said: "Have you a hairpin that isn't working?" Imagine my chagrin when I looked up into a man's smiling face and the unsmiling face of his woman companion. N. H.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

25 cent bottle of "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy and wavy.

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair, soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff, is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you can not find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp, and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.—Advertisement.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND

Needs Invalid's Chair.

"I NEED your help much and I hope you may be able to assist me. I want a medium size rubber tired wheel chair. This must have an independent adjustable leg rest so that my feet can be elevated while I am sitting upright. I shall not want the chair for outdoor use. The price of a new chair is beyond my means, but I hope to get a second hand one through the Corner. G. D. R."

We have had such wonderful results from the generosity of our constituency that the writer of the above may have a favorable reply to her request. Even if none of the Cornerites owns such a chair as is wanted, it may be possible to learn of one and to send the name of the owner to the correspondent. Her address may be procured by writing to me.

Quilt Pieces to Donate.

"I have some quilt pieces which I would like to give some one who will make good use of them. I saw the letter of an invalid in the Corner asking for quilt pieces and I should be glad to give these to her if you will send me her name. Miss E. L. S."

I should be delighted to do this if some clew had been supplied me by which I could identify the invalid who desired the quilt pieces. As it is, I have no idea of who it was. I am sorroy, but the next best thing to sending the name of the applicant is to print this notice and trust to its coming to the eyes of some one who needs the pieces and who will write to me for the address of Miss E. L. S.

Pictures from Magazines.

"For many years I have been carefully saving from various magazines copies of good paintings by artists of merit, and now have quite a collection, which affords me much pleasure. Many of the high class magazines publish copies of fine paintings and articles on different artists. If Mrs. J. W. R. would like to pass on to me any of such pictures which she says she has collected they would be much appreciated, or I should like the magazines containing them. It would, however, be cheaper to send the pictures alone. Of course I would pay the postage upon them. I often use such pictures as sermon illustrations. L. C. I."

I regret that the pictures to which this clergyman refers had been given away elsewhere before his letter was received. But there must be many more magazines that are full of such pictures as he wishes, and I hope there may be some one sufficiently interested in this work to cut out the pictures and save them for this collector. His address may be secured by writing to me for it with a stamped, addressed envelope.

Baby Clothes Wanted.

"I am writing for help, which I hope you can give, for I am as much in need as any one. I am 25 years of age and have one little boy. My husband is in poor health. He has tuberculosis and is not able to work at all, and I am again to become a mother. I would appreciate anything in the way of baby clothing that any one could send to me. I have never had to call for help before, but I feel as if no one ever needed help so much as I do now."

"Mrs. J. J. McC."

Another case of the kind that makes a peculiarly strong drain upon the sympathies! The thought of bearing children to a tubercular father is misfortune enough and when this anguish is complicated with poverty it is still harder to bear. I hope there may be some one who can lighten the burden of this correspondent, no matter how little, and I shall look for appeals for her address.

"Prayer to Mammon."

"Have you received a copy of the 'Prayer to Mammon?' I wrote an inquiry to you about it some months ago and have had no answer. Will you repeat the request? I. C. G."

I am sorry to say no reply has come to your inquiry, but we print it again on the chance of better luck. Some one of our readers must be able to lay hands upon this particular selection. In that case, please write to me for the address of I. C. G.

Tamed Down.

My childhood ambition was to be a cow girl. I went to a wild west show and there were girls dressed as cow girls who raced. I came home much excited, telling my mother of the cow boy girls. Then and there my ambition was to be a cow girl and go west and ride a dashing charger. The wildness and daredeviliness of its appealed strongly to me. But now I am doing such a tame thing as keeping house for my father, and I can't even stick on a horse. J. D.

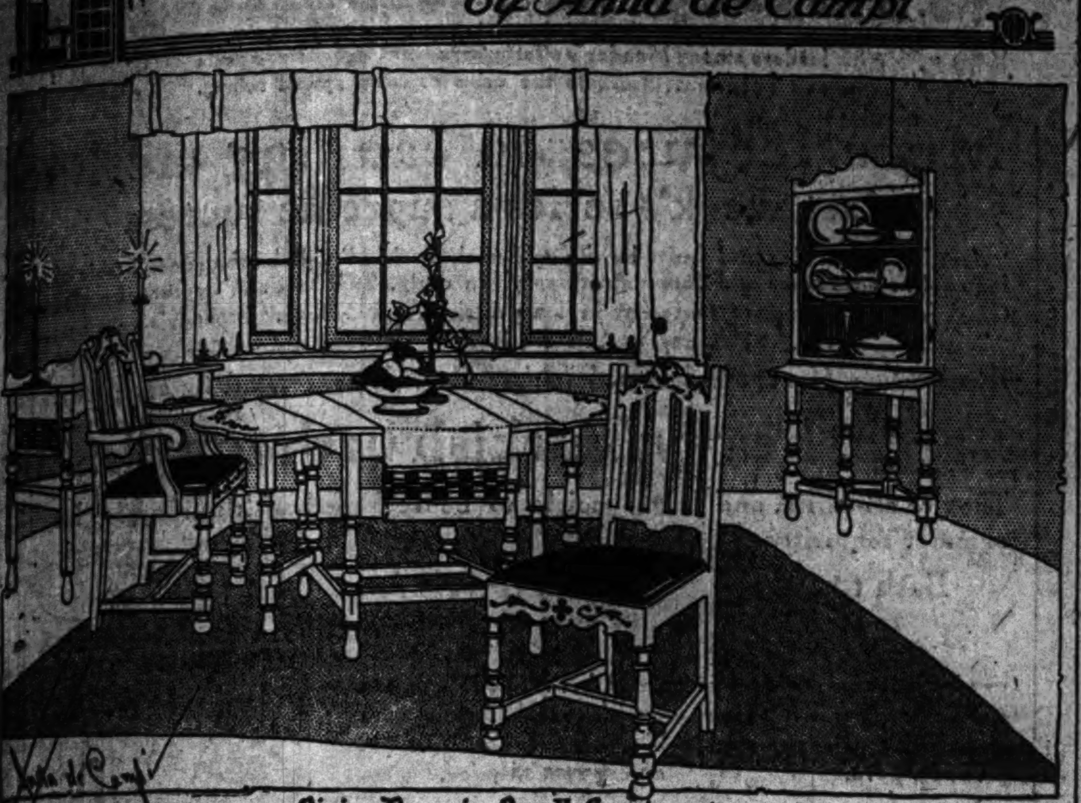
The HOME HARMONIOUS
By Anita de Campi



Dining Room in Small Apartment

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

THE desire to break away from conventionality, from the everlasting same old thing in home decoration, is in no room more clearly evinced than in the small apartment dining room. Every one, consciously or unconsciously, strives for a certain effect.

The effect sought until lately in the average dining room was great dignity, an effect that increased in monotony in proportion to its cost. People solemnly bought heavy oak furniture—oak or walnut, often in Jacobean design.

The general description of thousands of dining rooms was something like this: "High wainscot and plate rail with figured paper, or imitation tapestry, or burlap above it in what was called 'rich' colors—really heavy colors, dark and ugly. Beamed ceiling perhaps, a center chandelier with dome in leaded colored glass, and furniture consisting of a sideboard, china closet, center table, and six chairs."

Now all that is changed. The whole scheme of things is lighter. The walls are lighter in color, the furniture is lighter in scale, and the whole character is lifted out of its profundity of gloom into the light of the very acclamation of good cheer.

The old fashioned somber type of dining room described above can be wonderfully improved by enameling the wainscot in old ivory enamel, replacing the plate rail by a simple molding and outlining panels above the wainscot in narrow wood molding, then enameling over the whole upper wall to match the wainscot. This makes a beautiful background for either the slender Georgian types of mahogany furniture, or for delicate straight lined things enameled in light colors.

The easiest way of buying dining room furniture is undoubtedly to buy it in sets, but this is not calculated to insure individuality. Why not vary it a bit? It would not be a bad idea, for instance, to have three chairs of one kind and three of another, alternating around the table. The seating height of all must be the same. We could dispense with the usual arm chair at the head and the foot. It would be well to have three arm chairs and three armless ones. This would exempt the host and hostess from the ridiculous old custom of reserving the most comfortable chairs for themselves to the disadvantage of their guests.

Many charming novelties are constantly being devised for small dining rooms by trained craftsmen in the decorator's workrooms. Some of these represent striking notes in the decorative scheme and yet are so simple that they may be easily copied at home.

The practicability of substituting glass covers on dining tables and dispensing with table cloths is acknowledged. Obviously table linen is saved at breakfast and lunch time. But this again "runs into money," as the glass tops are costly—costlier than the price of linen and laundry bills combined. But an inexpensive substitute is now proposed, and that is painted oilcloth covers, strips, or dolly sets.

These are readily accomplished by the amateur. Plain white oilcloth may be stenciled with waterproof paint. Those who are clever with the brush may make a variety of intricate designs, but even the most unskilled fingers can paint bands or checks of color on the cloth. After the edges are outlined with half inch painted borders the oilcloth is cut at the painted line. The next step is to buttonhole stitch loosely over the painted edge with mercerized cotton, and that is the finish.

A stenciled and buttonholed oilcloth strip laid crosswise over the table, with a sideboard cover to match, is shown in the accompanying illustration of a bride's dining room that was copied from a breakfast room scheme of a wealthy friend. The little set is topaz enamel, the slip seats being covered with patent leather. The black note is repeated in the vase and pair of candlesticks and the stenciled decoration on the furniture. The dishes are light mauve and the inside of the little corner cupboard apple green. The bowl at the table center is jade color. The oilcloth is edged with mauve and trimmed with a band of black mauve and white painted checks, laid between mauve bands. The mauve edges are buttonholed with mauve silk. The walls are palest amber, with draperies of golden gauze. The woodwork and floor border are old ivory and the rug deep topaz.

Popular sets of doilies in oil cloth are made oblong and large enough to accommodate comfortably a cup and saucer, glass and plate. They are easily sponged off. The button holed border keeps the edges from rolling.

A dining corner in a two room apartment has a little gateleg table drawn up close to the window with a prim little settee at either side of it. An attractive lamp forms the centerpiece. The table is narrow and set at right angles with the window, and it has on it a day cover, made of a strip of old gold satin slightly narrower than the table and longer. The strip is edged with gold lace and trimmed at the corners with long heavy silk tassels. Tacked to the top of the strip are three pieces of Japanese embroidery. The center one is round and the other two square.

This is one of the most attractive table strips I have ever seen, and it was made by a girl who cannot do embroidery. Such a piece, carried out in black satin, with the ready made Japanese embroidered spots upon it, would be striking.

Chintz covers are charming in small dining rooms. I do not mean slip covers of chintz, but a good quality of linen chintz upholstered directly to the chair seats. Very dainty is a pearl and rose dining room, with small chairs having fluted legs and oval cane backs. The frames are walnut. The chair seats are covered with flowered chintz showing conventionalized roses and leaves on a light tan ground, and a little flat scalloped valence of rose colored velvet trimmed with fringe is adjusted into the top of each oval chair back. The table cover is of filet lace, and the draperies are of old rose taffeta. The candle shields on the side lights repeat the rose, and a piece of rose colored embroidered satin the length of the buffet is stretched on the wall above the buffet.

In spite of the fact that ceiling center lights are cried down by the profession, the laiety finds it difficult to do without them, particularly in the dining room. The best models are the cluster candle chandeliers. These are done in silver finish and hung with chains. Some that are modeled after Sheffield designs are really lovely. Soft shirred silk shades, hung low over the table, are next in choice. Real candles play an important part on gala occasions. They are fashionable and flattering and not prohibitive in price.

Answers to Inquiries.

HARRIET S.: I should not advise reed furniture for the man's room. Reed has hardly the proper air of stability. There is so much good substantial furniture being made now that it would be rather foolish to go in for anything flimsy. Get one wing chair and if you have room another upholstered chair and several lighter chairs. Windsor wicker hour glass chairs are good. Have either a day bed or a lounge in the room, a good writing table, and a bookcase. Tan is a good color and with this it is well to have cretonne draperies, printed in color on a tan ground. Let the glass curtains be of plain cream voile.

R. L. B.: Many people use veneer on their floors. The only objection to it is that it requires frequent renewing. Floors that are waxed wear longer and look better, and although this process of work costs more to begin with it is not more expensive in the long run.

* *

MRS. AUGUST S.: Yes, by all means have the living room and dining room papered alike since they really are one room. Old blue is a popular side wall color at present. Have blue and sand colored striped for your inside draperies. The material must be a good quality of sunfast. It would be well to have both rugs alike. Why not use a small valance on the windows that are close together in the bedroom? Use a fine net shirred onto an upper and lower rod for your glass door. If privacy is required, have a cretonne roller shade on one side of the door and net on the other.

A. L. H.: Have neutral side walls and if you have simple striped curtains a good deal of latitude will be allowed in the figuring of your upholstery. Yes, the plate rails are being dispensed with. With old oak finished woodwork it would be well for you to keep to a color scheme in shades of light buff or tan. Use chintz for the curtains of your china closet and repeat the yellow in the valance or inside draperies for the windows in this room.

M. O.: I believe you would be better pleased with tapestry for your fireside chair. According to your description you already have almost too much mulberry. Use a light putty color for your side walls.

* *

MRS. B. W. S.: Use figured russet and dull green for your draperies with touches of blue in the pattern. Yes, it would be correct and attractive to have the bedroom windows draped as you propose.

How I Overcame Nervousness

Did you save yourself from becoming a nervous wreck? How? By getting into a different kind of work—a different mode of living—a different frame of mind? Write and tell about it. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "How I Overcame Nervousness." Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Antoinette Donnelly, Chicago Tribune.

Work in the Gym.

I was a nervous wreck at the age of [illegible] and this was because I read too much and never took any exercise. I took sick and a doctor told me not to read, but to start gymnasium work. I went every day and enjoyed it much, and finally the sickness went away and I grew stronger. All the girls in the neighborhood were afraid of me—I could lick them all. This medicine cured me.

Celery and Onions.

Proper eating and self-control were the means of curing me of nervousness. It is of no use for a woman to doctor for nervousness unless she hates the condition and truly wants to overcome it.

When I saw myself headed toward a nervous wreck I started by eating fresh vegetables in season, and especially celery and onions. There was hardly a day that I did not eat heartily of one of these vegetables, and generally both. At meals and between times I ate celery, and I did not pick out the tender white pieces, but ate it all—the leaves, thick green stalks and the roots. Onions I ate raw, creamed, baked, and even fried, although I do not consider the latter of much value as a health food.

And all the time I was doing my best to keep from nervousness and worry, and today I simply have no nerves. I have advised more than one woman to use self-control, and it has often proved successful.

Girls! Juice of Lemons Clears and Whitens Skin

Prepare a quarter pint of lemon beauty lotion at the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness, and tan and is the ideal skin softener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of Orchard White at any pharmacy or toilet counter and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms, and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach, and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

Genuine Orchard White bears the name, Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Every Man and Woman Can Help to Win the War

THE Commercial Economy Board is endeavoring to solve the problem of the delivery of goods to customers of retail stores in order to reduce the number of men and the number of vehicles engaged in delivery service. Co-operating with the Government, we suggest the following:

First—To carry small parcels from the store—and to carry small packages of goods that you may be returning. Let your slogan be, "Never Empty Handed."

Second—To buy only that which you are fairly sure you intend to keep. Make careful selection a habit.

Third—To avoid exchanges and to minimize the sending on approval and C. O. D.

Fourth—To shop early in the day if possible. You will help us distribute our deliveries more evenly; the result will be economy to you, to us and to our government.

Let your Shopping Bag be your "Badge of Honor."

More lectures on canning method

—last week's series a supreme success

"Canning vegetables and fruits by the cold pack method" will be the general topic of instructive addresses and demonstrations given daily, 2:30 to 3:30, by Mrs. Charles Gray, formerly associate professor in Iowa Agricultural College. News of Music and the Drama

By Frederick Donaghey

OTIS SKINNER, acting an Italian organ-grinder in Booth Tarkington's play called "Mister Antonio," is to start the season in Powers' Theater. When, later, Mr. Warfield comes to Chicago in his revival of "The Music-Master," he, too, will act in that house. Miss Maude Adams' engagement in Barrie's "A Kiss for Cinderella" will be in the Blackstone: the opening-date of that theater is not yet set. "The Follies" will, of course, be shown in the Illinois; and "Miss Springtime," too, will be sent there.

Puccini has completed two of three one-act operas designed to be sung in one bill: they are "The Cloak," which is tragic, and "Gianni Schicchi," which is comic. The third, to be called "Sister Angelica," is sentimental in tone: it is in shape for early completion.

Henry Arthur Jones describes his new play, "The Pacifists," as "A Parable in a Farce." The piece, he says, "shows what happened in Market Pewbury when certain of its citizens pursued the exalted principle of peace at any price in their municipal and domestic affairs." Market Pewbury is the locale of one of Jones' best comedies, "The Triumph of the Philistines": it has not been acted in Chicago. The late Charles Frohman mounted it about twenty years ago in New York City, with Miss Juliet Nesville in the principal rôle, but put it away upon the withdrawal of the actress.

Henry Miller's summertime campaign in San Francisco of trying out new plays involved, last week, one by Mockton Hoffe, "Anthony in Wonderland," in which Charles Hawtrey has been acting in London. The idea is to hold it for Miss Ruth Chatterton until after she has had a tour in "Come Out of the Kitchen!" She and Mr. Miller sang a duet in the piece.

"Daddy Longlegs" has been taken off after a London run of more than five hundred performances. Renee Kelly, a member of the absurd Drama Players in their 1912 fiasco in what is now the Great Northern Hippodrome, played Ruth Chatterton's part there.

Miss Kathlene MacDonell, remembered in Chicago as the wife in "Bought and Paid For," is acting the happy waif in Australian performances of "Daddy Longlegs." Charles Waldron, who had the title-part with Miss Chatterton for some weeks of the long run in Powers', is with her.

Miss Marie Tempest, who never succeeded in getting a real stance in the United States, also is in Australia, with Grahame Browne: they are using a revival of her one sound success, "The Marriage of Kitty," and one of Somerset Maugham's light pieces, "Penelope."

"Turn to the Right!" which has reached the four-hundred mark in New York City, is among the plays on view in the Australian cities. "Grumpy," with Cyril Maude, is another.

Melba is in her home in Melbourne, teaching: she expects to be in Chicago in time to rehearse with Muratore for Campanini's autumn tour with "Faust" and "Lucia."

A widely-circulated story that George M. Cohan would write a revue to be staged by F. Ziegfeld is energetically denied by the former.

Mr. Cohan is Samuel Gompers' notion of just the man to write a screen-play designed to glorify the cause of the labor-unions.

Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" was enough of a success in his home-town, Indianapolis, to warrant the manager, Stuart Walker, to venture with it next season in the "regular" theaters. Gregory Kelly, who played boys in the répertoire which Mr. Walker gave last season with his Portmanteau Players in The Playhouse, has won Tarkington's enthusiasm in the part of William Sylvanus Baxter. "He and the part have met," writes Tarkington: "it is one of those things that happen—Dusty Farnum in 'The Virginian,' Bill Hodge in 'The Man from Home,' Denman Thompson in 'The Old Homestead,' etc. They don't happen very often, either; and, if taken at the ebb, lead on to etcetera for all concerned."

Annie Russell is to have the part of the clairvoyant, Rosalie LaGrange, in the cast which will give "The Thirteenth Chair" in Chicago.

Miss Katherine Grey is to have the same part in another company.

Two-a-day performers with talents that suggest adaptability to extravaganza are eagerly sought by producers of "big shows." The experience of recent seasons has been that the variety actor is an important factor in the so-called "revues." "The Follies," the Winter Garden pieces, the New York Hippodrome show, and other entertainments of large outline cannot easily be put together without the use of men and women from "vaudeville."

The death of Laurette Taylor's father, the other day, brought out that hr name was Cooney before it was Taylor: that name she acquired from her first husband, a writer of melodrama for the minor theaters.

CHRISTMAS-DAY is now set for the opening of the playhouse which A. H. Woods is building at Randolph and Dearborn streets; and the most recent decision as to the name is that it will be Woods' Theater. Announcement was made some weeks ago that the first attraction would be Clare Kummer's "A Successful Calamity," in which Mr. Gillette appears to have undergone a restoration of his vogue. Now, however, it is said that the play made from Du Maurier's "Peter Ibbetson" will be given for the opening: whether with or without John and Lionel Barrymore is not explained. Both were highly successful in the New York City run of the play; and both are subject to the temptation of uncommon pay in the movies.

Guy H. Woodard, the violinist, explains that he is withdrawing from the faculty of Bush Conservatory.

Miss Henrietta Crosman is not to resume the part of the green-grocer's wife in "Getting Married": she is, she says, reading plays with a view of returning to the direction of a company of her own. She was miscast in the Shaw piece as played in Chicago by Mr. Faversham's company.

Maclyn Arbuckle is to go into Mr. Faversham's cast of "Misalliance," to play the elder Tarleton. This is, of Shaw's longer works, the only one save "The Philanderer" which has not had professional production in the United States: the latter piece has so far been no nearer to good acting than its use, some time since, by Maurice Browne in the Little Theater. Shaw's "The Admirable Bashville" does not count, of course: it is merely a burlesque dramatization of "Cashel Byron's Profession," serving its purpose as a literary joke and, perhaps, as a selling-point of the volume in which it is printed. Shaw wrote it after a minor American actor, in 1900, took advantage of the faulty copyright-laws of the United States to make and stage a play based on the novel.

William Rock, a familiar figure in the two-a-day, is asked at law to pay one hundred thousand dollars to the husband of Frances White, who danced entrancingly vis-à-vis with Rock when he was last in Chicago. The husband's name is Frank Fay: he, too, is a performer, and, it is said, a young man of talent. Miss White and he parted soon after marriage; and it is his expressed belief that Mr. Rock is an alienator of affections.

Miss Maude Fulton, Miss White's predecessor in Mr. Rock's professional activities, expects to come soon to Chicago to perform in "The Brat": she wrote it, and managed to keep it going for months last season in New York City.

Frank Craven's new play, to prepare which he withdrew a week ago from "Seven Chances," is now called "This Way Out!" instead of "Needles and Pins."

"The Jackknife-Man" is a play by Lee Wilson Dodd, author of "Pals First" and the stage-version of "Bunker Bean." Frank Bacon, a well-liked actor of kindly old men, is to have the principal part.

Miss Nance O'Neil, James O'Neill, Charles Dalton, Sidney Herbert, and Frederick Lewis are acting somebodies who are held over from last season in "Th eWanderer"; this is to be exhibited in the Auditorium after Campanini's ten weeks.

Miss Wilda Bennett, a pretty young woman who was here in "The Only Girl," two years ago, and took Miss Julia Sanderson's place last season in "Sybil," is to have the principal part in the new Kalman operetta now known as "The Riviera Girl."

Victor Mapes calls his new comedy, "The Lassoo," "a companion-piece to 'The Boomerang'"—meaning, perhaps, something. He is part-author of the latter.

"Over There" is now a play-title: the performer known in the minor theaters as Billy S. Clifford thinks that it precisely fits a piece prepared with his talents in view.

Pauline Hall, a veteran of operetta, is to return to the stage in "Kitty, Darlin'!" in which Alice Nielsen is to sing. Edwin Stevens, also, will take part: his rôle will be which he played when the piece, tuneless, was "Sweet Kitty Bellairs." Miss Hall was a comic-opera singer of immense vogue when "Erminie" was new, in the late 'eighties, and afterward toured as a star.

"The plans announced by the various managers for next season call for the spoiling of seven or eight European comic-opera successes."—Thomas J. Gray in Variety.

"His Excellency the Governor," in which in 1899 Ethel Barrymore took her try-out as a star, has been revived in London with reported success. It is, perhaps, the best of the five or six plays by the late Captain Robert Marshall, but of a type never popular in the United States, where satire is the least vendible of stage-things. Jessie Millward, May Robson, Grace Elliston, Robert Edeson, Guy Standing, and William Norris were in the first American cast, but not with Miss Barrymore.

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—When the actor is rehearsing in New York and hasn't any other place to go he goes to Long Beach. Which is a good thing both for the actor and the beach. The resort has not been doing at all well this year. Only one good day so far, they tell me, and that the Fourth of July. The rest of the time they have either been soaked by the rain or chilled by the wind and there has been no joy in them.

It has been another of those backward summers, as perhaps you know. Just at the moment we can recall no other kind. Weren't summers always backward? Doesn't it always rain more than usual? Hasn't there always been a scare of some kind to emphasize the precarious nature of running a hotel or boarding house, a tea room or a bathhouse at the shore? Sharks, or infantile paralysis, or war, or something?

However, there is no doubt about this particular season's being laggard and wet. Either the bombarding in Europe or the gas bombs or an oratorical patriotism at home has had the effect of keeping J. Pluvius continuously on the job, and those who have taken an early vacation are damp, damper, dampest, and fearfully discouraged.

Yet they have a way of putting a shining face on the situation. The sun was out today for a time, and the beach was promptly swarming with the usual crowd—the annual crowd, so far as appearances go. One new style bathing costume, wool jersey as to texture, close fitting as to form, inclosing a slim torso supported by one pair of bare knees above uncertain half-socks and laced shoes—one nifty costume of this class is always offset by a dozen little old last year's satin blouses and bloomers. And for every fairy there are always a dozen or so sexless compromises in bombazine, or alpaca, or brilliantine, or whatever it is the waddling worthies invariably choose to swim in.

I think there is more color on the beaches this year than usual. Probably because there are more home knit sweaters covering their owners between dips. Knitting, by the way, is still the popular pastime of the sand sisters who do not swim. There is a gray sweater being constructed under every canopied chair, and pulse warmers by the hundred gross, one figures from the sight of them. The bathhouse man who would station a knitting raft offshore to which the girls could swim, and there start a sock or two before swimming back, would introduce a profitable novelty. Are any of these knitted things ever finished, by the way? We have two or three in our house that are intended, I assume, for the class of 1925.

It has remained for a California genius to provide the newest diversion of the beach—that of riding the sport fish. This weight carrying animal is an inflated compromise between a totem pole and a shark. Shaped like an anchor with fins extended, it rides the breakers and will support probably 200 pounds or more. They can be rented for 50 cents an hour, and the fun to be had with them consists of holding them above the breakers and wading out as far as possible and then mounting and riding in.

The popular position is to straddle the tail of the beast, throw the arms affectionately about its ugly neck, and then come coasting ashore on the crest of a wave, bumping as many fat ladies in the back as may get in the way. But there are those of more skill—pretty girls mostly—who are able to sit upright and guide their mounts as they would a sled, with their dangling feet; modern Aphrodites, in their tighties, having the time of their youthful lives.

There is a touch of the military, of course. I met an aviator with a broken arm, up from the practice ground at Hempstead, and a natty youth in the olive drab of the Russian field service, invalided home after an ambulance driving campaign on the eastern front. He wore the red cockade of the revolution over his heart and was as eager to get back to work as he was reluctant to talk of the things he had been doing.

Young American officers in fresh uniforms spend their days off on the broad cement walk, looking with more or less scorn upon the promenading civilians and more or less envy at those ununiformed parties who may sit at table and order alcoholic cheer with impunity.

It is a fine, inspiring sight, however, in this aristocratic resort, as I found it at lowly Coney last week, to see groups of sailor lads and soldier Sammies walking straight and clear eyed along the walk or the beach, free from the usual suggestion that a good time was being had by all to the detriment of both the individual and the service. It places a new value on the uniform, and in three months time it has made the army man and the seaman welcome companions where formerly they were instinctively avoided.

I was on a street car the other night when a fat and jovial sailor edged his way into a seat. It was over Eighth avenue way, where the boys used to spend a lot of their money and where to meet a uniformed man coming or going was usually to find him taking up most of the sidewalk and ready to fight anyone who interrupted his progress. Not meaning to say they were always drunk, for they were not. Many were sober. But those who were sober usually had their hands full taking care of those who were not, so the result, pictorially, was unanimously alcoholic. Hence the appeal of the contrast.

Before the fat sailor had settled himself the other night every one in the car was looking at him and smiling proudly. When the conductor passed he offered his fare, to be greeted with: "Not fer you, me lad. Ye ride free, an' welcome." And the smiles of the other passengers broadened. He was, so long as he rode, the distinguished passenger of that particular group. Not altogether because the war is new and the uniform means more than it does in peace time, but because he was sober, and being sober a fine representative of the service. And because sobriety itself is a novelty—with sailors and soldiers on Eighth avenue.

In town the preparations for the new season, which will be under way by the second week in August, continue actively. Here, at least, the cool days are welcome and the backward season a help. They not only have made rehearsing less a task than usual, but they have kept playgoing listed with the possible pleasures.

I recall no other July that could boast seven first class theatrical attractions on Broadway. Yet here are "Turn to the Right," which started last August; "The Man Who Came Back," which will complete a full year's run Sept. 2; "The Thirteenth Chair," which began in November, and "Oh, Boy!" a February offering, supplementing the usual summer shows, "The Passing Show," "The Ziegfeld Follies," and Raymond Hitchcock's "Hitchy-koo."

Hitchcock, incidentally, finds himself with both a success and a contract on his hands. He can be taken away from his own revue, which is making him more money than he ever before made at any one time, and set to rehearsing a part for the Century theater roof garden any time Ziegfeld and Dillingham decide to call him. His contract for them is for thirty weeks, and there would appear to be little hope of his breaking it, even if he wanted to do so.

The Hitchcock entertainment continues as formless as usual, and as entertaining because of its very formlessness. It is a sort of "ad lib" revue, puzzling to the casuals, but greatly relished by the regulars. Hitchcock and Frances White were taking an encore the other night and decided, apparently on the spur of that particular moment to sit down at the stage edge with their feet in the electric light trough and talk it over, which they did. By the time they got back the next scene was on, and Miss White, who should have been in it, was late. When she came on, Bill Rock, her partner, demanded to know where she had been. "I was in the trenches with Hitchy," blandly replied Frances, and the show went on.

The Hitchcock explanation of his success, too, isn't bad. He uses it whenever occasion offers and you may have heard it. "I endeavor to place myself en rapport," he declares, wisely; "en rapport with my audience and my esprit de corps is always chosen with the same idea in view. Give me, I say an esprit de corps that is sound in wind and limb, especially the limb, and, ad interim, I care not who selects the principals of my company.

BURNS MANTLE.

Miss Estelle Wentworth

She comes this week to Ravinia Park for two parts—"Aida" tonight, and Leonora in "Il Trovatore" on Wednesday night. She is known well to patrons of the lovely north-shore resort because of appearances there in other seasons.

Miss Louise Kelley

She, a newcomer, was definitely successful as a beauty, a singer, and an actress in Thursday night's première of "O! So Happy!" She belongs, it seems, in Hyde Park; and she has had a London career in "The Pink Lady." She went into "O! So Happy!" to take a part dropped by Lina Abarbanell.

Stage-News

Bert Melrose, whose exhibition on a pyramid of teetering tables has been for some seasons one of the dependably-comic things of the varieties, is to try singing and dancing in a "turn" with Mrs. Melrose.

Henri Bernstein, who wrote "The Thief," is the subject of great praise in the Paris newspapers for a new work, "L'Elevation," recently mounted in the Comedie-Française. It is called the only important play by a Frenchman since the beginning of the war.

Pinero's "The Magistrate," long regarded as the best farce in English by a modern writer, is being made into a musical piece for London. It has twice been subjected to treatment of the kind in the United States: "Mrs. Black Came Back," in which May Irwin acted for a season or so, was a version; "A Lovely Liar," in which Louise Dresser performed in 1911 in the Olympic, was another. "The Magistrate," in its original form, was in the Augustin Daly répertoire for years, and was acted in Chicago by the late John T. Raymond. The play was first staged in 1885.

Three sons of the late Edward Harrigan are in the army: one, William, is a well-known actor in "juvenile" and light-comedy characters.

Violet Vanbrugh and Arthur Bourchier, recently divorced, are finding war-time employment in the English music-halls. She is in a sketch called "The Woman on the Window-Sill"; he is in one called "Pistols for Two." The late Kyrle Bellew's daughter, who goes by her father's stage-name, is with Bourchier.

"Please Help Emily!" a sad farce shown in Powers' in the beginning of last season, is in Paris revival.

"Romance" has been through more than seven hundred performances in London, with Miss Doris Keane taking part in most of them.

The Dolly Sisters, it is announced, are to have a new piece by Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse, who appear to be doing most of the writing for the American theater. Neither did well with his first. Bolton's was a comedy called "The Rule of Three," and did not warrant transportation to Chicago. Wodehouse's, called "A Thief for a Night," was acted for two or three weeks in 1913 in McVicker's by John Barrymore, Miss Alice Brady, and Frank Sheridan.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven are litigants in a matter of $75,000: they think that the producers of a musical piece called "His Little Widows" ought to pay that sum for having discharged them at the end of eight weeks, whereas their contract was for seventy.

Henri Battaile's "The Torches" is scheduled for American performance: it is, in Paris, as old as 1911.

"The Ambassador," by A. E. Thomas, has had a try-out in Seattle. Thomas, who wrote "The Rainbow" and "Her Husband's Wife," designed the piece for George Arliss.

Miss Katherine Galloway, identifiable as the prima-donna of "Molly O" in the Grand Opera-House, is to have the principal part in "Have a Heart!" in Chicago.

The organization of performers known as the Actors' Equity Association has been successful, through its threat to affiliate with the Federation of Labor, in persuading producers of plays to agree to a form of contract designed to correct a long catalogue of actors' grievances. The latter think that they ought to be paid for rehearsing and for extra performances, to receive full salary for Holy Week and the week before Christmas, to be returned to New York City on the closing of a tour, and to receive two weeks' notice when the employer desires to dispense with their talents.

Miss May Booth

She is among the animate décors of "The Show of Wonders": not identifiable by anything she does, perhaps, but contributing her mite to the sum of comeliness which is the especial appeal of the current entertainment from the New York Winter Garden.

In Ravinia

Following is the arrangement of operas and concerts for the fourth week of the ten-weeks season in Raviina Park:

3:00 Today—Concert by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under Richard Hageman.

8:15 Tonight—"Aida," first time this summer, with Estelle Wentworth (first appearance of the season), Ingram, Kingston, Picco, Scott.

8:15 Monday—Wagner program by the orchestra, with Harry Weisback, Bériza, and Picco as soloists.

8:15 Tuesday—"The Tales of Hoffmann," repetition, with Macbeth, White, Pavloska, Giordano, Picco, Scott, Daddi, Adkins.

8:15 Wednesday—"Il Trovatore," first time this summer, with Wentworth, Ingram, Kingston, Picco.

3:00 Thursday—Concert by the orchestra: Bériza, soloist.

8:15 Thursday—"La Traviata" [Acts I, II, and III], with Macbeth, Harrold, Picco.

3:00 Friday—Concert by the orchestra: Margaret Farr, pianist, and Frederick Brancher, violinist, soloists.

8:15 Friday—"Carmen," with Bériza, Mason, Kingston, Pavloska.

3:00 Saturday—Concert by the orchestra.

8:15 Saturday—"Madame Butterfly" [Act I], with Mason, Ingram, Kingston, and "The Secret of Suzanne," with White.

Miss May Thompson

She is among the new-found somebodies of musical comedy, according to gossip which comes from Manhattan. She is important in "You're in Love!": this will get its first Chicago hearing next Saturday night.

Summertime Shows

Wilson-Avenue Theater—"Willie Goes West," a farce by Frederck Ballard: this play once took the Harvard prize. To be acted for the first time in Chicago tomorrow night by the Lieb-Harris Players.

Garrick Theater—"You're in Love!" This is a musical comedy which has had a New York City run: the tunes are by Rudolf Friml, who made those of "The Firefly" and "Katinka"; the "book" is by Otto Harbach [Hauerbach] and Edward Clark. The Misses Marie Flynn and May Thompson, Mrs. Gardner Crane, and Carl McCullough are of the cast. Opens next Saturday night.

Majestic Theater—Charles W. Clark, a baritone known well in Chicago, is to headline the bill which goes into effect tomorrow afternoon: he is new to the two-a-day. Others listed for the week are Charles Kenna, Hager and Goodwin, the Four Haley Sisters [they made a hit not long ago in a musical play in New York City, "His Little Wives"], Stone and Kalisz, Sascha Piatov [he used to dance in Rector's], James Dutton "and company," Voland Gamble, and the Robert DeMont Trio.

Powers' Theater—"O! So Happy!" Elizabeth Murray, Frank Lalor, Ralph Herz, Louise Kelley, and Audrey Maple are in it; and there are six girls, some lively songs, and a Gallic plot. Second week.

Cort Theater—"Seven Chances," with Taylor Holmes and Miss Carroll McComas at the head of a good cast. Final fortnight.

Illinois Theater—"Dew Drop Inn," with Percy Knight, who helped to write it, and Winona Winter as head of the cast. Sixth week.

Palace Music-Hall—"The Show of Wonders," which is from the New York Winter Garden, and is the comeliest thing of its special kind yet sent hither from that institution. Tenth week of a run which will go through August.

Grand Opera-House—"Turn to the Right!" One of the most popular of the numerous tuneless plays that have been through long engagements in this theater in the last five years. Twenty-eighth week.

McVicker's Theater—Continuous variety.

Rialto Theater—Continuous variety.

Great Northern Hippodrome—Continuous variety.

Grandette

(59 inches long)

A miniature equivalent of the concert instrument used for generations by foremost virtuosi. Retaining all the sublime Kranich & Bach tone, the Grandette brings it into the space formerly occupied by an upright—and for little more than the cost of it!

Let us survey your home and show you how your present upright is eating up space that a Grandette might grace—without obligation on your part. If you want to buy, easy monthly terms will be offered you if you so desire

Gossip of the London Theaters

By Hayden Church.

LONDON, June 30.—Sir Arthur Pinero, who has given us no new full length play since "The Big Drum," produced in the first year of the war, tells me that he is now putting the finishing touches on a new play. All that he will allow to be made public regarding it, however, is that his new work, which probably will be seen here in the autumn, is light in texture, and that he hopes it will be found an agreeable blend of humor and sentiment.

As a matter of fact, the author of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" appeared less interested in plays than in the important question of how he is to "put up" any preserves this year. Sir Arthur, it should be explained, besides a town house in Harley street, has a charming country place at Chiddingfold, in Surrey, and there he grows a lot of fruit—strawberries, gooseberries, etc.

"Just at present," he said, "my strawberries are rotting because I can't get sugar enough to preserve them with. I asked for sixty pounds, and all I could get was thirteen. So it looks as if the greater part of my fruit crop this year will go to waste, which is a pity."

The only consolation for the distinguished dramatist in his plight is that, owing to the sugar shortage, thousands of other would-be "preservers" are in similar case, and this at a time when there is urgent need for every variety of food that can be grown in these islands.

Negotiations are in progress, I hear, which probably will result in Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson going to the United States again for the purpose of being filmed in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," in which he appeared so many times throughout the length and breadth of the United States and Canada. If he consents to do this the deal probably will be one of the biggest ever pulled off in filmland.

Meanwhile this, perhaps, the most eminent of British actors is engaged in writing his autobiography, and fascinatingly interesting his recollections should be.

Sir Johnston's memories go back some decades, and he has an uncommonly keen sense of humor. He is writing in a tall, quiet room looking out to the garden at the back of his house in Bedford square, where a large old tree, beloved of birds, gives the illusion of the country. The following story, a favorite one with Sir Johnston, is fairly certain to be incorporated in his autobiography. It concerns the not far distant time when he was touring with his company, which included beautiful Lady Forbes Robertson and Miss Maud Buchanan, his pretty niece.

On a country platform the group of artists and their dress baskets intrigued a farmer. "Whose theatrical company is that?" he asked Sir Johnston, gazing appreciatively at the ladies. "The Forbes-Robertson company," was the answer. Quickly followed the second question, "Musical comedy or revue?"

H. B. Irving, who has done so well since he went into management at the historic Savoy theater the best part of two years ago, came his first real cropper last week. A play by the industrious Horace Annesley Vachell, entitled "Humpty Dumpty," which Irving produced, with himself in the principal part, on Monday evening last, finished its career on the following Friday.

To many playgoers, including the writer, the piece proved so entertaining that it might exactly as well have run for a hundred nights or more, as did the same author's "Searchlights" and "The Case of Lady Camber" when produced by the same manager at the same theater, but the adverse opinion of most of the professional critics was indorsed by the general public, with the result that the Savoy is closed, while Irving takes a holiday that is probably not unwelcome. The more so, as, added to his professional anxieties, the elder and only surviving son of the late Sir Henry also has those of a father, his own boy being a member of the royal flying corps.

The causes of the failure of "Humpty Dumpty" are worth analyzing a bit, because, I hear, this latest piece of Vachell's has been secured for production in America in the early autumn. Personally, having found "Humpty Dumpty" so agreeable an evening's beguilement, I am inclined to think that its title helped to kill it here, the nursery tale of Humpty Dumpty having been the theme of innumerable entertainments of the kind that are known here as "Christmas pantomimes." In America it will be called "Bert" [this title having, I understand, been decided upon before the piece was produced here), and, on the principle that what pleases Londoners doesn't always go with Americans, and vice versa, "Bert" may score with you as "Humpty Dumpty" failed to do here.

It isn't often that we have a barber as the hero of a play (though Cyril Maude tried playing one in "The Barber of Mariposa," the dramatization of one of Stephen Leacock's "Sunshine Sketches," which failed to score when tried in the United States recently), but a hairdresser is the central figure of "Humpty Dumpty." In fact, he is the Humpty Dumpty, for, all of a sudden, he is elevated to a seat on a wall and, just as he has got used to being there, he has a great fall.

In other words, Bert Mott, who is a hairdresser at Swashcomb-on-Sea, with a shop of his own, suddenly is told that he really is a belted earl, with tons of money to back up his title. I should never have believed that H. B. Irving, who is a better Hamlet than his famous father ever was and an impressive Matthias in "The Bells," could have played an h-less seaside barber and made a really flesh and blood character of him, but he did, and the scenes in Bert's shop before he had been told that he was an earl, and was still fitting bald headed customers with toupées and shampooing others, were really immense.

Later we see Bert installed in a Mayfair mansion and wearing his robes as a peer of the realm, but still a barber at heart. He makes a toupée for his bald butler and has visions of turning his splendid mansion into a "temple of coiffeuring," and all this is great fun, too. Alas, it develops at the end that he isn't really an earl at all (his supposed mother's real child died and he is a changeling), and we leave him back in his shop at Swashcomb-on-Sea, not, on the whole, discontented, since he found the "hupper suckles" rather trying.

Horace Annesley Vachell, who wrote this piece, is the Anglo-American novelist (for he lived in California for several years and still has property there) who made so big a success with "Quinneys'" and since then has written so many plays that it was not humanly possible for all of them to be successful. Another of his pieces which you are to have in America shortly is "Mr. Jubilee Drax," which Vachell wrote in collaboration with Walter Hackett of U. S. A., and which was given here at the Haymarket. It is all about a stolen diamond and is tremendously exciting.

METRO DAY AT EXPOSITION.

By Mae Tinée.

WELL, today is the last day of the exposition, and—no two ways about it—it has been some show! Nothing has been lacking to make it the biggest affair of its kind ever held. There have been stars galore, crowds galore, and box office receipts galore. Also at the convention there was a big fight among the exhibitors and a split up—and O, all sorts of excitement to make things interesting. No wonder that the management, headed by Ludwig Schlindler, is rubbing congratulatory palms together. In turn, let me offer congratulations!

Today is Metro day and in the Metro booth Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne will shake hands with their admirers. Mr. Bushman is looking extremely fit and Miss Bayne is as pretty as ever. Since their arrival in the city they have been hospitably entertained by the Bushman club, which is said to number more than 400 members.

While the Bushman-Bayne is the largest advertised feature of this day, fans must not forget that present, too, will be Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, those makers of delightful comedies. A Drew comedy in any theater is sure to be a drawing card, for the couple have the gift of humor tinged with zip and untainted by vulgarity. They're an interesting pair, too. They are happily married and as devoted to each other as they are to their work—which is saying a lot. Both are exceedingly versatile and when Mr. Drew doesn't feel like directing Mrs. Drew steps into the directorial boots and fills them ably.

Viola Dana will also be there and so will Edith Storey.

Some galaxy of stars, we should say! They'll be sure to give the exposition a good sendoff.

Kathlyn Williams has closed her home and has taken herself to the beach for a week or two of surf fun.

Ora Carew spent a week of her vacation at Catalina island and is quite unblushing in her stories of the fish she caught. Confirmatory evidence is produced in the shape of some snap shots of Miss Carew with big strings of fish. (Just another fish story.)

Carol Halloway, being told she could have a vacation, called up several friends and made up a party to journey to San Diego. But first she must have her car greased up and the wheels looked at and see that the steering gear was all right, so that they would be assured of a pleasant journey. Blithely she took her car into the garage, and half an hour later she emerged rather downcast. Reason—the inspecting garage man assured her that there were so many things that needed attending to on her car that it would prove fatal for her to attempt the trip. (Pity the poor working girl!)

Mario Majeroni, the noted "legitimate" actor, will make his first appearance in the "silent drama" in a forthcoming Metro picture, "A Sleeping Memory."

And here again we have Henry King in a new rôle—that of a hero. Mr. King rescued a girl from the back of a runaway horse while on "location." The name of the girl has not been divulged by the aspiring press agent.

One evening last week found George Periolat making a hurried visit from Santa Barbara to Los Angeles. He wired his tailor to wait his coming and after working hours left Santa Barbara and was back on the job in the morning. The fact was that Mr. Periolat let a lighted cigaret fall on one of the coats he was wearing and the hole made was too large to patch. It is further stated that the tailor delivered a duplicate within eighteen hours and the situation was saved.

Monroe Salisbury recently received the following from a little girl in Ohio: "Dear Mr. Salisbury: You are a lovely Indian in 'Ramona.' Please send me the name and address of the man who shot you. I want to write and tell him I don't like him. Eva Green."

It is estimated by an ambitious p. a. that Beverly Bayne is the most photographed woman in the world, being pictured no less than 1,000,000,000 times. (We has our doots.)

◆

The American sailor who gets the sweater which Pauline Frederick is knitting for the navy need not be surprised if he catches cold, for there are going to be a number of drop stitches and other curious apertures in the garment. Who could sit in a seventy-five horsepower racing car going at top speed and expect to get every stitch correct? Miss Frederick declares that frequently it is a question of dropping a stitch or her life, and so far the stitches have suffered.

Here's the list of things auctioned at the Red Cross booth:

Carl Laemmle purchased a table cloth donated and embroidered by a woman 76 years old.

Don McCarty bought a fancy work bag which was donated by Nell Craig. Mr. McCarty returned the bag.

Mae Murray bought Lillian Walker's dress for $50 and returned it. Alice Brady bought it the next evening for the same price.

Alfred Hamburger bought a bag donated by Peggy Hyland for $4.75. He also purchased ten pictures of Mae Murray at 50 cents apiece.

Eddie Lyons bought a photograph of Mae Murray for $10.

A soldier took off his wrist watch, which was sold for $6, but was returned to him by the buyer, R. L. Chaney.

Baby Bryant Washburn donated a book which brought $1.

Theodore Foleris purchased a traveling clock donated by Ethel Clayton for $5 and redonated it.

Sheet music autographed by Alice Brady, Rose Tapley, etc., and Shirley Mason's bouquet of American beauties netted $50.

Nell Craig bought a bag donated by Mary Miles Minter for $10.

It is estimated that Mae Murray's autographed photgoraphs netted about $84.

In her forthcoming picture, "Wife Number Two," Valeska Suratt, it is said, wore a hat which bore on its crown and rim some real apples, grapes, and peaches. As soon as the few scenes in which it was needed were filmed Miss Suratt distributed her hat among the studio hands. A good time is reported by all.

Julian Eltinge has already learned that the makeup for the films is different to that he uses for his stage plays.

Norma Talmadge is not superstitious! There are thirteen letters in her own name, thirteen letters in her husband's name, Joseph Schenck, they were married on the 13th of the month, and whenever possible Miss Talmadge insists that her pictures be released on the 13th. We wonder how she feels about black cats and ladders and broken looking glasses?

Ask Me! Ask Me!

HERE LIES FREE LUNCH GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

ELEGY ON FREE LUNCH.

They have killed Free Lunch, the lovely,
They have gyped Free Lunch, the blest,
And the cheese has ceased from troubling,
And the pretzels are at rest;
Never more the fork upstanding
From the glass shall glimmer far
As a bright and cheery beacon
To the wanderer at the bar.

Never more the wistful onion
Shall entice the roving eye,
Or the ripe and luscious olive
Lure the weary passerby!
And the sandwich, fraught with gravy,
Never more the heart will cheer,
Gone the gracious appetizer,
Gone the codicil to beer.

Fare ye well, my old companion,
Eleemosynary lunch,
Never more I'll share your treasures
With the old time, hungry bunch;
And my heart is sad and heavy,
And the tear is in my eye,
I will miss you when I'm hungry,
I will miss you when I'm dry.

I will miss your sweet addendum
To the beaker on the birch,
I will miss that lovely laginappe
On its cool, adjacent perch;
Never more you'll cheer and comfort
With your bounty heaping high,
But I never shall forget you—
So, good-by, Free Lunch, good-bye.

Thrift Expedients Is Main Topic at Social Functions

By Mme. X.

THERE'S no disentangling the social and the military these days. Everything we do or say has some relation to the war and its vast background of preparation and conservation. Even the Aldis playhouse dramatic entertainment of a week ago, which was designed to introduce and advertise the street players and to promote a north side temple for them, linked itself with Hoover's great work when, between plays, Mrs. Aldis held up to the audience placards with various thrift slogans for its consideration. In fact, our remarkable fellow countryman, Herbert C. Hoover, is the god in the car to all American housewives, the presiding genius in their lives, the inspiration of their manifold activities.

At a recent Lake Forest luncheon one of Chicago's most prominent social leaders apologized for her discolored finger nails by explaining that she had been canning her surplus beets by the cold process method, "and very hard work it is," she added.

Immaculate, polished nails show that their possessor is neither a canner nor a gardener. Unless these same glistening fingertips flash in and out of a piece of gray or blue or khaki colored knitting the patriotism of their owner is liable to be questioned.

Visit Municipal Gardens.

Thirty members of the Garden Club of Illinois made an interesting excursion last Wednesday afternoon, when, after a luncheon given by their president, Mrs. William G. Hibbard Jr., in her charming Winnetka house, they visited in motors three of Mrs. Laura Dainty Pelham's municipal gardens.

These are no sporadic product of these strenuous times, but are the fruit of a ten years' campaign and comprise 500 one-eighth acre gardens, worked by our humbler fellow citizens of foreign birth. In them Italians, Poles, Czechs, Swedes, Germans, and Russians have planted, as far as possible, such vegetables, fruits, and flowers as grew in their far away homes—and a most amazing conglomeration it is. It would take an expert to name and define them. Inspired by the trip, the Garden club contemplates a similar work another season.

It is said that Mr. Hoover himself is surprised at the scope and achievements of the garden movement in this country. In the beginning he had doubted its having more than a sentimental value, but now realizes that, coupled as it is with the movement to conserve garden products by canning and dehydrating processes, it promises to be a real factor in solving our next winter's food problems.

Scheming to Save.

Wherever you go, at luncheons, teas, or dinners, the conversation is apt to drift to thrift expedients. How to achieve wheatless and meatless days, the culinary possibilities of substitutes for butter, sugar, eggs, etc., are absorbing topics and quite supplant golf, tennis, and bridge as themes for discussion.

And withal we are not menaced with poor living nor a depreciated standard of cuisine. We are discovering the real values and possibilities of food. We are waking up to the disadvantages of many patent processes. For instance, no one could sample the bread made from a certain north shore gentleman farmer's home grown, home ground, home made whole wheat flour without wanting to grow his own grain, grind it in his own mill, and bake it in his own oven.

The egg and garbage problems would be solved if every one who lived beyond the cramping confines of a city realized the possible interdependence of a chicken yard and a garbage can. Five weeks of chicken farming on a modest scale have enlightened the X. family in this direction. Every bit of kitchen refuse is acceptable to our feathered friends—Orpington buffs of the handsomest—while such ashes as a household has, even in these days of gas and electricity, go to carpet the chicken house as acceptably as any savonnerie rug in any royal palace.

But that this thrift business is not acceptable to all is manifested by the revolt of the summer residents in a large hostelry on the lake shore between Glencoe and Fort Sheridan when its managers endeavored to establish that sanest, most wholesome of institutions, a meatless day. Said the summer guests: "We're not getting what we pay for." Let's not forget this display of carnivorous fervor on the part of a numerous contingent.

Ball for Navy Relief.

At Highland Park Exmoor's pillared porches and colonial salons will be the setting on Aug. 11 of a big military ball whose proceeds will go—for it's to be a pay affair at $5 per—to the Red Cross and the Navy Relief. The honorary chairman of the affair is the club's president, Edson White, and he and his wife will give a large dinner at the club preceding the ball in honor of Col. and Mrs. Nicholson of Fort Sheridan and Capt. and Mrs. Moffett of the naval station.

A young man at a dance nowadays who isn't wearing khaki or white drill might as well prepare his mind for a back seat. The dancing young women of the day are becoming more and more convinced that it's no fun dancing with a man not in uniform. They are beginning to look upon him as out of the picture, an anomaly, something to be explained.

These are days of really agonizing tension to many of the men at the Fort Sheridan R. O. T. C. Most of them are suffering so much from fear of being dropped that they are actually losing appetite, sleep, and weight. It seems as if there ought to be some way of releasing them from the service for which they volunteered with such high hopes and thorough patriotism without the sense of almost dishonorable discharge which many take home with them. Those who haven't in the estimation of their instructors measured up to requirements, mental or physical, are being rapidly weeded out these days. Without a good-by they disappear from the ranks, the classroom, or the cantonments and are seen no more. It's this wordless disappearance that puts the fear into the hearts of their companions.

Snappy Drills at the Fort.

By the way, have you seen Maj. Koehler, West Point instructor, put the men through the bayonet drill or give the recently arrived artillerymen the setting up exercises? It's a great sight. In ten minutes there's a change for the better in the men, a snap, a vigor, a soldierly quality in them that infects even onlookers. No one can listen to his short, sharp orders barked fiercely at the long lines of men without putting chin up, chest out, stomach in, and a stiffening spine.

It's a pity to abandon for military training purposes so fine a camp as Fort Sheridan. So much money has been spent on it, the First regiment of Ohio engineers, under Maj. Troyan, has done such splendid work there in building roads, trenches with every kind of revetment, listening posts, barbed wire entanglements, and other military apparatus, that to leave it all and build a new one at Leon Springs, Tex., seems a sample of the wanton wastefulness of which democratic governments are so often accused.

The latest addition to the camp's outfit is a paraphernalia to teach the men the intricacies of trench charging. There's the home trench from which they leap; there's the barbed wire entanglement; then come hanging effigies of the enemy to be bayonetted, enemy trenches to be stormed, and at the rear a long slant to be scaled, rifle in hand, representing the final stage of a successful storming expedition.

To the visitor it all still seems incredible, unreal, preposterous—the ultimate end for which these preparations are made. Is it the twentieth century, and is it our own clean, manly, kindly American boys who are being trained in the grisly tricks of war? The enemy that brought this about will have a long, long score to pay to American wives, mothers, and sisters.

One of the most interesting personalities among the training corps at Fort Sheridan is a full blooded American Indian, a Carlyle man, who is rated as 100 per cent perfect physically, 99.4 perfect mentally, and, as a man who knows him well there says, plus a hundred morally, as fine a specimen not only of the red man but of the human race as can be found anywhere. He is well liked by his comrades at the fort, and promises to make a career for himself in whatever direction he turns his abilities.

Plight of Serbian Students.

From the other side, the goal of all our endeavors, come, in increasing volume, cries for help. A recent letter from Mme. Slavko Grouitch tells the plight of Serbian students of both sexes in Paris who are eager to train themselves in architecture, carpentering, mechanics, and gardening to fit themselves for the rehabilitating of their beloved and devastated country, and yet are not presentable for such instruction because of not having even enough clothes to keep them warm. She asks if such college students in America who are donning uniforms would not donate some of their civilian garments—underwear, overcoats, boots, socks, suits—to these, the remnant of Serbia's unhappy people. The American relief clearing house in Paris will receive and handle all such gifts.

In the matter of raising money for the needs of war sufferers she quotes the remarks of a young French soldier:

> In Paris I lunched with some old French friends, whose only son was at home on leave after months at the extreme front. Every one else at the table was talking about a forthcoming performance of the Russian ballet in aid of a war charity. The boy turned to me wearily and said:
> "Madame, why is it necessary for you ladies to give yourselves so much trouble and enter into competition along business lines in order to get money for the care of the sick and wounded and those of the devastated regions? Are rich people not willing to give unless coaxed into it? Comme c'est indigne!"
> I explained the need of aiding the artists and of helping "business as usual," which the English believe is the best way to keep the nation normal in war time; but this ardent soul, in its simple uniform, saw only the need for more men at the front!

Borden's Sister Aids Wounded.

While John Borden of Chicago is hunting submarines somewhere in the Mediterranean, his wife is devoting herself to Red Cross work at her Lake Geneva home. She is teaching her little girls, aged 6 and 8, to work also, and says that it's only in the utmost devotion of every waking hour to this labor that she finds any refuge from her anxieties and wandering thoughts.

His sister, Mrs. Mary Borden-Turner, has attained unusual distinction in France in her work in organizing field hospitals for the "grands blessés" immediately behind the firing lines. She was awarded the much prized croix de guerre this spring.

Practically ever since she went to France to give her services to the wounded, in February, 1915, she has been under fire. On June 5 last her field hospital was bombarded when many of the huts were badly damaged and one of the nurses, Miss Jaffray, so seriously injured that her foot had to be amputated, while one of the patients and two orderlies also were wounded. Of the record of her hospital Mrs. Borden-Turner writes:

> We are proud of our career as a hospital and especially proud of our 6 per cent mortality record, which is exceedingly low for a hospital receiving only "grands blessés" and purely surgical. I am glad to have the work known in the United States as the only assistance I have had in maintaining the hospital has been from my relatives and friends in America. My supplies have been sent entirely through Paris and packed by the American distributing service, founded by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss.

So successful was she in organizing her own field hospital that the French government got her to organize a big military hospital of 3,000 beds in the Somme region and another one between Soissons and Reims.

Chicagoans Return.

Among the interesting visitors in Chicago the last week was a former worker and nurse in Mrs. Borden-Turner's field hospital, Miss La Motte, whose remarkable little collection of hospital sketches, yclept "A Backwash of the War," is one of the war's most distinguished literary by-products. Miss La Motte returned a short while ago with Mrs. E. C. Chadbourne from a winter in China and Japan and has a book on the celestial or middle kingdom on the stocks. Mrs. Chadbourne is planning to settle in Chicago and to arrange some of her various rare bibelots and art treasures in a home on the north side.

Other returning Chicagoans who are brought to our shores because their usual European haunts are inaccessible are Charles and James Deering. The former is with his wife and his daughter, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, at the attractive old Deering residence in North Evanston, while James Deering is occupying his Lake Shore drive home, shrine of many choice treasures.

The David Adlers are spending the summer in Abraham Poole's house in Lake View avenue, while the Hamilton McCormicks are as settled in their Rush street mansion as they can be until peace allows them to bring over their household goods and chattels from London.

Mrs. Greeley Gives Garden Party.

Many and remarkable are the means taken to raise money for various war enterprises. Among the most original was the early Victorian garden party, given by Mrs. Frederick Greeley in her utterly delectable, flowery, green garden—at Winnetka yesterday afternoon. With great audacity her invitations announced that no one under 50 was eligible as a guest of the occasion. Of course a number of perfectly eligible members of the community had engagements in remote districts of the north shore. And those who did go entreated that their names should not be published. There's something about being labeled 50, even when you've seen 60, that makes the hardiest soul cringe.

But the party was a great success. The hostess had provided early Victorian sports, such as Cranford delighted in three-quarters of a century and more ago. There was croquet for some and archery for others, while still others played "graces," translated into quoits. Like the Cranford parties, the guests were all of the gentler sex. The money raised by the entertainment is to be devoted to the Red Cross.

Don't fail to be on the lookout tomorrow for the Forty-eighth Canadian Highlanders—or the remnants left of this gallant fighting force—who are to parade in the loop tomorrow in their war bonnets of black ostrich feathers, their crimson tunics, their fluttering kilties, and with their bagpipes skirling. They come to promote the enlisting of American, Canadian, and British men.

One of the loveliest spots in the country is Lake Geneva, with its splendid country estates sloping down to the water's edge, its private yachts steaming about, carrying gay little groups here and there on pleasure and business, and the beautiful new country club, where the members of the summer colony spend much of their time. Miss Margaret Marston is one of the young girls who spend more time in knitting sweaters and socks for soldiers than in the sports of the club, and has already made a record supply of wooly garments for our fighters. Miss Catherine Rehm, Miss Catherine Bartholomay, and Miss Margaret Uihlein are also frequent visitors at the Lake Geneva Country club, and are members of the younger set that play and work there.

WEDDINGS

Miss Ruth Jane Mack, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Julian W. Mack of Chicago, was married on Thursday to Hermann L. Blumgart, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Blumgart of Newark, N. J. The ceremony was performed at the North Shore Country club of Glenhead, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Moss of 6129 Langley avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Rosella, to W. B. Kelly of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will live in New York.

The marriage at Old Point Comfort of Miss Dorothy Everett Pickard, daughter of the late Dr. William S. Pickard of Maywood and Mrs. Pickard, to Charles M. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Clark of Wheaton and Chicago, is announced.

Announcement is made of the wedding of Miss Louise Workman Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Turner of Woods Hole, Mass., formerly of Chicago, and Lieut. Walter Otis Luscombe Jr. The wedding took place in Woods Hole on Thursday.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Elmere Peneau of Wausau, Wis., to Philip Sheridan Roe. The couple will live at 2922 South Michigan avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Engel of 5817 Prairie avenue announce the coming marriage of their daughter, Claire Helen, to Leonard Bixler, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Bixler of Batavia, Ill., which will take place tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Taylor announce the marriage of their daughter, Jane Alice, to Louis Eugene Kleckhoefer of 5322 Blackstone avenue.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

WOMEN IN WAR WORK

SINCE its organization the Rogers Park central committee of the council of national defense has become one of the largest Red Cross work centers in the city. [illegible] members of twenty-one [illegible] and churches have combined and [illegible] working under efficient instruction [illegible] surgical supplies, shirts, convalescent robes, and necessary garments in [illegible] goods. Every interested woman [illegible] the community is invited to work at the Rogers Park Woman's club, where the central committee is located, on [illegible] from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m.

The publicity committee of the woman's committee of the council of national defense last week issued a letter to the heads of committees throughout the state begging women to stop registering for everything except the pressing [illegible] at hand. Out of the 3,000 registration cards at 69 East Madison street [illegible] ninety-seven read "home charities." "But as the charities have most need [illegible] service, they suddenly find themselves [illegible] for a more remote and more [illegible] task where, after all, women will not be allowed to serve," said Mrs. [illegible] Smith of the Home charities committee of the defense council. Mrs. [illegible] committee has set itself the [illegible] of making volunteer work come up to the standard of professional service. [illegible] and it has secured the coöperation of the School of Civics and Philanthropy, which is giving a course of [illegible] a week for five weeks to [illegible] who will enlist.

Uncle Sam's garden is the official name [illegible] an acre and a half of land in Lake [illegible] which is being cultivated by the [illegible] business girls of the Eleanor clubs as a patriotic service. Every year [illegible] of the Eleanor clubs spend [illegible] vacations at their Lake Geneva [illegible]. This year they have decided to [illegible] part of their vacation time to [illegible] vegetables. Their interest has [illegible] stimulated to a high degree, they [illegible] by the attractive poster painted for [illegible] by Frederick C. Bartlett, showing a [illegible] Uncle Sam dressed like a farmer [illegible] on a little hillock and inviting [illegible] to "come and hoe with Uncle [illegible]." In Chicago the members of the [illegible] are registering with the women's committee of the council of national defense for the lines of work in which they [illegible] professionally employed. In addition to this they have hours of work at the Central Eleanor club in the Stevens building when they cut out garments which are later put together by the [illegible] at Lake Geneva and sent to France for Belgian war orphans.

[illegible] has been given to the woman's committee of the Council of National Defense by Maj. Kenny and [illegible] actively engaged with it in working [illegible] the great recruiting parade to be [illegible] on Thursday by Capt. Kenny, [illegible] British recruiting officers, and the woman's committee. The women will [illegible] floats representing every woman's [illegible] society in the city. The flying [illegible] of the speakers' committee that [illegible] in Springfield on July 31 for the [illegible] convention is to go in war-time [illegible] style, in a tourist car, which [illegible] serve as sleeping quarters for the [illegible], as well as conveyance [illegible] the state. Where side trips are [illegible] instead of motors [illegible] be used.

[illegible] members of the woman's committee of the Council of National Defense [illegible] with the members of the [illegible] church for Negroes in Chicago— [illegible] which on Wednesday celebrated the seventy-first anniversary of [illegible] founding. "Their program," say [illegible] of the woman's committee, "is [illegible] to the patriotism of the [illegible] women of America." Instead of [illegible] the day with work for their [illegible] organization, they have given it up [illegible] mass meeting under the auspices of the woman's committee. This [illegible] the form of a food conservation [illegible] nearly everything seems [illegible] and addresses will be made [illegible] Miss Harriet Vittum, director of the [illegible], and Miss Isabel Bevier, head [illegible] household economics department [illegible] University of Illinois."

The old settlers of Fort Madison, Ia., will give their annual picnic on Saturday at Lincoln park, on the grounds just north of the Academy of Science building.

How To Overcome Foot Troubles

Unless a person has actually suffered with tired, aching, burning feet or painful corns or calluses, they cannot appreciate the misery that such afflictions bring.

Reports now show that over 90 per cent of the American people suffer from some form of foot troubles and modern footwear is said to be causing an alarming increase in this percentage. Therefore, the following should prove of special interest to readers.

Recently in the treatment of these foot troubles by patients using Ice-Mint, these distinctive features were noticeable. Tired, aching, burning and swollen feet invariably become cool, easy and comfortable after the first application, while in the treatment of corns and calluses, it was noticed that after a few nights' application, the corn or callus had a tendency to loosen, and in a short time could easily be lifted out with the fingers—root and all—leaving the surrounding skin in normal, healthy condition.

This, together with the fact that Ice-Mint costs little and is so easy and pleasant to apply—and is absolutely harmless—is no doubt responsible for the high endorsement given it by Specialists as the surest, safest and most efficacious treatment for distressing foot troubles.

When you stop to consider that the simple, pleasant process of rubbing a little Ice-Mint on the foot at night will shortly rid one of every painful corn or callus, and will keep the feet cool, comfortable and rested even on the hottest days, it is easy to understand its great popularity and why it is now used in nearly every American home. Anyone suffering from foot troubles is advised to give Ice-Mint a trial. There is nothing better. [illegible]

National Reform Body Opens Its Annual Institute

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

WINONA LAKE, Ind., will be the meeting place of the National Reform association, which begins today its thirteenth annual institute.

The morning sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Harris H. Gregg of the Moody Bible institute, Chicago, and the afternoon address on "Optimistic Outlooks" will be given by the Rev. D. Pohlman, pastor of the Temple Lutheran church, Philadelphia.

The general themes to be discussed at the institute are: "International Peace," "Religion in Public Life," "Social Doctrines of Christianity," "Our National Christianity: Its Perils and Safeguards," and "How It Will Be when Christianity Really Comes."

Among the speakers will be the Rev. James S. Martin, the Rev. John Royal Harris, the Rev. Lyman Edwyn Davis, the Rev. Larimore C. Denise, and Mrs. Frances J. Diefenderfer.

The Winona Bible conference, said to bring together the largest gathering of ministers in the United States, will be held from Aug. 17 to 26.

The Bishop Quarter school for little boys, Lake street and East avenue, Oak Park, will soon be opened, according to announcements made in the New World. The property was formerly the Oak Park High school. It was purchased by Archbishop G. W. Mundelein of the Roman Catholic church from the Oak Park board of education for the purpose of providing a home for boys from 6 to 11 years of age whose mothers have died and the fathers, although able to pay a modest sum for the education of their children, are unable to pay for their care in more expensive schools. At the time of the first announcement of the plan to found the school Archbishop Mundelein said he believed the school would prevent in many cases hasty second marriages, where the chief motive of a second marriage would be to provide a "mother" for motherless children. Three sisters of St. Dominic are already at the school and are arranging for its speedy opening.

The Boys' Shelter home, for which money is being raised by the Knights of Columbus, will be begun soon as the money, it is expected, will be subscribed within a few weeks. A captain has been appointed in each council of the Knights of Columbus to bring the subscription to a finish. The home will be for the purpose of caring for boys who have taken a first step in waywardness before they become real criminals. It will, it is said, be the first home for delinquent boys in the United States under the control of the Roman Catholic church.

"The Camp of a Hundred Fires" is the name given to the camp of the international older girls' camp conference at Conference Point, Lake Geneva, Wis., which begins Wednesday. Girls between 16 and 22 years of age are accepted. John L. Alexander of the International Sunday School association is camp director. The international pennant winners' conference will be held in the same place tomorrow and Tuesday.

The Rev. Harry E. Peabody, who has resigned from the South Congregational church to accept the pastorate of the First Congregational church of Appleton, Wis., will be in the South church pulpit on Sept. 2 and 9. Ministers who will supply the pulpit in the meantime are: Today and next Sunday, the Rev. Charles L. Morgan; Aug. 5, 12, and 19, the Rev. Charles Sumner Osgood of Mitchell, S. D.; Aug. 26, the Rev. George Raymond Cady, Clinton, Ia. Dr. Peabody attended commencement at Harvard university and saw his son, Stephen, graduate. He has entered the reserve officers' training camp in Cambridge, Mass.

The Rev. A. M. Reilly, O. C. C., is pastor of St. Cyril's Roman Catholic church, 6413 Dante avenue, which is celebrating the feast of the Scapular, the services being attended by many visitors from outside of Chicago as well as from many Chicago parishes. Father Reilly is also a teacher in St. Cyril's college, adjoining the church.

Service with solemn high mass and a sermon will be held at 10:30. The closing service of the festival, which began two weeks ago, will be held at 3 o'clock, when the address will be made by the Rev. Thomas V. Shannon, D. D., pastor of St. Thomas Apostle church, and editor of the New World. There will also be a reception of new members into the sodality, the pope's blessing, and a procession.

For the last two weeks masses have been celebrated each morning at 6, 7, and 8 o'clock, and each evening special devotion of the Scapular, sermon, and benediction.

The feast of the Scapular originated in the thirteenth century. Its membership numbers millions, including the pope, all of the cardinals, all archbishops, monsignors, priests, and distinguished churchmen, who consider it an honor to wear the brown badge which denotes membership in this organization. The Carmelite fathers have special charge over the society of the Brown Scapular.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the Campbell institute will be held in the Hyde Park Disciples church, of which the Rev. Edward Scribner Ames is pastor, from Wednesday to Friday. The institute is for the purpose of discussing questions of a critical or scholarly character pertaining to theology, philosophy, and the church.

The Rev. Percival J. Huget, pastor of the Tompkins Avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, N. Y., a church having 3,500 members, will preach today in the New England Congregational church, in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. John Gardner. Next Sunday and on Aug. 12 the Rev. John Gordon of Rockford, Ill., will preach, and on Aug. 5 the Rev. R. L. Breed, superintendent of Chicago city missions, will preach.

An offering of $100,000 for the American Red Cross, it is hoped, will be fully reached by the gifts of the Sunday schools of the Methodist Episcopal church. Many schools which were prevented from taking the offering earlier will do so today. When the fund is complete Bishop Thomas Nicholson of the Chicago area, who is president of the board of Sunday schools, will take the check for the entire amount and present it in person to the American Red Cross society in Washington, D. C.

The Centenary Methodist Episcopal church, Morgan and Monroe streets, is holding street meetings. The auto truck of the Methodist Mutual Aid union has been fitted with organ and cushioned seats and carries signs on the side, "Methodist Gospel Car." The car is used three evenings a week and on Sunday afternoons. The Rev. W. S. Fleming, the pastor, is in charge and is assisted by other ministers and layworkers.

A pledge to wage the war without brutality and immorality has been signed by hundreds of men at the Fort Sheridan training camp. The pledge was introduced by the Rev. John Timothy Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Chicago, and has since been circulated by interested men in the various companies, under the general direction of the Young Men's Christian association and by the chaplains in charge. The pledge reads: "1. We undertake to maintain our part of the war free from hatred, brutality, or graft, true to the American purpose and ideals. 2. Aware of the temptations incident to camp life and the moral and social wreckage involved, we covenant together to live the clean life and to seek to establish the American uniform as a symbol and guarantee of real manhood. 3. If we become officers, we pledge our example and our influence to make these ideals dominant in the American army."

The American Missionary association, which represents the Congregational churches of America in work among the Negroes, last week sent an appeal, addressed to Gov. F. O. Lowden, expressing indignation at the outrages against the Negroes in East St. Louis and calling on him to see that justice is meted out to all offenders. "A race cannot advance in economic progress or moral character if it is to be constantly subjected to mob violence, especially if such acts go unpunished," said the appeal, which was signed by Lucien C. Warner, chairman of the executive committee. The appeal also states the American Missionary association has under its jurisdiction among the Negroes five colleges, twenty-eight academies, and seven other schools, enrolling 10,000 Negro pupils and representing a constituency of 100,000 Negroes. There are also 160 Congregational Negro churches, with a membership of 10,000.

A service exclusively in English will be held by the Swedish young people's conference today at 3 o'clock in the Lake View Swedish Mission church, Osgood and School streets. The Rev. John Wesley Lee will be the speaker. At 10:45 a. m. and 7 p. m. the Rev. Gustaf F. Johnson of Minneapolis will preach. At the morning service the Rev. J. A. Norman, pastor of the church, will also have part in the service. The conference began Friday evening.

The seventieth anniversary of the founding of Quinn chapel of the African Methodist Episcopal church, Twenty-fourth street and South Wabash avenue, will be observed with services and gatherings of various kinds beginning today and continuing until Aug. 7. The church is the oldest colored church in Chicago. Bishop L. J. Coppin of Philadelphia will preach at 10:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. At 3 p. m. the Odd Fellows will be present and representatives of the order will speak. The program for the evenings of the week is as folows: Tomorrow, A. M. E. Ministerial alliance; Tuesday, Baptist pastors' conference; Wednesday, City Federation of Women's Clubs, sixty-nine organizations, Mrs. Bertha Wilson, president; Thursday the following clubs: Easter Lily, Heart and Hand, Bright Star of Hope, Mayflower, Virginia, Annie Walker Conscience, Texas Fellowship, Old Settlers, Spanish War Veterans, Ladies' Auxiliary Spanish War Veterans; Friday, Olivet Baptist church, the Rev. L. K. Williams. The Rev. Joseph C. Anderson, D. D., is pastor of Quinn chapel and in general charge of the celebration.

Baptists will hold their annual assembly at Franklin, Ind., beginning tomorrow and continuing until next Sunday. S. L. Roberts is dean of the assembly. The Rev. F. L. Anderson, superintendent of the Baptist executive committee, Chicago, will be one of the speakers.

The Rev. J. H. Hoff, pastor of the First Baptist church, Maywood, has resigned, the resignation to take effect Aug. 26.

The Norwegian Lutheran churches, which united in the Norwegian Lutheran Church in America on June 9, will celebrate the union with a demonstration Sunday afternoon, Sept. 9. It is expected that the celebration will be held in Humboldt park.

The Rev. Charles Wesley Flint, D. D., who will preach the morning sermon today at the Desplaines camp ground, has received scholastic degrees from Toronto university, Drew Theological seminary, Columbia university, and Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn. He was pastor of New York Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Brooklyn, N. Y., before his election to the presidency of Cornell college, Iowa, in 1915. The afternoon service will be of a festival character, children and young people taking part. The Rev. W. R. Wedderspoon, D. D., pastor of St. James' Methodist Episcopal church, will preach, and in the evening the Rev. George Wood Anderson, D. D., will give his closing sermon. The campmeeting will close tomorrow evening with a union communion service in which the Swedish and Norwegian-Danish Methodists, who meet during the campmeeting in separate tabernacles, will unite with the English speaking Methodists in the main tabernacle.

The Sunday school of the Second United Presbyterian church, Parnell avenue and Sixty-fifth street, of which former Judge McKensie Cleland is superintendent, and the Rev. W. A. Pollock is pastor, has distributed nickels to every member to invest and return the nickel with profits on rally day in the fall. The Sunday school adopted the same plan in effect several years ago, distributing at that time only pennies, and 1,000 were received on rally day. Some of the ways suggested to invest the nickels are: Buy five postal cards and solicit subscriptions from others; drop your nickel in the slot and telephone to a friend, who will give you a $10 subscription for the new church; put your nickel with money of your own and buy a Liberty bond for the church; show your nickel to all your friends and tell them what we are doing, or buy material and make something, sell it, and use the profits to buy more material, keeping on buying and selling until rally day.

FUTURE EVENTS

[illegible] are two large benefit events on [illegible] calendar for the near future, which [illegible] society is going in for a bit of [illegible]—for no one thinks of being [illegible] for its own sake these days [illegible] everything must be turned to the [illegible] of war relief. The first to come [illegible] be the foursome at the Onwentsia [illegible] Saturday, which will be played by four champion golfers for the benefit of the woman's section of the Navy league. The players are to be Miss [illegible] Rosenthal, Miss Alexa Sterling, "Chick" Evans, and Robert Gardner. The patronesses, headed by Mrs. William A. Moffett, wife of Capt. Moffett, commandant of the naval training station at Great Lakes, include many fashionable women of the north shore. Many of the young society girls of Lake Forest will sell score cards for the benefit of the league, and if the day is a bright one it is sure to be one of the most picturesque events of the season, with the [illegible] of brilliantly colored sports [illegible] the links and a gallery made up of most of the society people of the north shore who are not away.

[illegible] in the future, but affording all the more chance for anticipation, is the great benefit military ball to be given on Saturday evening, Aug. 11, at the Exmoor Country club, at which the officers of Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes with their wives will be guests of honor, and a number of the women of the club will act as a reception committee. The tickets for the dance and supper are $5 a person and the proceeds will go to the Red Cross and the Naval Relief society. F. Edson White, president of Exmoor, is chairman of the arrangement committee and will be assisted by W. A. Alexander, Walter E. Carr, [illegible] F. Kelly, and Robert F. Carr, ex-presidents of the club. There will be many dinner parties, both at the club and in private residences along the north shore, preceding the dance, which will be held in the club ballroom and in an open air pavilion on the grounds. Mr. White will entertain Col. and Mrs. [illegible] of Fort Sheridan and Capt. and Mrs. Moffett of Great Lakes and the other officers of both stations and their wives at a dinner at the club before the ball.

A garden bridge party is being arranged for the benefit of the Navy league, to be held on Friday afternoon in the adjoining gardens of Mrs. Edward S. Rogers, Mrs. W. M. Martin, and Mrs. J. W. Prindiville of Winnetka.

An informal lawn party will be held on Friday evening at the Evanston Country club, when members will be permitted to bring guests.

Midsummer at its height finds the South Shore Country club busier with social activities than at any season for many years. Golf, both for the women and the men, has an added impetus because of the Red Cross benefit features attached to the tournaments being held. Wednesday continues to be ladies' day, and the links are to be the scene of important matches this week. Some of the younger set have taken up the sport of photographing about the grounds, and are constantly snapping friends in cozy veranda corners, on the tennis courts, or at the beach, which is of special interest because of its vivid costumes. Dancing, however, is still the favorite South Shore pastime. The new illuminated platform is to be the scene of parties this week on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings, with dancing during the dinner hour on other days. Bridge on Monday and Friday afternoons continues to be popular and to add more mites to the Red Cross fund. This afternoon there will be an orchestra concert in the solarium.

Mrs. Lorenzo M. Johnson of Winnetka has issued invitations for a sort of a dinner dance to be given on Saturday evening, Aug. 4, on her estate, [illegible], the proceeds of which will go toward purchasing supplies for the members of Gen. Pershing's unit now in France.

The northwest young people's auxiliary of the Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan home will give an indoor picnic next Sunday afternoon in Humboldt Park [illegible]. The proceeds will go to the fund for the home.

The Woman's Fellowship club auxiliary of the Red Cross is meeting every Monday afternoon at St. Clara's hall, Woodlawn avenue and East Sixty-fourth street, where Red Cross supplies are made.

The Lloyd George chapter, evening branch of the Daughters of the British Empire will meet Tuesday evening at [illegible] o'clock at the chapter's war shop, [illegible] Stevens building. A general invitation is issued to all who are interested in the work of knitting and sewing for British soldiers to attend the meetings, which are held every Tuesday evening.

The Lady Aberdeen chapter of the Daughters of the British Empire will meet on Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock with Mrs. Joseph J. Thompson, 7220 Yates avenue. Each member is asked to bring her bazaar work and a friend with her.

The Women of the Empire State will give an entertainment and card party for the benefit of the Red Cross on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. U. S. Grant of 5536 Dorchester avenue. Mrs. Grant will be assisted by the members of the reception committee, among whom are Mrs. J. Marc Fowler, Mrs. James Cain, Mrs. L. S. Adams, Mrs. John S. Carter, Mrs. George W. [illegible], and Mrs. Fred McGuire.

The South Side Catholic Woman's club will give a card party on Tuesday afternoon, July 31, at 2 o'clock at the Chicago Beach hotel. The proceeds will go to war relief.

Mrs. Thomas Saxton, chairman of the [illegible] auxiliary of the Red Cross, [illegible] many volunteer workers who spend Monday evenings at 7511 Perry avenue working on Red Cross supplies. The leaders of the group are Mrs. Seaton, Miss Ruth Ginter, Miss Elsie Smith, and Miss Goldie Waffle.

The Red Cross auxiliary of the Catholic Woman's league has recently finished its first consignment of garments for the Red Cross. Mrs. Charles W. [illegible] has charge of the sewing, which will be done during the summer on Tuesdays in the rooms of the Fortnightly in the Fine Arts building. Members and friends are urgently requested to come and help.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Murry Nelson of Hubbard Woods are spending several weeks at their summer place in North Port, [illegible]. Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Eisendrath of Chicago have their north shore home in their absence.

Mrs. Charles Howard Besly and her daughter, Helen, who are in their Rocky mountain camp, are expected home in [illegible]. In their absence Mrs. Besly's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Capes, who were married a few weeks ago, are in the Hinsdale home and are preparing to move into their own apartment in Hinsdale.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, who was in the city for a short time, has again left her Lake Shore drive home for Washington and New York and will later go to her estate in Florida.

The younger set of Lake Forest who are having many little knitting and golfing parties are entertaining a new visitor, Miss Lucy Chase of Waterbury, Conn., who is the house guest of the Misses Helen and Janet Pauling. A number of parties are being given especially for the two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Pauling and their guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field III., who have been in the east to attend the funeral of Henry Field, which took place in Virginia, have returned and are for the immediate present at the Blackstone hotel before returning to their apartments at the Moraine hotel in Highland Park.

Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss and Mrs. Eugene Cary were in New York last week with Miss Elizabeth Goodrich, who is said to be purchasing some charming things there for her trousseau. Her marriage to Charles Goodwin Cushing Jr. will take place about the time when the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan, of which her fiancé is a member, is closed.

Mrs. Earl L. Hambleton of 65 East Cedar street has taken an apartment in the building at 1315 Astor street and will move into it in the fall. Mrs. Samuel W. Allerton, who is now in her summer home at Lake Geneva, Wis., has also taken an apartment in the same building and will move in in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Goodwillie of 745 Junior terrace will move in the fall into an apartment at 3200 Sheridan road.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Kiper of 5400 East View park left last week for an extended outing trip in the Rocky Mountain National park. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Ross of La Grange are also taking their vacation there.

Raymond Niles Winship of 1435 North Dearborn parkway has returned from a military school in Los Angeles, where he was one of the guards of the flag which was won from the other military schools of the state.

Mrs. Marshall A. Roe of 3916 Rokeby street has returned from a visit in Rensselaer, Ind.

A charming little brochure has just been issued by the Brothers of the Book, an organization which publishes choice reprints, containing a poem called "Pierrot Wounded," an adaptation from the French of Alberty done by Walter Adolphe Roberts. The booklet is printed in red and blue on white paper and is being sold for the benefit of wounded French soldiers.

Miss Betty Smith, the little daughter of Vernon S. Smith of Wilmette, was hostess last week to a group of her friends on her sixth birthday.

Miss Mildred E. Schnaitman of 6423 Ridge boulevard and her sister, Gertrude, have gone to Florida for a visit.

Mrs. Frederick W. Blocki and her son, Armand, of 822 Buena avenue, have left their summer home at Crystal lake for a two weeks' trip through Yellowstone and Estes parks.

Miss Irma Edna Alexander has returned to her home in Buena Park after a visit in California with her sister, Mrs. Carleton A. Bettcher.

A group of young girls from the Harrison Technical High school, chaperoned by Mrs. J. Leoni of 5445 West Monroe street, returned last week from an outing at Round lake, Illinois, where they spent two weeks. Those in the party were Evelyn Bedord, Dorothy Eipers, Marie Needham, Inez Elybeck, Jeanette Paulintsky, and Anna Leoni.

Mrs. D. M. Bell of the Paddington is at Vawter Park, Wawasee Lake, Ind. Mrs. Bell has for the last three months been an instructor in making surgical dressings for the Red Cross.

Miss Alice Sutherland of 7248 Yale avenue is passing a few weeks at Daysland, Alberta, the guest of Mrs. Thomas Gould. Miss Margaret Sutherland and George Sutherland Jr. are at Embro, Ont., for the summer.

Mrs. I. Sands of 2708 Archer avenue has left for New York to visit relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Comiskey of 3816 South Michigan boulevard and their niece and nephew, Marie and Alfred Bernoudy, have left for a trip through Yellowstone park.

Miss Harriet Cady of 1321 East Sixty-fourth street was a hostess last week for Miss Margaret Kavanagh of Oak Park, who is the guest of Miss Oriene Leahy of Woodlawn.

Mrs. Norman Grant Hitchcock of 1322 East Marquette road gave a luncheon and card party at her home last week. Mrs. Hitchcock was formerly Miss Kathryn Ward.

Vanderbilts Take Historic Newport House for Summer

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Verily, the old order changeth. Beechwood is rented! The famous Astor home in Newport has been taken over for the summer by Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr., and, though the announcement may cause no more than a ripple through the present generation of New York's society, there is certain to be something of a reminiscent thrill in it for the elders.

Beechwood was a great house in its day. Here, in fact, was the site of the social throne when Ward McAllister's now long forgotten "400" amounted to something and Mrs. William Astor was socially dominant. Here was the virtual hub of the new world's social activities—at least so I am assured by one who sat at the right hand of Mrs. Astor and still speaks by blue book and register. Here was the promised land for which invitations were issued to good little debutantes as a reward for having been born exclusive. Beechwood may be no more than the name of a Newport villa today—but there was a time, my dear——

We noted a prophetic something in the atmosphere of the place last summer when Vincent Astor, that democratic scion of an autocratic aire, turned the spacious ballroom into a movie theater for the benefit of a Newport charity. My word! We thought then, we old dowagers with a lingering love of the days when we were something like ladies in waiting to the somebodies of the time, that there would be little more of the old Beechwood atmosphere about the place. Because we realized, I am assured, that the new Mrs. Vincent Astor neither cherished social aspirations of a commanding character nor possessed the equipment to further them, if they had obsessed her. And we were right. For here is young Vincent, with the rank of ensign, somewhere in an aviation camp, learning to fly for his country, and Mrs. Vincent in France waiting for him to come over and preparing actively meantime to assist with the war relief work over there. The dowagers do not realize it, but some young Socialist author is likely to write a novel about that.

Transferred Legal Residence.

Just a word more about Beechwood that I think is interesting. In the early nineties Mrs. William Astor became vexed with the officials responsible for the personal estate taxation in New York and decided to have as little to do with them in future as possible. She instructed her attorneys to have her legal residence transferred from New York to Rhode Island, and thereafter she made Beechwood her real home.

She could not, of course, give up entirely the site of the real throne room, which was in the house at 842 Fifth avenue, and it was here that she gave all her larger parties. It was here, for instance, that she gave her famous dinner to Prince Louis of Battenberg, when, you may recall, with one sweep of a snickersnee dipped in ink the famous "400" was cut to a modest "79." It is also interesting to recall that in that limited gathering the parents of the present Mrs. Vincent Astor were not included, and that Alice Roosevelt was one of the four young girls invited.

Speaking of the Roosevelts, Mrs. "Teddy Jr." has decided to go to France to be nearer her husband, who has been assigned to the staff of Maj. Gen. Pershing. She has been active in all the war charity work at Newport with her mother, Mrs. Henry M. Alexander. Mrs. Alexander will stay in Newport all summer and look after the Roosevelt children, while Mrs. Theodore Jr. is helping with the Y. M. C. A. work in Paris.

Wedding Plans Announced.

There is quite an air about the preparations for the Wanamaker-Disston wedding. Really seems quite like an "old fashioned" wedding, seeing it is one of the few without military trappings or significance. The ceremony is to take place on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 11, in Emmanuel church, Newport, and Pauline Disston, the bride, has announced that Mrs. William B. Brooks Jr. will be her matron of honor. She has chosen no less than four of her other attendants from the young matrons of the colony, Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Frederick T. Frelinghuysen, Mrs. Angier B. Duke, and Mrs. Arturo De Heeren, sister of the bridegroom. In addition there will be Miss Lisa Morris of Philadelphia, Miss Elizabeth S. Sands of Newport, Miss Mary Brown Warburton of Philadelphia, and Miss Frances Moore of Washington. Mr. Wanamaker has chosen Gurnee Munn of Washington as his best man.

Following the ceremony at the church there will be a reception at the Morrell cottage in Shepherd avenue, which Mrs. William Disston has taken for the summer.

Miss Disston and Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt were in town the better part of the week, at the Ritz-Carlton.

Whether the war and the prejudices growing out of the war had anything to do with it or not, Berger's restaurant is no more. Even the casual visitor to Newport will recall Berger's, adjoining the Casino grounds. And, by way of emphasizing the possible part that prejudice played, Berger's has now become a miniature French theater and renamed La Reserve. It has been rather nicely done over, supplied with French antique furniture, and will be used, I hear, for small luncheon and dinner parties, conferences and matinees, all of them charity benefits. Mme. Gilda Darthy, the French actress, is to be in charge, and promises to present some of the plays and introduce some of the players gathered by M. Jacques Copeau for the French theater in New York next season.

Instructs Aspiring Aviators.

Announcement is made that William Earl Dodge is coming back to Newport this summer to give instruction in aviation to those who hope to mak the aerial branch of the service, and the announcement has made neither maid nor matron sad. Mr. Dodge is a popular and likable boy, and last summer he took as passengers on his flights several of the young women who had the daring to accompany him. Now all those who did not fly over the bay last season are hoping for a chance this summer, and so far as I can hear there is not a timid girl in sight.

Military weddings are still popular. Miss Margaret Fechteler, daughter of Rear Admiral Augustus F. Fechteler, U. S. N., was married on Tuesday in Newport to Lieutenant Commander Herbert Emory Kays, U. S. N. The same day the date of Miss Edith Blair's marriage to Lieutenant Commander Adolphus Staton, U. S. N., was announced for July 28, at the country home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Blair, Silver Spring, Md.

Miss Margery Maude, who is to be married to Joseph Warren Burden, has set July 23 as the date and Grace church, New York, as the place. Miss Maude's father, Cyril Maude, with whom she came to America to play in his support in "Grumpy," is now in Australia, and her mother, Winifred Emery, is in London. She will therefore be unattended by any of her own relatives. She has been spending the last month with her future mother-in-law, Mrs. Joseph W. Burden of Bernardstown, N. J., and Lenox, Mass.

The Burdens are one of the oldest New York families, and have long been prominent socially. Young Burden, since graduating from Harvard in 1906, has been connected with a New York banking firm. He is a member of the Racquet, Tennis, and Knickerbocker clubs, and rides to hounds with the Essex County Hunt of New Jersey.

Canning and Knitting.

It is to be expected that patriotic activity shall center in the vicinity of Oyster Bay, because that is where the colonel lives, and where the colonel lives nothing that is not active and efficient is permitted to exist. So say the colonel's friends. It is a fact, however, and even his enemies must admit it, that the women of the Oyster Bay region have simply placed themselves back of the National League for Women's Service and pushed for all they were worth.

Everybody in that part of Long Island is either canning fruit and vegetables or knitting sweaters and other things presumably of help to the army at the front. Mrs. W. Emlen Roosevelt, the colonel's cousin, is an active leader in the economy campaign; Mrs. Henry B. Poor is another. Mrs. Albert Strauss insists that "we must not let a vegetable on Long Island go to waste, which, in view of the fact that the whole island seems to be pretty well planted, is rather a large order.

Mrs. H. T. Ashmore, Mrs. Ansel Phelps, Mrs. W. S. Gurnee Jr., and Mrs. Robert B. Lee Sewell, better known as A. Brewster Sewell, the portrait painter, are all engaged in the work of conservation. Mrs. Gurnee's servants are all French, and this, she has found, helps a lot in gaining their coöperation. Mrs. Sewell has not taken pay for a portait since war was declared, and she has painted many of them. She asks her patrons please to make out their checks to Frederick R. Coudert, at the head of the Joffre war orphans' fund. Which certainly is a practical way of doing one's bit.

Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

LONDON SOCIETY by LADY MARY

Is Mme. Steinheil to Be Received in London Society?

Lord and Lady Abinger

LONDON, June 30.—Although London has been so far free from Hun bombs this week, it has had a special bomb dropped in its midst that has been fairly effective. Certainly very few people outside the couple's own special circle ever dreamed that Lord Abinger would marry the lady who once upon a time gained international notoriety as Mme. Steinheil, and who was acquitted in the great Steinheil murder mystery of Paris during the course of which President Faure's name was frequently mentioned.

However, the marriage between the English peer and the beautiful French woman, who has been living in London for the last ten years and more as Mme. de Serignac, took place this week and I can safely say it is the first time since the commencement of the war that whole pages of photographs and editorial comment has been devoted to the account of a bride and bridegroom.

Lord Abinger is not particularly well known in London. He has never cared much for society, and is a great sportsman. He has divided his time between yachting, fishing, and shooting for a good many years. I have only seen the bride of this most romantic alliance two or three times, but she struck me as being radiantly pretty with a spirit of vivacity that is all the more remarkable when one considers the purgatory of suffering which she must have endured during more than a year in the Parisian law courts.

I knew better, however, her daughter, who must be now close upon 30 years of age. She was about 20 or perhaps a little younger at the time of her mother's trial. She was a very unhappy looking girl, tall and slim, and rather unwholesome looking. She had very heavy deep set dark eyes and an olive skin without a trace of color. A short time after her mother came to England Mlle. Marguerite de Serignac went upon the stage and had certain ambitions toward a dramatic career which I am afraid were never quite realized.

Daughter Fails as Actress.

At one time she employed a well known press agent in London to "boom" her into public knowledge, but I am afraid very little came of it, as she very rightly refused to allow her connection with the then quite recent murder trial to be used in any way as an excuse for publicity. She dressed beautifully and had a very elegant and slim figure, but her expression and her strangaly immobile, rather tragic face made her look years older than her own mother, who possessed then, even as she does now, a vivacity that makes her appear at least twenty years younger than her actual age.

People are speculating a good deal as to whether the new Lady Abinger will become a persona grata among English women of her own rank and title, but nowadays society, or what used to be called society, has a charmingly tactful memory in England.

We are apt to value people not by what they have done or what other people say they have done, but rather as to what use they are at present in the world and whether they are working for that "common cause" that binds all sorts and conditions of men and women beneath the flags of the allies.

Getting Up "Jumble Sale."

Another item of gossip with which London is regaling itself this week is the amusing and highly interesting "jumble sale" that is being arranged by Lady Chetwynd to take place in her beautiful house in Park lane. Lady Chetwynd is an American by birth. She was Miss Rosalind Secor of New York, and she married Guy Chetwynd [who recently became heir to his father's baronetcy] about sixteen years ago.

Lady Chetwynd is a charmingly pretty woman with a big fortune, a lovely house, a young son named Victor [who will one day succeed his father] at Harrow, and a lot of time on her hands. Before the war she used to live in Paris, where she had a magnificent appartement in Champs Elysées. When the war first broke out she decided to come to London, and for want of something better to do she also decided to become an actress. She thereupon began to study hard with a great English actress, and made her debut in a remarkably short space of time as "Miss Rosa Lynd."

She was only Mrs. Guy Chetwynd then, but she had all the ambition and high spirits that goes toward the composition of most successful American women. Very few people outside her immediate circle connect the hospitable and beautiful Lady Chetwynd with the equally beautiful and talented Miss Rosa Lynd of Wyndham's theater, where she is playing a comedy part in a very successful play called "London Pride."

It is, however, in her character of a society woman that Lady Chetwynd is getting up the jumble sale that is one of the fashionable charity fixtures of the early days of July. Everybody who is anybody is going to attend the sale and buy wonderful garments and beautiful household linen and china and silver and kitchen utensils and baby linen at bargain prices.

"It is to be," Lady Chetwynd told me enthusiastically the other day, "a real old fashioned rummage sale, such as I remember used to take place in the little town in New York state where I was born and brought up. Of course, that it is to be held in Park lane makes it rather piquant, but though it has more or less luxurious surroundings and the articles to be disposed of are all rather of an extravagant order, that will not alter the fact that the prices to be paid for them will be really trifling. I have had an immense number of beautiful things given me, and I have turned out my own cupboards and box rooms and have discovered any amount of treasure trove which will also go on sale. The result will be, I am sure, a good round sum, with no deductions for expenses to the funds that are being collected by the duchess of Marlborough, Mrs. Lloyd George, and Lady Rhondda for national baby week, which, I understand, is now to be a yearly occurrence throughout the United Kingdom."

Where Peace Reigns.

Speaking of American women who have gained social distinction in England reminds me that the outside world seldom if ever hears anything concerning the Duchess of Roxburghe, who was Miss Ogden Goelet. Nothing is ever seen or heard of her, and since the war I believe she has never even been to London, but lives at Floors castle in Scotland entirely.

The Countess of Granard is another American of whom little is known these days. Like the Duchess of Roxburghe, Lady Granard seems to have dropped out, and as public memory is short, I don't believe either of them would be recognized if they drove down Bond street during its most crowded hours.

I received a letter just this week from Annecy, that is perched up among the Alps in Savoie close to what is described as "the bluest lake in Europe." The writer of the letter is a bride who was married to a wounded soldier lover early in June. The ceremony took place in Cannes and the happy couple motored from that lovely town right across the Alps to Annecy, which the bride describes as "quite the ideal dream spot."

She goes on to say that "it is too horrible to read of the battles in France and of the air raids in London. Here there is such perfect peace. Absolutely no trace of the war excepting an occasional uniform. It seems strange that just across the snow topped mountains death and destruction are going on through every hour of the day and night."

To people who live in London the idea of peace even among the French Alps seems a complete anomaly. Brides who are married in England nowadays have a good deal of difficulty about escaping even the suggestion of war.

Another bridal couple from whom I received a joint letter the other day told me that they had tried to get away from the sight of khaki and wounded soldiers, but they found them in the heart of the Cornish mountains and on the edge of every English lake to which they had journeyed. Then to crown all the bridegroom, who had obtained leave from his regiment, was suddenly recalled at twenty-four hours' notice under orders to leave for France. So the poor little bride had to finish her honeymoon alone!

MOVIE ACTRESSES AND THEIR HAIR

Did it ever occur to you that every movie actress you have seen has lovely hair, while the most popular count their curls as their chief beauty? In fact, many are leading ladies just because of their attractive locks. Inquiry among them discloses the fact that they bring out all the natural beauty of their hair by careful shampooing, not with any soap or makeshift, but with a simple mixture by putting a teaspoonful of canthrox (which they get from the druggist) in a cup of hot water and applying this instead of soap. This full cup of shampoo liquid is enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil, and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. The hair is so fluffy that it looks much heavier than it is, while its luster and softness is delightful.—Advertisement.

A STAR ABOUT TO TRANSIT

HOW TIME IS RECKONED.

THE opinion is common that time is taken from the sun. This was once true, and still holds good at sea, but the sun presents many difficulties in recording time, which are eliminated if the stars are employed. In all accurate determinations the movements of a number of selected stars are recorded.

The sun travels across the sky at a variable rate of speed, depending upon the position of the earth in its orbit, and its intense brightness prevents or materially hinders an accurate observation, and also any failure is a finality for the day. On the other hand, the stars are mere points, which can be snapped as they pass and have more stable paths, as well as being against a dark background. Time from the stars can be taken during any hour of darkness.

The instruments required are a finely adjusted clock, a telescope which sweeps the meridian, and a chronograph. The chronograph is governed by the clock and automatically records the beating of the seconds pendulum. In the field of the telescope are five fine spider webs. As the star crosses each of these wires, the astronomer presses a key which records the time of the passage as extra jogs in the seconds train of markings made by the chronograph.

Observations extending over a number of years determine the exact time of transit to a one-thousandth of a second for all the brighter stars, far in advance. This list is published in the nautical almanac, issued by the government annually. Knowing the true time of transit, and by observing the mean of the five wires for all the stars in the list which have transited, as it is recorded on the chronograph, the error of the clock from the true time is ascertained.

If we were able to travel around the world at the same speed that the earth rotates, the same stars would remain constantly overhead, and it would always be the same hour. However, on returning we would find that the local time had advanced exactly one day. When Magellan's sailors returned after having circumnavigated the globe, they found that they had for some reason lost a day. It was unaccountable to them, because they did not realize that in arching the earth toward the west the traveler is actually gaining on the stars.

A dateline has been established upon the earth where the sun and stars advance their time one day on completing each revolution. It follows, approximately the 180th meridian, and it has been internationally agreed that it shall touch no land.

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

JULY

Experience.

THE elder blossoms and summer is at its full, with its first fruits ripe for man. The warm tide of days rolls in, and if the hour glass be not serene then the cinders of discontent are hopelessly in its sands.

The dial ought, in a rose garden where moss and ferns suggest the past, register, now, the present by a shadow which is beautiful where it rests and not pathetic in its distance from happy hours it has passed.

Recollection plus sensation is the whole of sentient life, and in a rose garden in late July recollection ought to be fragrant and sensation rich in effect. There ought to be, in a July rose garden, serenity in memory, placidity in the present, and hope in the prospect. In these elements is the complete life of folk who cheat fate.

The woods keep something of each thing which has been given them. Experience is the color of life; age the beauty of a forest. The running sands decorate existence, and the year is enriched as it grows older.

Youth is vigorous and white; age must be placid and full of colors. Each experience touches life with its brush dipped in the colors which fate holds out. The brush moves on. The tint remains. The wild rose keeps its berry to show that it once had unfolded a red bud.

Think You Know How to Shift Gears? Give This the Once Over and Find Out

By H. Clifford Brokaw

Principal, West Side Y. M. C. A. Automobile School, New York.

PROBABLY the chief bugaboo of the new owner is gear shifting. This is evident from the fact that the average motor driving novice will leave the gear in high when the car is slowed down practically to a standstill and make the engine labor in order to pick up speed again rather than run the risk of making a noisy shift. He has learned from his brief experience that, in addition to the noise he creates, he does not mesh the gears anyway and has to start off from a standstill. Consequently he does not shift gears, but makes the engine start on high speed gear.

This, no doubt, in a large measure was the cause of the growth of the popularity of six, eight, and twelve cylinder engines, since with motors of that type the gear shift is not so necessary. There is a greater range of speed, a greater flexibility, and power may be delivered at lower speed. Now the manufacturers of four cylinder engines have designed their motors for higher speed with greater gear reduction, which makes it easier for the engine to pick up the load from the lowest speed, consequently making the car more popular with the prospective owner.

Inventors are at work continually trying to devise simple methods of bringing about an adjustment of load to speed without actually sliding the gears into mesh, and one popular type of car is arranged so that no sliding of gears is necessary and one or two leave out the gears entirely.

However, the three speed sliding gear transmission still retains its popularity, consequently the owner should learn how to manipulate the gear lever with a minimum of noise, which is largely a matter of practice.

If a man should get into a strange car he could hardly be expected to shift the gears noiselessly in all conditions, but a man who owns a car and drives it should learn quickly the peculiarities of that particular car and be able to make the required gear shifts with ease and confidence.

Shifting gears at the proper time saves considerable rack to the entire mechanism of the car. It usually is not difficult in the average car to shift to a higher gear, although some car owners manage to stir up considerable noise in doing this. One of the sources of trouble in this respect is a dragging clutch. But most cars now are equipped with a clutch brake, and by depressing the pedal far enough this brake is brought into play and overcomes the tendency to drag.

A noiseless shift cannot be made from first to reverse unless the car is at a standstill.

Usually the best results can be obtained in shifting from first to second gear by speeding the car up a little on first, shifting out of first and hesitating an instant in neutral and then shifting into second. Unless the clutch brake action is harsh the clutch pedal should be depressed all the way in making this shift. The procedure is the same in shifting from second to third. Care should be exercised, however, not to speed the car up too much before shifting, and the throttle should be in closed position and the accelerator pedal released during the time of shift.

Changing from high to a lower gear is where most of the trouble is experienced, and this usually is due to the fact that the car is being driven at perhaps twenty-five to thirty miles an hour and the driver for some reason or other thinks he is going to have use for the second speed. Immediately he proceeds to shift; the result is audible for half a mile. Usually no difficulty would be experienced in shifting to a lower gear if the car speed is diminished sufficiently. As a general rule, when shifting to a lower gear the speed of the car should be a little less than when shifting to a higher, between the same relative gears.

In ordinary driving the gear need not be shifted to first speed except when the car is brought to a standstill and on a level road the second speed gear need not be employed until a speed as low as five to ten miles an hour is reached. The gear should be shifted when the car speed has been decreased to this extent, and the driver should guard against shifting before slowing down simply because his judgment tells him he is going to have to use a lower gear if he desires to make a silent shift. There is a tendency to anticipate the necessity and then to do it immediately and before it is required; the consequence is noise.

When climbing steep hills it is desirable to make the shift at a little higher car speed than on the level, otherwise the car may lose so much momentum during the operation that the engine will be unable to pick up the load and will stall. This is a rather difficult situation, which needs special handling.

In a great many cases a silent shift may be made on a hill by leaving the throttle slightly open, so that the engine speed will increase when the clutch is released and make a quick shift with the clutch but partly released.

After the driver becomes a little experienced he may shift from third to second without sound at practically any car speed that the engine is able to deliver on second gear. This may be found of value even when climbing steep hills and in anticipating necessary shifts. To make this shift at high speed release the clutch, shift gear lever to neutral notch, engage clutch and accelerate engine speed to a point which experience tells you is the correct engine speed for second gear at that car speed, disengage clutch and shift into second. This is a matter for experiment and experience.

In starting the car grinding of gears occurs because the owner does not have patience to wait the five seconds that may be necessary for the clutch to stop spinning before meshing the gears.

Another source of annoyance which often leads up to a noisy gear change comes from the fact that occasionally it is not possible to bring the first speed gears into mesh when about to start the car. This is due to the fact that the gear teeth line up so that the gears cannot be slid into mesh. This may be overcome by leaving the lever in neutral, engaging the clutch so that one gear will spin, and then disengaging the clutch again before shifting the lever. It may need one or more repetitions of this before accomplishing the desired result, but a little patience will save strain on the gear and give a minimum of noise in shifting. A noiseless shift cannot be made from first to reverse or reverse to first unless the car is at a standstill.

The owner who is eager to drive noiselessly and well ought to try a quiet road and practice for an hour or two on several days until he has the hang of it. He will be well repaid for the time spent.

ART by Louise James Bargelt

Masterpieces Shown in the Kimball Loan

THE loan collection of Mrs. W. W. Kimball which was hung in the Art institute the end of last week is made up of fifteen paintings, all done by masters and all canvases which, grouped together in a single gallery, give to that gallery an atmosphere at once dominating and majestic. There are a number of fine loan exhibits at the institute now and comparisons in things artistic as well as things human are too often futile and pointless. Still, of all the collections now to be seen there, or of all the exhibits I have ever seen there, I could spend the greatest number of enjoyable hours in this single room with its fifteen pictures.

Miss Audrey Maple

MOFFETT PHOTO

She is a familiar and engaging figure in the musical plays: just now, she is in "O! So Happy!" and is better in it in all ways than in anything else that has engaged her in Chicago.

On one wall alone is the painting by Turner of "The Dutch Fishing Boats." To my mind no artist ever understood this ball of earth as Turner did. He knew nature as Shakespeare knew people. With unerring instinct he sensed the way things behave under the stress of wind, and of rain, and under the dazzling beauty of the sun. It was the splendor, and the magic, and the divine in nature that he grasped, its essential mysteries and sublimities, rather than her deep and straightforward truths.

This painting of the Dutch fishing boats is a stormy, imaginative, powerful piece of work. It is as if his conception were too vast for expression—as if he had attempted to paint the unpaintable—and lo, this marvelous canvas of clouds, and sky, and raging waters, and ships was the tangible result of his dreams.

On another wall you see a portrait of Mrs. Wolf, by Sir Thomas Lawrence. If Lawrence is to be judged by the best that he has done he must be ranked high among the artists of the world. If the judgment depends on the average of his work he must be placed below Romney, or Gainsborough, or Reynolds. For his passion to be considered the ruling portrait painter of the day has a rather dislocating effect on the fire of his genius. "Mrs. Wolf," however, is an example of his best work. It is a sincere and at the same time beautiful rendering of a pretty woman.

I am not acquainted with the history of this particular lady of the picture, but with many of his sitters he formed sentimental attachments, flirting his way through life, imagining himself desperately in love first with one fair face and then another, and instilling into his portrait faces that tender sentiment he entertained for them in his own heart.

"Lady Sarah Bunbury," by Sir Joshua Reynolds, is a graceful, effective picture as a whole, quite apart from its charm as a piece of portraiture. Spontaneous and original is the posing of the two figures, and there is a soft and appealing harmony in all the colors.

Reynolds was not long in achieving the pinnacle of popularity with the fashionable world of England, and, although this preëminence was contested at times by Gainsborough and Romney and Opie, it was never seriously shaken. In the prime of his life he received about six sitters a day, spent about four hours altogether on each portrait, and managed to turn out some 3,000 in the course of his lifetime. It was unfortunate that, owing to his predilection for experimenting with new oils and varnishes, he shortened the life of many of them.

Reynolds has the distinction of being the first president of the Royal academy, which was founded in 1768.

One of Ruisdael's deep, peaceful, slightly melancholy even, landscapes is there. Its atmosphere is cool, its light and shade harmoniously distributed. There is harmony more than contrast in this picture as in the majority of his paintings. Ruisdael has been accused of want of variety in his pictures, but the greatest of artists have rarely been various. Rembrandt surely was never varied, nor Constable, nor Corot. That monotony of which people complain in Ruisdael and in other geniuses is nothing more nor less than the domination of that genius' personality.

Perhaps the haunting picture of his own pathetic old age was before him when he painted that note of longing and of half woe which is in so many of his pictures. Little is known of his life, save that he was born in Haarlem of a family of painters and that he traveled far and wide, through northern Germany and the Scandinavian peninsula, which he so loved to paint. He died in an almshouse in Haarlem, leaving over 400 paintings.

Not far from Ruisdael's landscape is a portrait of Rembrandt's father by Rembrandt, next to whom Ruisdael is considered as the finest painter of the Dutch school. It is a thoughtful, strong portrait, almost philosophical in its expression of contemplation and of wisdom, and possessing a quality of personality which is peculiar to Rembrandt and common to all of his works.

The works of the other artists in this exhibit will be described next week. The exhibit is to remain on display for some weeks. Besides this loan collection there are the loan collections of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, Edward B. Butler, Charles L. Hutchinson, and Martin A. Ryerson.

The work of the art students is still hung in the galleries of the annex and the war posters are still in the print room. The warship models in Gunsaulus hall are creating a good deal of interest from the visiting public and also from the school children. The grade school students especially have been much in evidence, vying with each other in their efforts to display their knowledge of our country's past history in affairs naval.

As you enter the hall of the east wing where these models are, don't fail to observe the model of Commodore Hull's frigate, Old Constitution, which was victor over the Guerriere, and other crack ships in the war of 1812.

This exhibit is only part of the display shown at the Panama-Pacific exposition in the educational exhibition, but, it is said, it may be added to in the near future.

JORDAN

Six Smart Distinctive Colors —Optional This Month

Here's a striking innovation—never before attempted in the medium price motor car field.

You can express your individual taste in the color of your car—if it's a Jordan. These six smart distinctive colors are optional during July.

Liberty Blue—conservative, but not somber like most "conservative" colors. Optional on Touring Car, Sport Model or Sport Roadster.

Pershing Grey—a bright military finish—highly suggestive of the times. Optional on Touring Car or Sport Model.

Italian Tan—a smart, sunny outdoor color. Very distinctive. Furnished on Sport Model only.

Jordan Maroon—a rare color—difficult to obtain. Optional on Sport Model or Touring Car.

Mercedes Red—for the young athletic fellow who wants "speed." Optional on the new Jordan Sport Roadster.

Venetian Green—specially pleasing with the smart summer styles. Optional on all Jordan cars.

Jordan individual color schemes have set a new standard in motor car finish for the entire nation. They are striking, distinctive and irresistible. Orders will be filled in rotation. First come, first served.

AUTOMOBILES ◻ Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER ◻ MOTORCYCLES

Exploring Made Easy; Try It on Your Home Town

WHEN Uncle Jim and Aunt Mary come to town for a visit and propose an automobile ride it is sometimes disconcerting to be told that they've seen enough of country roads and want to visit the worth while spots in Chicago.

Ten to one you haven't the faintest idea of what worth while spots are, or how to reach them. No one really knows as little of Chicago as the dyed in the wool Chicagoan. He needs help, and for his benefit a map and a hint or two are submitted herewith, to be cut out, laid away, and used when the occasion arises.

The unique little trip is one of the suggestions contained in the new Chicago volume of the Blue Book series, from which the map is reproduced by permission. The book provides a wealth of historical detail concerning the points of interest along the way; only an outline of this can be given here.

Starting, as all tours start, at Michigan and Jackson boulevards, one drives north in Michigan, passing the Art institute and the public library. At Lake street the route turns to the left three blocks to Dearborn, passing now over one of the city's first paved streets, once the pride of the town and the main thoroughfare for the stage coach from the east, as it whirled up to the hostelries along Lake street.

The corner of Lake and Dearborn was the site, in 1844, of the "general stage office"; later the famous Tremont house stood there.

Crossing the river in Dearborn street, one passes the scene of the Eastland disaster, and beyond, turning into Austin avenue, the Criminal court building and the county jail. At the foot of Pine street, the beginning of Lincoln parkway, stood the Kinzie cabin, which afterward became Chicago's first postoffice.

In Dearborn street the Newberry library is of interest, for it occupies the site of the old Ogden homestead. At Chicago avenue there is the curious old water works tower. Following the route through Lincoln park and past "suicide bridge," the city tourist swings out and back past De Paul university, in charge of the Vincentian fathers, and down to "death corner," Milton and Oak streets, where more murders have been committed than at any other point, perhaps, in the country.

Crossing the river in Grand avenue one passes, to the left, the vicinity chosen as the French fort headquarters of La Salle and Tonty in 1682. Farther on is Haymarket square, made famous by the Haymarket riot of 1886.

Ashland boulevard has a past. It used to be one of the most aristocratic thoroughfares in Chicago. And at Ashland and Madison, in 1848, stood a famous hostelry known as Bull's Head tavern.

Turning into Harrison street one passes the county hospital and the cluster of medical schools and hospitals surrounding it. Follows a whirl through Garfield and Douglas parks, past the bridewell, and around to the vicinity, indicated on the map, where Louis Joliet and Father Marquette, the first white explorers of the wilderness west of Lake Michigan, visited the site of Chicago in 1673.

A visit to the burial place of Stephen A. Douglas is the occasion of the loop over Thirty-third and Thirty-fifth streets and Cottage Grove avenue. Turning back the tourist winds through Chinatown, crosses the river again in Halsted street, traverses the Ghetto and the picturesque Maxwell street market, passes Hull house, immortalized by Miss Jane Addams, and swings back down Jackson boulevard to the starting point.

Try it some day. You will have covered 21.8 miles in the heart of Chicago, given Uncle Jim and Aunt Mary a good time, and learned more about your home town than any Chicagoan really has a right to know.

Exhaust Echoes

Plans for the first national exhibit of Ford accessories, to be held at the Coliseum Sept. 22 to 29, took definite shape last week. Headquarters have been opened at the New Southern hotel, in the rooms occupied formerly by the Chicago Motor club, and about 100 of the expected 200 exhibitors have already contracted for display spaces. A novel item of the affair will be the use of the Coliseum annex for the exhibits of various American automobile schools, which will give daily demonstrations of the art of teaching folks to build, drive, and repair motor cars.

The new west side plant of the Diamond T Motor Car company, said to be the largest factory in the United States devoted exclusively to the manufacture of trucks, is now virtually complete and ready for operations. It was formally opened several days ago, but the machinery had not been installed at that time.

The National Rubber company announces a new tire, to be known as the Autocrat and to carry a 7,500 mile guarantee. It is distinguished by a white tread, red sidewalls, and a black bead.

During the month of June the retail sales of Willys-Overland, Inc., amounted to approximately $11,150,000, the highest mark for any month in the concern's history.

Will you please be so kind as to publish the best route between Chicago and Conneaut, O., via Toledo and Sandusky, giving the principal points passed through as well as the mileage?

D. VON B., Wilmette, Ill.

Go through South Chicago, Dyer, Valparaiso, and Laporte to South Bend, 101 miles; Goshen, Kendallville, and Bryan to Toledo, 164 miles; Fremont, Clyde, Sandusky, and Lorain to Cleveland, 120 miles; Willoughby, Madison, Ashtabula, and Amboy to Conneaut, 70 miles.

Please publish a good route that will take me from Chicago to a health resort which, I believe, is located near Attica, Ind. Are the roads good and would it be advisable for an invalid to undertake the trip?

SUBSCRIBER, Chicago.

Drive through South Chicago, Hammond, Hessville, Highlands, Schererville, Crown Point, Orchard Grove, Shelby, Thayer, Enos, Morocco, Ade, Brook, Forsman, Goodland, Fowler, and Rainsville to Kramer, where the resort is located. The distance is 136 miles. The roads are fine and I can see no reason why, providing you take your time, the trip should not be a pleasant one.

Last summer I made a trip to Plainfield, Ill., and was directed by way of Naperville and Aurora, which I found was considerably out of the way. Now I wish to again visit Plainfield, but would like to travel a better route if possible. Your advice has helped me before. May I call upon you in the present case? T. R. A., Chicago.

By traveling through Aurora you would go ten or fifteen miles farther than necessary and would not strike quite as good roads. Go to Naperville and then follow the Starved Rock trail to the fork about one-half mile west of the village. Then turn to the left and go to the fork about two miles beyond the Du Page river. Here take the right hand fork and follow it directly into Plainfield.

Is there no way of reaching St. Louis without traveling over roads that are mostly dirt? What route would you suggest? TRAVELER, Morgan Park, Ill.

I am sorry to say that dirt roads are the only ones leading to St. Louis. There is no hard roadway. However, many sections are pretty good, and you should have no trouble providing your trip is not made during wet weather. The most direct and, therefore, the most advisable route runs through Joliet, Minooka, Morris, Dwight, Odell, Pontiac, Chenoa, Lexington, and Bloomington, 159 miles; Lincoln and Riverton to Springfield, 76.4 miles; Chatham, Auburn, Girard, Carlinville, Chesterfield, Piasa, Alton, Nameoki, and Granite City to St. Louis, 126 miles.

Because of the large volume of requests for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Questions of general interest, such as those pertaining to driving and the care of the car, will be answered as far as possible in this column.

Free Band Concert by Republic Motor Truck Band

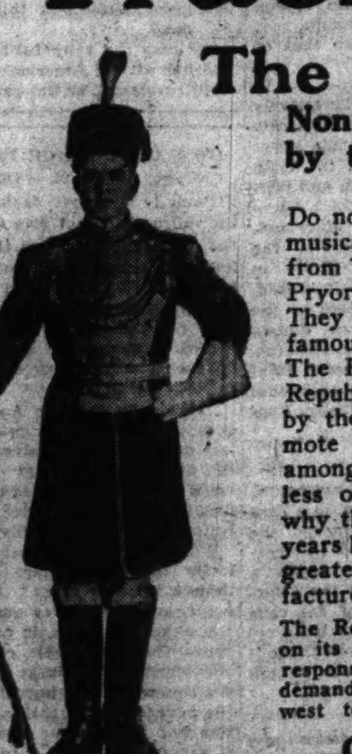
The World's Greatest Non-Professional Band, Organized by the Republic Truck Company



Do not fail of this opportunity to hear this wonderful musical organization, which includes players and soloists from some of the foremost bands in America—such as Pryor's, Sousa's, Creatore's, etc.

They are led by F. J. Major, formerly conductor of the famous Columbia Military Academy Band.

The Republic Band is composed of employees of the Republic Truck Company of Alma, Michigan—organized by the company to promote good fellowship among its workers, doubtless one of the reasons why the Republic in four years has grown to be the greatest exclusive manufacturer of trucks.

The Republic Band is now on its way to the coast, in response to a tremendous demand from all over the west to hear it play—and

"Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

WHAT GERMANY HAS LOST.

One of the most significant, and we may even say, hopeful, points in the recent official pronouncements in Germany is the reference in both the chancellor's speech and the reichstag's peace vote to "economic peace." It is fortunate for Germany and for us all that her leaders are beginning to consider the conditions which Germany may have to face after this war of arms is ended. It would be well if those who control German conduct should cast up the account in more than military terms. What has German policy gained and what has it lost her? The chancellor speaks of "a lasting reconciliation among nations." We all see this, each upon our own terms. But German statecraft has a difficult problem before it to reassure the world and recover what armies cannot conquer.

If victorious outright, Germany will recover her colonies and possibly her ships, retain the land she now holds, exact indemnities, and lord it over all Christendom. If half way victorious she will rule central Europe. Only defeat can put her back where she was, and defeat is nowhere in sight.

We cannot enjoy this picture, especially when we reflect that Germany's winnings thus far have come relatively cheap, cheap enough to encourage her rulers in the policy of profitable war making. What were the German colonies? She would have traded the whole lot for Belgium any day. And if she has lost ships, the allies have lost ten times as many. If she has lost men, so have they. Meanwhile, she has taken vast populations under her sway. She has millions more men than when she began. The war has paid for itself already. It has paid magnificently.

What shall we say, then? Happy fatherland? Yes, for the present, if profit and loss are to be reckoned in lands, ships, and human beings alone. They are not. Germans know it. Despite victories on land and wholesale havoc at sea, with the price so modest, they must feel a dismal uneasiness if they foresee the consequences that must accrue to even a triumphant Germany. She has lost her good name. She has lost friends. She has lost customers. She has lost pupils. These are sorrowful losses. It will take years to repair them. Perhaps no German now living will ever see them repaired.

Before the war Germany had business friends the world over. "Made in Germany," was a brevet of excellence. But who will be eager to purchase German goods after this? Will Englishmen? Will Frenchmen or Belgians? Will Russians, Italians, or Serbians? Some may yield, it is true, but against their inclination and against their patriotic conscience. Rebuilding commercial prosperity will be a slow, painful, disheartening, uphill job. We pity the Germans who must undertake it.

Before the war Germany was a happy haven for tourists. Berlin rivaled Paris. German railroads, German hotels, and German pleasure resorts were minting money. But who will look forward with delight to a sojourn in the fatherland? The fun is spoiled. The Rhine, the Black Forest, and the romantically picturesque German cities will be as fascinating as ever, yet visiting them will involve going among enemies. We shall not be welcome. The tourist business, once a leading German industry, has adjourned sine die.

Before the war German universities attracted students from all over the world. But who will now feel anything like the old sentimental desire for a year at Bonn, or Göttingen, or Heidelberg? The spell is broken. As before, we shall value the results of German scholarship. Little by little the colonies of foreign students will reassemble, "with a stein on the table and a good song ringing clear." But it will take time, probably a long, long time. Germany has lost pupils. And meanwhile, to her disadvantage, she has gained pupils. The war has acted as a sort of correspondence school in German efficiency. No matter how reluctantly, all the allied countries have been taking courses from afar and learning German thoroughness, German system, German organization. Here again Germany suffers a commercial and industrial setback. Her competitors have adopted German methods and will employ them henceforth. In technique and management she has lost her supremacy.

Before the war Germans had unrestricted liberties abroad. Never again—or, at all events, not for years to come, and never in quite the old way. Think how readily Germans found employment wherever they chose to go. Think how readily they set up as bankers, or merchants, or manufacturers. All this is changed. The moment a German appears, the suspicion will be, "Aha, another German spy!" After the experience every allied country has had, the suspicion will die hard.

Before the war German diplomats were trusted. The world expected them to consider Germany's interests first; it expected them to play a shrewd game; but who on earth imagined they would hatch plots against the nations whose guests they were? Who imagined they would foment strikes, foster disunion, use America as a base for warlike operations against friendly powers, and attempt to divide American territory between Mexico and Japan? One lesson is enough, and we have had several. Our allies know it. So does the world at large. German diplomatic prestige will recover slowly, if at all.

That the world's post-bellum attitude toward Germany will be in many instances unfair we do not deny. It will, nevertheless, be natural, and its naturalness brings out, perhaps, the most serious of Germany's losses. She has lost her chance at a square deal and will be punished beyond her deserts. But observe. It will not do to say that Germans are bringing all this upon themselves, though the German people are accomplices in their own misfortune. It is being brought upon them in the main by the imperial German government and the class which has created it and its philosophy. When a government so conducts a war as to stir the enemy to rage mixed with loathing and distrust, the penalty falls not only upon that government but in dire and cruel measure upon its subjects. It is a pity, and yet it is as true as it is regrettable.

AMERICA MARCHES.

A republic cannot go to war like a military autocracy. That is the reason that republics have to band together to put down the system of military autocracy, "to make the world safe for democracy." Mr. Hyde's picture of Washington in wartime shows us, therefore, a surface of fume and fret. But wisely it reveals the deep current of purpose which despots ignore to their peril.

America was unready. She always has been unready for war. But America is getting ready and when she strikes, if she is compelled at last to strike with the full force of her organized might, there will be world shaking power in her blow.

We wish this fact could pierce the spirit of hostile contempt that covers thought of America in central Europe. America has no wish to conquer or destroy. She has in our day an almost pathetic desire to be friends with all the world. This desire has been interpreted as ignoble sloth, cowardice, pusillanimity, gross materialistic egotism, feeble hypocrisy. But the day of disillusionment for those who have hated us and held us in contempt is at hand. That unnamed diplomat whom Mr. Hyde quotes was right when he said that though Americans do not believe it of themselves they are at heart a warlike people. He was right if he meant that there is power and self-respect and deep springs of resolution in our national character and that when war is on they make the American people among the formidable forces of the earth. He was right when he said that we are asleep so far as the inspiration which comes to the strong in the exercise of their strength is concerned. He was wise, from the standpoint of a possible opponent, when he hoped this battle spirit would remain asleep.

America was unready only superficially. In the deepest sense she is always ready. She blunders and postpones. But when she begins, she finishes.

There are many Americans who before the war did not realize the practical value of preparation for war. That was our weakness and folly. If we had prepared our strength we probably would not have been called upon to use it. But now these same people are astonished and cast down because there is haste and waste and confusion. It was inevitable and it will end in due time.

Meanwhile those who have given more thought to the elements of war preparation know that we are preparing more efficiently, more swiftly, with more inspiring confidence and power than ever before in our history. There are going to be scandals and mistakes, small and great. There are scoundrels who will cheat and betray. There are incompetents who will blunder. This has been the fate of every country. But it cannot defeat the great purpose which, moving like the resistless tide, is carrying the nation forward toward its goal.

Believe in America, as we love her. She will not falter. She will not fail. The great republic is moving to war, as the wise diplomat prophesied, "not enthusiastically" but "slowly and seriously, girding herself up for a bitter struggle, because she feels it to be her duty"—and that, as he said, is the temper in a people which should most be feared.

The flag is at the peak. America marches. Our cause is good. Victory is ahead.

IDEALIZING FREE RUSSIA.

It is the fashion just now to speak of free Russia as if free Russia had reached the goal of civilization. The romantic glamour of the revolution seems to have created the impression that the overthrow of the autocracy produced overnight a higher social development than the world has yet seen. Because the revolution was a miraculous event the theory is tacitly developed that it endowed the Russians with miraculous powers.

The radicals in particular would have us believe that free Russia can do no wrong. Russia is their great example, the confirmation of all their theories. If Russia did it, by that token it must be right for Russia and all the rest of the world. "It happened in Petrograd" becomes for them the equivalent of "ipse dixit."

But the radicals go further than to use new Russia as a theoretical bulwark. They want to apply every idea that emanates from Petrograd to the United States and to the world at large. A certain element in Russia, for instance, has declared for peace on the basis of restoring pre-war boundary lines—"the status quo ante." Our radicals, therefore, have adopted this formula as the final word on peace terms. If free Russia is for it, they ask, how can you oppose it?

Moreover, they are casting forth sinister suggestions that if the United States does not forthwith adopt the methods and formulas of the Russian revolutionists something similar to the revolution may happen in this country. They are giving us warning, it appears, and if we do not heed it they wash their hands of further responsibility.

The truth is that any revolution is a desperate remedy applied to desperate conditions. The overthrow of the Russian autocracy was inspired by a noble ideal, but free Russia is just starting out on a long, hard road. There is no magic to transform any nation, submerged as Russia was, into a country of enlightened democracy.

We hope that Russia will be able to avoid the pitfalls that so nearly caused disaster for French democracy. We believe Russia's great creative genius—the genius of such men as Pushkin, Gogol, Dostoyefsky, and Tolstoy—gives us every reason to be sanguine of the outcome. But at the same time we cannot overlook the fact that Russia—free Russia—has not yet found herself; she has not yet arrived at the goal of civilization. She has just started.

WILL SAMMY COME HOME?

To the French it looks doubtful. Tommies are marrying French girls and will stay. Spanish vineyard hands in southern France are not pining for Spain. Gurkhas, Arabs, Indo-Chinese, and black men all say, "If they ship us home, we'll return."

France is flattered, but scared. "Look at France now!" cries a Frenchman. "The north is German, the west English, the south Spanish, and central France a midway." Another retorts, "In ten years these aliens will all be French"—which consoles Frenchmen but increases the anxieties besetting parents of Sammies, for, in reality, it takes no ten years to make aliens French. Ten months may.

Not all the myriad fascinations of French life combined will account for it fully, yet the fact remains, and whoever lives in France risks living there till he dies. So be firm with Sammy. Say, "Promise to come home. Swear it. Put it in writing. Samuel, sign here!"

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1917: By the Brentwood company.]

SENATOR WARREN'S bill, which has just been passed by the senate at Washington, should be amended in such a fashion as to bring foreign comrades of the United States army now at the front in France within the scope of the rewards bestowed by the president for feats of conspicuous gallantry and heroism, "over and beyond the call of duty, in the presence of the enemy."

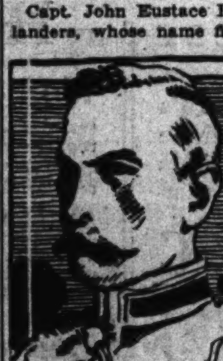
In the regular order of events American officers and soldiers who have particularly distinguished themselves while fighting shoulder to shoulder with English and French comrades in France are likely to receive the French Legion d'Honneur, Croix de Guerre, or Medaille Militaire or else the English Military cross, the Distinguished Service cross or medal, or even the Victoria cross. It is necessary that the president of the United States should be placed in the position to return the compliment by similarly honoring French and English soldiers. As the matter stands now, the American congressional medal of honor and the certificate of merit badge are restricted to men and officers of the United States army and navy.

Senator Warren's bill provides that the congressional medal of honor, which, like England's Victoria cross, is granted for acts of heroism above and beyond the call of duty, shall be henceforth bestowed by the president, in the name of congress, but without the necessary sanction of that body. Instead of its award being restricted to congress. The Warren bill also provides for a new distinguished service medal to be awarded by the president, on the recommendation of the proper commanding officer, but not in the name of congress. It may be accorded to an officer or enlisted man "who shall hereafter distinguish himself or who shall within three years prior to the approval of this act have distinguished himself by exceptionally meritorious service to the government in a duty of great responsibility or by extraordinary heroism in the line of his profession." This is as it should be.

The prerogative of awarding these tokens of distinction to American naval and military heroes should be restricted, as in most other countries, including republican France, to the chief of the state—that is to say, either to the monarch or to the chief magistrate of the nation—without regard to the legislature. In cases of wrongful bestowal congress has its remedy by way of impeachment, either of the president or of the cabinet officer responsible for the recommendation, and for the counter-signature of the decree.

It might be well, however, to form a chapter at Washington from among the owners of the congressional medal of honor, similar to the council of the Legion of Honor in France. The latter, headed by a chancellor, who is always a veteran general of the highest rank and most glorious service, acts in an advisory and disciplinary capacity with regard to the president of the republic. It maintains a supervision over all recipients of French orders and medals, recommends to the president forfeiture of these distinctions in cases of crime or even of noncriminal dishonor, and investigates the antecedents of candidates for distinctions. A body of this kind, recruited in the manner I have indicated, would be of great service to the president.

I would also suggest that all medals, orders, or ribbons worn by American army and navy men in uniform, no matter whether American or foreign, should have the sanction of the president. No foreign order or medal should be worn without his permission. The American orders under the new rule and within his gift consist of the congressional medal of honor, the certificate of merit badge, and the new distinguished service medal. There are eight other medals "recognised" by the government and which are badges of participation in the Philippine, Cuban, Indian, Chinese, and other campaigns. The bestowal and control of these should be rigorously restricted to the president of the United States as long as they are worn with the uniform of the United States.



Capt. John Eustace Fiennes of the Gordon Highlanders, whose name figures upon the official English war department list as having fallen at the front in France, was the eldest son of Sir Eustace Fiennes, member of parliament for the Banbury division of Oxfordshire, and was the heir to his baronetcy. The young soldier was also heir to great wealth, for his mother, Lady Fiennes, is the daughter and heiress of one of the South African diamond kings and multi-millionaires of the name of Rathfelder of Wynberg, Cape of Good Hope.

As for Sir Eustace himself, he is an old soldier, a younger brother of the present and eighteenth Lord of Saye and Sele. He served in northwest Canada during the Riel rebellion, was in Egypt with Kitchener, took part in the conquest of Mashonaland, went through the Boer war seventeen years ago, and took part in the ill fated Gallipoli campaign. He has a very beautiful place in Dorsetshire, known as Studland Bay.

It is difficult to find a more historic family in Great Britain than the Fiennes, whose name should be pronounced as Fynes. In records still existing of the reign of William the Conqueror it is set forth that he conferred on one of his cousins and principal lieutenants, John de Fiennes, the office of count of the sea coast and of lord warden of the Cinque Ports for himself and for his heirs forever. It is on this account that when King George, as Prince of Wales, vacated the lord wardenship of the Cinque Ports in 1908 Lord Saye and Sele, as head of the house of Fiennes, put forward a claim thereto and publicly protested against the subsequent bestowal of the office on Lord Brassey.

The Lords of Fiennes were among the barons whose names figure on the Magna Charta and were even in those days regarded as of the most illustrious ancestry, since they were descended from that Eustace, Count of Bouillon, who married Goda, sister of King Edward the Confessor, this Countess of Bouillon being likewise among the forbears of Godfrey de Bouillon, the first crusader king of Jerusalem.

The original barony of Saye and Sele came into the Fiennes family through the marriage of Lady Joan of that ilk to William, Lord Fiennes, hereditary warden of the Cinque Ports and tenth in descent from the kinsman and companion of William the Conqueror. The grandson of Lady Joan was summoned to parliament in 1446, as a baron of the realm, under the title of Lord Saye and Sele. He obtained afresh from the crown a grant of the office of lord warden of the Cinque Ports and of constable of Dover castle for himself and for his heirs forever. He was also lord high treasurer of England. But happening to be a prisoner in the tower of London when Jack Cade's mob stormed that stronghold he was dragged from thence by the rioters to Cheapside and there beheaded. His son, William de Fiennes, second Lord Saye and Sele of the 1446 creation, was one of the chief allies of the great Lord Warwick, the king maker, and was killed at the battle of Barnet. His heirs were not summoned to parliament and it was not until several generations later that Richard de Fiennes, seventh de jure Lord Saye and Sele, obtained recognition as such under letters patent signed by James I. in August, 1603.

SOME FACTS FROM THE CENSUS REPORT ON VITAL STATISTICS FOR 1915.

THE report on vital statistics for 1915 has just been issued. Since this report is nearly six months nearer on time than its predecessor, it is to be hoped that the report for 1916 will not be more than a year late.

This report relates to health conditions throughout the country as reflected in the death statistics. Unfortunately, there is no other method by which health conditions can be judged. More than two-thirds of the people now live in the registration area. The area now embraces twenty-five states, the District of Columbia, and forty-one cities in the nonregistration states.

The geographical distribution of these states is rather peculiar. The entire Atlantic seaboard from South Carolina to Canada is within the area. Leaving the seaboard there are two east and west belts. Along the Canadian line every state is included from ocean to ocean except North Dakota. South of this there lies a belt that is without the area.

Then comes a second belt of area states extending from across the continent except for breaks in West Virginia and Nevada. What might be termed the belt of ignorance lying between these two belts is being converted by a movement which is moving slowly from westward. Indiana and all states due east thereof are in the registration area. All states due west of Indiana are outside the registration area. In this group are Illinois, Iowa, South Dakota, Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho, and Oregon. None of the southern states are in the registration area except Virginia, Kentucky, Maryland, Delaware, Missouri, and towns of 1,000 and over in North Carolina.

All of the forty-one registration cities outside the registration states are in the south except Aurora, Belleville, Chicago, Decatur, Evanston, Jacksonville, Quincy, and Springfield, in Illinois; Lincoln and Omaha in Nebraska, and Portland in Oregon.

The conditions for entry into the registration area are easily met. The only requirement is that the registration office show that it receives records of 90 per cent of the deaths. Its statistics can be 10 per cent off and the state be a registration state. There need be no registration of births. Not to exceed one-third of the registration states have birth records that are 90 per cent accurate.

The area can be expected to extend year by year. Seventeen years ago Indiana was admitted. Illinois can be expected to enter shortly. Since more than half the Illinois people are now in the area and register practically 100 per cent of their deaths, the remainder of the state can come in when they reach 80 per cent of complete returns.

Oregon can be expected to join Washington and California in a Pacific seaboard belt within a year or two. The largest and most profitable industry in Arizona, New Mexico, and parts of western Texas is the sale of health. These states will shortly find their market slipping unless they enter the registration area. The very satisfactory registration in thirty southern cities indicates that before long those states will come in.

The year 1915 was the healthiest in the history of the country. The death rate in the registration area was 13.5. This is to be compared with 19.8 for 1880, the year the registration area was established. It must be admitted, however, that the rate of decline of the death rate is slowing up; 1915 was 13.5 as compared with 13.6 for 1914. When the figures for 1916 and 1917 are available I predict that they will be found to show a higher rate than that for 1915.

The state having the lowest death rate was Washington [8.1], Utah was second [9.9], Kansas third [10.1], Minnesota fourth [10.1], Wisconsin fifth [10.8]. Colorado and Montana were almost as low as Wisconsin. A footnote states that Washington, Utah, and Kansas are probably given a lower death rate than they deserve because of overestimate of the population. This the health commissioner of Washington, Dr. T. D. Tuttle, denies in a very elaborate study of the situation in that state.

The honor positions among the cities are: Seattle, 7.4; Spokane, second, 8.1; Portland, third, 8.4; St. Paul, fourth, 10.7. Milwaukee, 11.4; Oakland, 11.4, and Minneapolis, 11.5, follow closely. Chicago has lost her proud position of olden times and is now twenty-second on the list.

The annual report carries the usual diagram showing the death rate of certain foreign countries, as compared with the United States, but this year the chart loses most of its value after 1912 and practically all of it after 1913. There are very few reports for 1913 or 1914 from European countries and none from the central powers.

A heavy Negro population very materially increases the death rate of a community. The race seems not to have adapted themselves to the diseases of American community life, though Trask finds evidence that they are gradually doing so. By reason of the high death rate among Negroes and its influence on the general death rate a separate table is made for cities in which Negroes composed more than 10 per cent of the population.

In Vicksburg, Miss., Negroes made up 57.9 per cent of the total population. In the following cities they make up more than 40 per cent of the population: Mobile, Montgomery, Jacksonville, Pensacola, Augusta, Savannah, Jackson, Miss.; Meridian, Natchez, Vicksburg, Wilmington, N. C.; Winston-Salem, Columbia, Greenville, Chattanooga, Memphis, and Petersburg.

The lower death rate among the cities with more than 10 per cent of the population colored were: Coatesville, Pa.; Coffeyville, Kas.; Montclair, N. J.; Riverside, Cal.; Atchison, Kas.; Newport, Ky.; Asbury Park, N. J., and Portsmouth, Va. Of these, Portsmouth, with 16.16, makes a better showing than Coatesville with its 9.04, because the proportion of colored population is 33 in Portsmouth and 13.7 in Coatesville.

The greater part of the improvement in the death rate is due to lowering of the death rate among babies. The number of babies dying when under 1 year of age was 7,000 less than in the previous year. On account of the increase in the registration area and the increase in population the total number of deaths increased 10,000. The lives of babies are becoming safer each year.

The more important causes of death in order were: Heart disease, consumption, pneumonia, Bright's disease, cancer, apoplexy, infant diorrhoea, diphtheria, typhoid, whooping cough, measles, and scarlet fever.

The diseases showing marked rises as compared with 1900 are: Heart disease, Bright's disease, apoplexy, and cancer. All others in this group have fallen. The groups arrange themselves into three subgroups as follows: Most important, heart disease, consumption, and pneumonia; important (each causing about two-thirds as many deaths on an average as the members of the first group), cancer, Bright's disease, apoplexy, and baby diarrhoea; less important (each causing about one-tenth as many deaths on an average as the members of the first group), diphtheria, typhoid, whooping cough, measles, and scarlet fever.

A notable improvement in the last fifteen years is found in the typhoid rate. The 1915 rate is about one-third that of 1900 and one-half that of 1908. The place of honor among the states is given Wisconsin, with a rate of 4.8. Massachusetts, New Jersey, Minnesota, New York, and New Hampshire follow in the order named. The report says: "One of the most encouraging features in connection with the decline in the typhoid rate is the reduction shown for the colored population, especially in the states of North Carolina and Kentucky."

The lowest rates among the cities were: Cambridge, 1.8; Seattle, 2.4; Newark, 2.8; Paterson, 4.4; and Bridgeport, Portland, and Milwaukee.

The report says: "The general decrease in the typhoid rate throughout the country from year to year is perhaps the best index of the steady progress of public health work." The indications are that within five years typhoid will be as rare in the United States as it is in northwestern Europe.

The year 1915 was a good diphtheria year. The rate was the lowest since 1900. The diphtheria rate has declined 60 per cent in the last fifteen years. The states having least diphtheria were Washington, Montana, Colorado, New Hampshire, and Minnesota. The states at the other end of the line were Kentucky, Missouri, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. The cities having the lowest rates were Seattle, Denver, Richmond, Newark, and Spokane. The cities at the other end of the line were New Orleans, Boston, Scranton, Chicago, and Pittsburgh. The diphtheria rate of New Orleans was fifty-one times that of Seattle.

The states having least scarlet fever were Washington, Vermont, Virginia, North Carolina, New Hampshire, Maine, and Kansas. At the other end of the line were Minnesota, Colorado, Massachusetts, Maryland, and Rhode Island. The cities on this honor roll are Seattle, Portland, Newark, Oakland, Atlanta, New Orleans, Richmond, Grand Rapids, and Louisville. The cities with the highest scarlet fever rate were Omaha, Birmingham, St. Paul, Boston, Cleveland, and Pittsburgh. The Omaha rate was almost fifty times that of Seattle. There is reason for the opinion held by health authorities of the south that scarlet fever does not menace greatly the children of southern communities.

A good measles year was 1915. The census authorities attribute this to good luck rather than to good planning. New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia had bad measles years. Cincinnati, which had not a death from measles in 1914, had a rate of 3.7 in 1915. The honor places among the states went to North Carolina, Vermont, Utah, Washington, and Montana. The highest rates were in Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania. The good cities were Paterson, New Orleans, Lowell, Nashville, Atlanta, Denver, and Worcester. The highest rates were in Jersey City, Fall River, Pittsburgh, New Haven, and New York.

The pneumonia rate increased in 1915. The lowest death rates for pneumonia were in Washington, Kansas, Minnesota, California, and Kentucky. The higher were in New York, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Maryland, and Connecticut. The lower death rates in the cities were in Portland, Spokane, Seattle, Los Angeles, and Oakland. The higher rates were in Pittsburgh, Bridgeport, Boston, Fall River, and Baltimore. The Pittsburgh pneumonia rate was five times that of Portland. For some reason Pittsburgh always has a pneumnia rate that is materially higher than that of any other city.

The consumption rate is progressively declining. Within fifteen years the rate has fallen from 202 to 145. The lower consumption rates prevailed in Utah, Kansas, Washington, Vermont, and Wisconsin; the higher rates in North Carolina, Kentucky, California, Maryland, and Virginia. The influence of the heavy Negro population is shown in each of these states except California, in which state the rate is raised by the health seeker. The low rates among the large cities are found in Spokane, Seattle, Portland, Scranton, Grand Rapids, and Milwaukee, and the high ones in New Orleans, Memphis, Albany, Denver, and Nashville.

NOT PROOF.

Helen writes: "(1) I am writing to ask you to please explain why, in a case where one ovary has been removed, the foetus has never been found in abortions where the microscope reveals a quantity of decidual cells in the afterbirth. (2) Is the presence of the cells proof that a foetus has begun to form? (3) And will you tell me if you think it possible in this case to have a normal child. If not, why?"

REPLY.

1. In the first place the foetus may have been very small and immature, and for that reason may have escaped observation. In the second it may have been passed at some time when its coming was wholly unexpected.

2. Practically so. Decidual cells are formed by the uterus reacting to the irritation of the child. Other forms of irritation in rare instances can produce a similar though somewhat different cell. The categoric answer to your question is yes.

3. You give no reason why you cannot bear a normal child.

SIDEWALK FOR BENNETT AVE.

Chicago, July 16.—[To the Friend of the People.]—The writer would like to know if there is any reason why there should not be a sidewalk on the east side of Bennett avenue, between Seventy-second and Seventy-third streets?

A. S. K.

Bids were opened on July 11 for laying a cement sidewalk on Bennett avenue, between Seventy-first and Seventy-fourth streets, and as soon as the contract is let the work will be pushed as early as possible.

M. J. FAHERTY,
President Board of Local Improvements.

PAVING AN ALLEY.

Chicago, July 16.—[To the Friend of the People.]—When will the alley between Washington boulevard, Park avenue, Hermitage avenue, and Wood street be paved?

ALAN E. McDANIELS,
1744 Washington boulevard.

Bids will be advertised for paving with bituminous concrete the alley between Washington boulevard, Park avenue, Hermitage avenue, and wood street in about two weeks from this date, and as soon as the contract is let the work will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

M. J. FAHERTY,
President Board of Local Improvements.

PAVING KEDZIE AVENUE.

Chicago, July 16.—[To the Friend of the People.]—When will Kedzie avenue, between Milwaukee and Elston avenues, be paved?

T. R.

The ordinance for paving with creosoted wooden blocks Kedzie avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Elston avenue was passed by the city council on June 29, and all subsequent proceedings will be pushed as soon as possible.

If no objections are filed to the assessment the street may be paved this year. If objections are filed it cannot be paved until the spring of 1918.

M. J. FAHERTY,
President board of local improvements.

PETITION APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.

Chicago, July 16.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—What action can be taken to collect on a promissory note, signer of said note having died since it was issued? Is widow liable, and what course can be pursued?

[illegible]

Petition the Probate court to have an administrator appointed. When this has been done, file and prove your claim. The advisability of this course depends on the amount of the note and the [illegible] of the estate.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COMPANY IS LIABLE.

Chicago, July 15.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Cannot one hold the railroad responsible for clothing stolen from suitcase shipped in their cars? I shipped a suitcase from Los Angeles direct through to Chicago on first class ticket and when the case arrived in Chicago I found the lock had been sprung and clothing removed. Is not the railroad responsible to me for this stolen clothing?

C. M. W.

On the facts you state the railroad company is liable.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TRANSFER WILL NOT RELEASE.

Chicago, July 16.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A government employé is transferred from Chicago to a city in another state. Can his landlord compel him to pay rent after the end of the month during which he surrenders possession of a flat? The lease is the regulation flat lease.

C. L. R.

The transfer would not relieve him from liability.

POUR PAUVRE BELGIQUE!

[By William Lightfoot Visscher.]

Peaceful and beautiful, along
The North sea's commerce bearing tide;
Rich in her art, her science and her song,
Fair Belgium with the nations vied.
The Goth and Vandal of today,
Relentless, scourging, trod the land,
And fell destruction held its sway,
Dealt by a demon's lethal hand.

All hell arose in gnashing ire
That it had foully been outdone;
Its torturing, gnawing, racking fire
Had failed, since brutal war begun
In Belgium, his crashing, wasting ride,
And all atrocities of time
Have paled to deathly white beside
The vile, inhuman despot's crime.

Pandora's box of evils held
No scourge so pitiless as this,
And never thus was fiend impelled
By promptings from hate's black abyss.
No froth-mouthed savage ever dreamed
Of such infernal brutishness and wrong;
Virtue and Mercy lashed, till devils screamed,
In horror, at the cruciating thong.

Almighty God, in anger rise,
Upon thy high, ethereal throne,
And send thy bolts from out the skies,
To blast and shatter, flesh and bone,
The cruel minions of this hell scorned band,
And may thy vengeful mandates come
Through strong America's right hand,
Till ruthless War lies prone and dumb.

HOW COAL PRICE IS BOOSTED.

Chicago, July 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The coal dealers claim that the railroads do not give them cars; and the railroads claim that the coal dealers hold the cars and do not unload them promptly. We have read how coal cars were reconsigned and held in the yards here for higher prices before being unloaded. This alleged shortage is merely an excuse, and a poor one, to boost the prices.

I placed an order in April, which was accepted at the April price. About the last day of May I received a letter from the dealer, stating that orders for coal could only be accepted subject to indefinite delay, and price would be the ruling price the day delivery was made.

Why should hard coal rise automatically with all dealers everywhere 50 cents a ton over night? And again over night, and again over night, with every one alike? Is not this prima facie evidence that the whole coal business is controlled by a large monopoly? Is not this of enough importance to justify the government in making an investigation and breaking up this monopoly, or, if necessary, taking over the coal business?

A FABLE AND THE FOOD BILL.

Chicago, July 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The manner in which the senate in Washington is taking its time in passing the food bill designed to immediately curb the vicious manipulation of food prices reminds one of the old fable of "The Lady and the Cat."

You will recollect the lady found her well fed cat on the kitchen table eating the cream, and she started to preach a long sermon to the cat on morals, the sin of stealing, and the shame of lacking manners. The good lady used the choicest language in her verbal castigation, and it seems the cat liked it, for it "listened and ate," "listened and ate," and by the time the lady completed her sermon the cat was through, too.

THE SOUTH AND THE WAR.

Memphis, Tenn., July 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—THE TRIBUNE recently printed editorially the statement that the war would be financed, managed, and fought by the north. Whether the "financing" refer to the purchase of bonds or the payment of taxes the north will not contribute more than the south will, in proportion to wealth, which is the proper basis for the contributions of the citizen to the support of the government. And the north will have the benefit in this of long years of accumulation of what it has taken from the south by the tariff, trust, and transportation grafts, which are all practically northern grafts.

The war will be managed by a southern Democratic president and a Democratic congress, the majority being predominantly southern. In their arduous duties they will have the assistance of loyal members of congress who have buried all partisan and sectional bias at the call of duty, and of many civilians, drawn mostly from the north, because of their experience in the production of the goods, mostly manufactured, which the government will require. The real contribution of the north to the success of the war will be in selling these goods at war prices to the government. Perhaps that is "management."

As to fighting, the thirteen southern states whose names stand at the top of the table given in this morning's dispatch showing the quota of each state to the enrollment of the army, have already contributed by volunteering [illegible] per cent of their quota, while Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York have contributed 40 per cent of their quota. Considering that Negro volunteers were not admissible into the army or the national guard and that the population of the south consists largely of this class, the record of the south for volunteers is ahead of these typical northern states for percentage of white men volunteering.

Whether the white men of the south will be required to furnish 50 per cent more men under the draft law than the north, because of Negro exemption from service, I do not know. If due allowance be made for the Negro population it will be found that the southern volunteers make over 80 per cent of the white proportion of the quotas of the southern states, as against 40 per cent [illegible] to these northern states. If the sectional spirit of the north gets any comfort from these figures it is welcome to all it gets.

MUST DEFINE OUR AIMS.

Chicago, July 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Please accept my thanks for your editorial "Make Clear Our Aims." The nations now at war must show their honesty by defining their aims, thus giving the first invitation to peace in return.

After three years' fighting it is high time that we stop seriously to inquire into our aims and give up the high sounding phrases which mean very little.

LETTER OF RESIGNATION

By Upton Sinclair

PASADENA, Cal., July 17.—To the Members of Local Pasadena of the Socialist Party—Comrades:

The adoption by a 12 to 1 vote by the membership of the socialist party of the so-called "majority report" on the subject of the war brings me to a painful decision. Except for two or three periods of continued residence abroad, I have been a member of the party for sixteen years, and during that time have given practically all my energies to the task of helping to build it up; but now I find myself so far out of agreement with the membership on the most important of all immediate issues that for me to remain in the party would be to misrepresent both the party and myself.

During the whole period of my membership I have been an agitator against war. Nine years ago I issued a manifesto on the subject, in which I urged that the Socialist parties of the world should make opposition to war their leading motive, adopting a program of insurrection and general strike, either to prevent a declaration of war or to break the back of a war after it was begun. It was my idea that membership in the party should be equivalent to a pledge to such a course: the working classes of the different nations concluding, as it were, treaties of peace among themselves.

The reception of this proposal by the movement brought me a deep disappointment. In America, the only Socialist of any prominence who was willing to sign the manifesto was Charles Edward Russell. The party officials, without exception, were opposed to it; I recall that Morris Hillquit expressed his idea that it was in bad taste for American Socialists, who stood in no danger of war, to seek to influence the policy of their European comrades. I pleaded that the very fact that we were so fortunate as to stand aloof from the inherited jealousies and suspicions of Europe gave us the opportunity and even the duty to attempt to mediate but I pleaded in vain. I note with bewilderment that the very men who nine years ago opposed an agreement for a mass strike as a means of avoiding war are today willing to vote for and defend a "majority report" which calls for even more extreme proceedings, and this when their country is involved in war, and when it has been made perfectly evident that the Socialists of the enemy countries have no remotest intention of resorting to such anti-governmental methods.

This latter fact is of prime importance; for, of course, if the general strike plan were to succeed, it must have been put into effect in all the countries concerned. If the Socialists of any one country remained passive and permitted their rulers to arm them and drill them, as the German Socialists did, then action toward a general strike in the other countries would be futile and even criminal.

This was the argument I encountered when I sent my manifesto abroad nine years ago. The Socialists and labor men of England were interested in it, and took it up and circulated it to the extent of hundreds of thousands of copies and so with the Socialists and syndicalists of France and Italy; but in one country no interest was manifested, nothing whatever could be done, that country being Germany. A German Social-Democratic editor, whom I shall not name, but whom you would recognize as the intellectual leader of the German movement, wrote me several letters about the manifesto, which I still have in my possession. To circulate the document in Germany would be high treason; therefore no effort would be made to circulate it! There existed a tacit understanding not to discuss this question of a general strike in war time, because the advocates of only one side could be heard, and they recognized that that was not fair to the other side!

WHEN I went abroad and talked with men in various countries who were waging the fight against militarism I found them one and all aware of the danger from Germany: Hervé, for example, who had gone to jail for his agitation. I remember his quoting to me the utterance of Ledebour, one of the most radical of German Socialists, at the recent international congress, that the reason Ramsay Macdonald and the other Englishmen were so anxious for a peace program was that their country was decadent! I talked with Englishmen—with Tom Mann, just after he came out of jail; with John Burns, with Hyndman—and one and all they pointed out how Germany was arming, and how the German comrades were making no adequate resistance and no promise of any.

I went to Berlin to see for myself and thrash out the subject. I was still keen for a general strike as the great weapon of internationalism; but, talking with the German party leaders, I found radicals and conservatives alike in agreement that the party would be powerless to prevent a war which the rulers willed; any effort to prevent it would mean suicide for the party organization—it would be wiped out in twenty-four hours. I pointed out what this meant: that the rest of Europe was compelled to arm against Germany; and this they admitted. The best they could answer was that after a war, and especially after an unsuccessful war, their time would come.

I call attention especially to that last sentence, which I quote literally from a letter of Germany's intellectual leader—"especially after an unsuccessful war." If the German party leaders object to my attitude at the present moment, I tell them that I am merely standing on the program which they themselves outlined to me in the summer of 1912. If the German government is a wild beast, and if the forces of reason and decency within Germany admit themselves helpless in the grip of that beast, then obviously it is up to the rest of the world to bind and chain the beast, setting free the German Socialists along with the rest of mankind.

We have been stirred by the heroic effort of Karl Liebknecht, the one great moral leader the war has produced in Germany. He is in revolt against his government, and we desire to emulate his example. How shall we do it? By revolting against our own government? The analogy is tempting; but it has been said that the ability to think consists in the discovering of differences in things which appear alike. A whale looks like a kind of fish, but when you investigate carefully you discover that it is nearer to a cow; a bat looks like a bird, but in reality it is a mouse; and so on. It is fatally easy to say that all capitalist governments are alike, and that all must be opposed in the same way. The adopting of such a formula saves one the need of thinking, and by following it out one gets into jail, exactly like Liebknecht. But is it not at least worth while to consider the idea of helping Liebknecht by fighting those whom he is fighting? We cannot ascertain what he himself would advise, but we have the written opinion of August Bebel, the wisest leader the German Social-Democracy ever produced, that to set the German people free there was needed a military defeat to break the prestige of Germany's ruling caste.

I CANNOT but believe, comrades, that the difference between our opinions comes from the fact that I have lived in Germany, and know its language and literature and the spirit and ideals of its rulers. Having given many years to a study of American capitalism as it exists in the domain of the beef trust, the steel trust, and the coal trust, I am not apt to be blind to the defects of my own country; but in spite of these defects I assert that the difference between the ruling class of Germany and that of America is the difference between the seventeenth century and the twentieth. I find those with whom I talk here in the west utterly unable to conceive what the Prussian ruling class is. They cite its modernness, its use of science, failing to realize that this is precisely the thing which makes it dangerous—a beast with the brains of an engineer. They cite the good care it takes of its workers, failing to realize that every farmer who fattens animals for the slaughter house does the same thing, and from the same motive.

Only a few days ago, in a gathering in this city, my wife was challenged by a German-American lady to justify her statement that before the war the expression of opinion was less free in Germany than in England. "What could your husband say in England that he could not say in Germany?" asked this lady; and this in face of the fact that in England I had denounced the government's policy during the bitterest labor fight in English history, and had not merely been allowed to speak but had been reported in the capitalist press, whereas in Germany one of my books had been suppressed for Majestätsbeleidigung, I had been forbidden to take part in political and labor discussions, and the publication of my anti-war ideas had been prevented as high treason! Driving down the Sieges-Allee in Berlin with a young German poet, I had ventured to laugh at the architecture of the kaiser's innumerable white marble ancestors; my companion had caught me by the sleeve and whispered to me to be silent, because it was the custom of cab drivers to turn their vehicles and drive such ridiculers of kaiserliche Architectur to the nearest police station!

BUT this question of autocracy versus democracy cannot be settled by force, you tell me; no question can be settled by force, my pacifist friends all say. And this in a country in which a civil war was fought and the question of slavery and secession settled! I can speak with especial certainty of this question, because all my ancestors were southerners and fought on the rebel side; I myself am living testimony to the fact that force can and does settle questions—when it is used with intelligence. If the civil war had not been fought out, if Horace Greeley and the other pacifists had been able to call a truce, the chances are a hundred to one that I today should be a slave owner and a pro-slavery propagandist.

It is certain that there would be standing armies of several million men on each side of the Mason and Dixon line, European empires in Mexico and South America, European intrigues and alliances in this country and Canada, and participation of the north and south on opposite sides in the present war. In the same way, I say that if Germany be allowed to win this war—and by her ruling caste it is clearly understood that "to win" means to escape from their predicament with their hold upon Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, and Turkey unbroken—then we in America shall have to drop every other activity and devote the next twenty or thirty years to preparing for a last ditch defense of the democratic principle. This is what I foresee; and how, when I see it, can I fail to warn the American working class?

I say that this war must be fought until there has been a thorough and complete democratization of the governments of Germany and Austria; and I say that any agitation for peace which does not include this demand is, whether it realizes it or not, a pro-German agitation. The argument that we have no right to say under what institution the German people shall live seems to me without force. The Germans did not scruple to make war upon the French and to set up a republic in that country. They did this because they believed that a republic would be less formidable from a military standpoint; and it is now on the cards that the world shall do the same thing for the Germans, and to the same purpose.

FOR these reasons, comrades, I cannot follow you in your declaration that this is "the most unjustifiable war in history," or in your policy of mass opposition to the draft. But I would not have you think that I have gone over bag and baggage to the capitalist system. I believe that there is a work of enormous importance to be done by the forces of radicalism in the present crisis. We have to compel a clear statement of peace terms by the allies, and to see that those terms contain no trace of the imperialist programs of the aristocracies of England, Italy, and France. We have to fight the efforts of our own exploiters to saddle the costs of the war upon the working classes of the next generation by means of an enormous bond issue. We have to keep up the fight for decent terms for labor. In this and a thousand other matters we are needed—and we are rendering ourselves impotent by taking the anarchist attitude that all governments are equally bad and must be opposed without discrimination.

I have done what I could within the party. I pleaded against the majority report, but I could not even be heard. The Appeal to Reason, a paper to which I have been a continual contributor for sixteen years, refused to allow me to put my ideas before its readers. It refused even to print the minority report; you may recall that Local Pasadena adopted a resolution and sent a telegram to the Appeal protesting against this course, but in vain. And now comes the news that the Appeal has been suppressed, and along with it the American Socialist, the Masses, the International Socialist Review. The whole party press has been practically wiped out—just as the party organization will be wiped out if it endeavors to carry into effect its formally declared policy of mass opposition to conscription. Once before in American history there was mass opposition to conscription—in the streets of New York; all students of our history know how it was dealt with by that archdespot and destroyer of human liberty, Abraham Lincoln.

I intend to go on working for socialism as hard as I can; and when this crisis is past, when the breakdown of the Prussian caste system seems to me to have progressed far enough, I may come back and ask you to take me in again. You will then decide whether or not you care to do so.

Yours for social revolution,

BOWDY'S SONG

by Patrick MacGill

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, June 25.—Bowdy Benners was a very quiet man, slow of speech and not easily ruffled. Men who did not know him well treated him in rather a casual fashion. In some way they fancied themselves rather superior to him, and when, for instance, he entered a wrestling competition and beat the strong man of the battalion the onlookers did not give him due credit. "He's a sly dog, old Bowdy," they said, and were in some way annoyed because Bowdy, up till then, had never openly avowed his physical prowess. Rumors about him were rife.

There is a tenet of discipline which ordains that a soldier, whether he requires it or not, shall go through the action of shaving daily, and it was said that the conscientious Bowdy, who in ordinary life shaved only twice a week, went through the action of shaving a hairless chin five mornings of the week. . . . . Now, Spudhole Bubb, who belonged to the same platoon as Bowdy, was a man of different metal. He had no great love for discipline, and vowed that men who obeyed military orders to the letter were humbugs.

"Fightin' is what I like," Spudhole often remarked. "No bloomin' rules about that. You see your man and you go for him, and no bloomin' sergeant behind your back shoutin', 'Left parry! Point!' But when you meet the sergeant on parade next day you'll be damned lucky if he's not runnin' you into clink for a dirty bayonet."

That was Spudhole, a man poles apart from Bowdy. Spudhole could swear with inspired abandon, but Bowdy had only one oath to his credit. This was "Devil blow me blind!" How he managed to acquire this expressive phrase was a mystery. When he gave vent to it he spoke in a hesitating voice, as if apologizing for his moral depravity. But it came to pass that in spite of his slow and easy way and his indifference to the society of any one the men of the platoon gradually came to like Bowdy. And once they came to like him they loved him for good, for the friend slow to make is a lasting friend.

But one day, with dramatic suddenness, Bowdy became every one's friend. It almost seemed as if he had bided his time and waited for a fitting occasion to make his worth manifest. It happened in this way: He was billeted with his platoon in a village near the firing line. The Germans shelled the place at intervals, and stray bullets were continually rapping on the cobblestones of the street. The platoon was billeted in a high barn over a stable, and the only exit was through a door in the wall. From this door to the ground stretched a ladder which the men had to make use of when going out or coming in.

ON this day the Germans started shelling at 11 in the morning—an unusual hour, for the "strafe" generally started at noon. The first shell hit the ladder and smashed it to smithereens. The men could not get out now. To add to the predicament a draft newly out was in the barn, and the "rookies" were not yet used to the ways of war. To make matters worse, one of them was hit on the leg with a splinter of wood.

"I'll bind up your wound," said Spudhole Bubb, who was an adept in the art of bandaging. "The rest of you blokes keep quiet. The shells won't come this way no more. That one is all the Germans will send."

As if to give the lie to his remark, a second shell burst on a house near at hand and a thousand flying tiles rattled on the roof of the barn. It was a bad time for the men newly out, and even the older soldiers were discomforted. It was then that Bowdy Benners came to the rescue. Rising from the floor, on which he was sitting cleaning his rifle with an oily rag, he stepped out into the middle of the apartment, lit a cigaret, puffed a whiff of smoke into the air, and called out in a cool voice: "Come, boys, let's have a song!"

He began the song in a deep baritone voice. None of the men had ever heard him sing before.

"There was a man and he had two sons, and these two sons were brothers,
John Andrew was the name of one, and Andrew John the other.
Sing, brethren, sing!"

He repeated the first two lines. Spudhole and another man were the only ones who joined in. The "rookies" were listening to the shell splinters striking on the roof. Bowdy continued:

"Now, these two brothers had a coat. They bought it on a Monday.
John Andrew wore it all the week, and Andrew John on Sunday."

Half a dozen other men joined in now, but the "rookies" were as yet silent. Their eyes were, however, fastened on Bowdy. "They'll forget the shells in a minute," the singer thought, and went on:

"Now both these brothers bought a horse, and it was poor and thin.
They took it to the riverside and shoved the poor thing in.
Sing, brethren, sing!"

Some of the "rookies" joined in now, and one of them, the man who was wounded, laughed outright when Spudhole said "damned thing" for "poor thing." Bowdy took another puff from his cigaret and went on with increasing energy, moving just a trifle to one side as a broken tile fell on the floor near him.

"Now, both these brothers died one day through eating
fish and jelly;
John Andrew with a pain in his back, and Andrew John his—stomach.
Sing, brethren, sing!"

None could resist now. All joined in and got the correct rhyme. Spudhole jumped to his feet and started to dance a jig, only stopping short when Bowdy burst into song again:

"And both these brothers now are dead—I'm sure we wish them well—
John Andrew, he has gone to heaven, and Andrew John—as well.
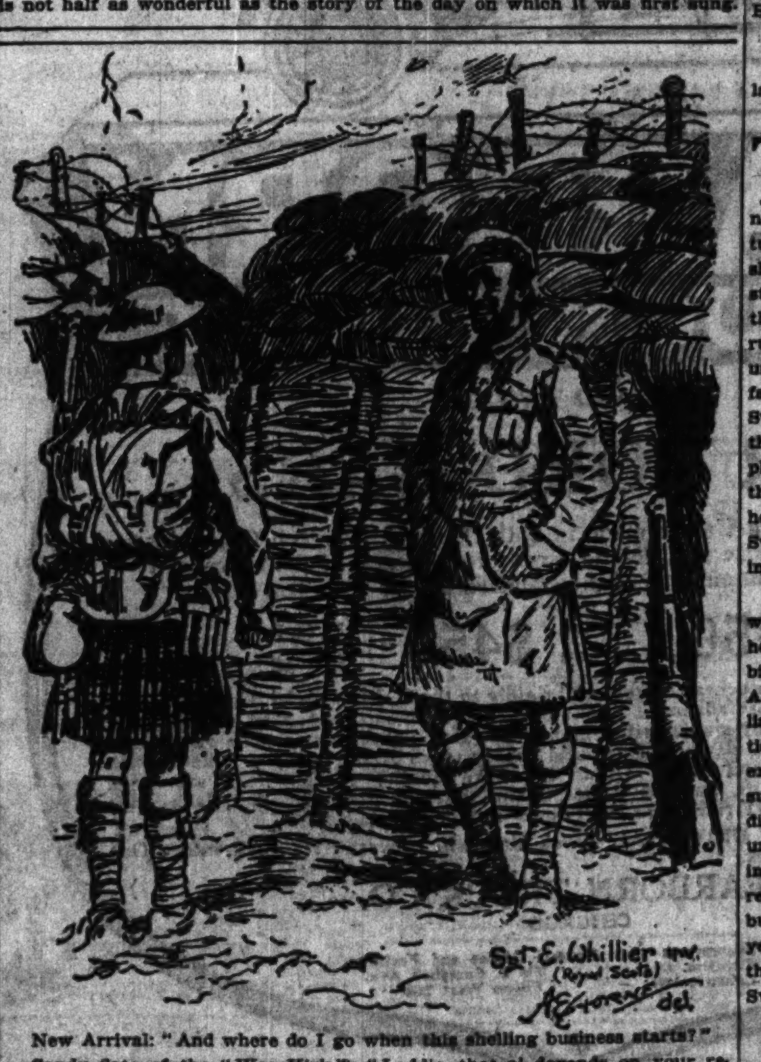
Sing, brethren, sing!"

No stanza reached the volume and intensity of the last. All were unanimous, even the "rookies," in asserting that the two brothers were separated in the life hereafter.

"Amen," sang Bowdy in a deep, solemn voice. "Amen," chanted the barn.

"The shelling's at an end now," Bowdy remarked as he went back to his rifle and oily rag. "It's just the ordinary 'strafe.'"

Bowdy's song is very popular now, and it is often sung by the men marching up and down the roads of France. But to the men who sing it the song is not half as wonderful as the story of the day on which it was first sung.



New Arrival: "And where do I go when this shelling business starts?"

Sandy (late of the "Wee Kirk"): "Laddie, that a' depends on your releegious opeenions!"

AMERICAN AVIATORS IN FRANCE

by Sterling Heilig

PARIS, July 2.—I have seen and talked with American boys, newly arrived, who are learning to fly with the French at Avord. There is the important problem how American beginners can become war aviators best and quickest on the spot in France. Avord is putting pupils into the schools of Pau (for acrobatics) and Cazeaux (for machine gun perfection) in three and one-half months, all told, from inexperience to the fighting front.

The French military aviation department took us (a party of American correspondents) to this great school of theirs (or, rather, collection of schools) called the Camp of Avord. We were accompanied by President of the Interallies' Service Flandin (for aviation), M. Ponsot of the foreign office, and Dr. Edmond Gros, the American of Paris who did so much to organize the Lafayette squadrilla before America entered the war. At the military dinner I sat on the right of the lieutenant colonel who is general inspector of all the French military aviation schools and depots. At my right sat a commandant of the direction of military aeronautics. The trip was done in grand style. Powerful automobiles took us from Paris to beyond Bourges and return (330 miles, almost from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh in the total), leaving at 9 a. m. and returning late in the night. The French are acquiring all our hustling ways.

Avord is a grand place. We had passed the School of Etampes, counting sixty-seven aeroplane sheds and missing more (at sixty miles per hour), but Avord is a world. It took an hour to automobile round the camp at moderate speed, a hundred avions circling, planing, dashing all around us, to do our visit honor. We stopped at the Bleriot division, the Nieuport, the Caudron, Voisin, Sopwith, and others, and I talked with some of the American pupils.

I SHALL never forget the pure motives of one boy, Joseph Saul of Boston, who scorns any calculation to slip into the American army with a sub-lieutenant's commission via French aviation! "I came to fight with the French," he says, "and lots are like me. France helped us; let's help France. I want to be close up to them! Take that colored man, Bullock, who is one of the whitest here and one of the best liked. Ask him." Nor shall I forget those who hoped to be graduated into the Lafayette squadrilla. Our first (and now long glorious) squadrilla at the French front has its devoted candidates among the lads, and Dr. Edmond Gros, after dinner, before the French authorities, made an impassioned appeal for its conservation as a fighting unity. Nor shall I forget the pride of all to wear "these wings embroidered on your neck!" (the French army's aviation insignia).

George E. Turnure of New York had just won the embroidered wings. George knows it all. A nice, enthusiastic boy. "I took my military brevet on a Bleriot monoplane," he said; "the slowest training, but very good. It is a sensitive machine. You learn everything yourself. You go on a Bleriot alone from the start. First, you roll slowly on the ground; then faster; then you go off the ground a few minutes, and so on. When you can fly decently and do spirals they send you to try for your brevet. It took me two and one-half months, and now I'm going to Pau for acrobatics."

"What's the test to get your flying brevet?" I asked.

"You must do two little trips to town alone to get certain papers and return and report; then two triangles, each 140 miles round trip, and then you stay up more than an hour above 2,000 meters altitude. When you do these," says George, "you have the right to embroider wings on your neck—like these."

The boy is full of science and action. Nothing is hidden from him. "The Bleriot is useful only for teaching," he confided to me. "It is too light for war." Just think, three months ago he was a tenderfoot. A month hence he will deem the potting of rubber balloons with machine guns on swift motor boats to be child's play, unworthy of him!

I talked with Ford of Pasadena, Cal., who came over on the same boat with a civilian person who, in my opinion, has not yet learned to go round Paris alone, but Ford is ready for war in the air! He began in the Caudron department, and his ambition is a Spad and a Hotchkiss!

"I began with a Caudron biplane, then continued on a penguin monoplane," says Ford of Pasadena. "A penguin, you know, is one of those queer birds which cannot fly—it hasn't the combination of wing surface and motor force, but it is very tricky and you get all the surprises in jumps and flops a few feet in the air. Then, on a Nieuport, you get loose on trial, and are ready for Pau. Landing is the first great thing to learn. You've got to learn to land! Of course, I want a Spad," he concluded. "You get Spads only after acrobacy on a Nieuport. With a Spad you must land quicker and it is faster in the air."

SO talk pupils. French instructors express no preferences, except for the double command in teaching. It exists already on Caudrons, Bleriots, and Nieuports, and can be adapted to others. It permits the instructor to take his pupils up behind him, and as the entire control is double (like the coupled handlebars of a tandem bike) the teacher guides the aeroplane, but the pupil, having the same commands in his hands, feels every movement made by the instructor. Little by little he acquires the habit and feels that it is he who is piloting, and the instructor, as he feels the pupil getting the right movements, slackens and lets the pupil do it more and more, until, at the end, the original positions are reversed—it is the pupil who pilots the aeroplane, and the instructor who feels him doing it.

Later, when we were alone with the French officers, Dr. Gros asked Capt. Gallet, chief of pilotage at Avord, his estimate of the value of summary practice in America.

"Do young men who come from America, having done there 100 minutes in a Curtiss without landing, have a considerable advantage?"

"Yes," replied the chief of pilotage, "an advantage of one to five, and even more. They have gained time."

If they take three months, regularly, to win their flying certificate, how much have they gained of that?"

"Why, even half!" was the answer. "Because of this I give preference, in the Bleriot division, to Americans; because the Bleriot, although longer to learn than others, is a beginning for all machines. It is a fuselage. So the pupil of a Bleriot is capable of taking up all machines. If, at the beginning, he has not all the dispositions I send him to the Caudrons."

"They say that the Bleriot is good in good weather, but not so good in bad weather?"

"Yes, perhaps it is delicate, and perhaps it demands a longer apprenticeship, say fifteen days longer, but I would rather keep American pupils fifteen days longer and they will have great advantages."

"How many have you at Avord?" (I transcribe my notes.)

"We have 800 pilots, and we form 300 pilots per month—including those whom we form entirely (men who have never worked) and those whom we receive from other schools. At Avord we try to make pilots on machines with the motor front and a fuselage. The future is for fuselage and a tractor."

"If you add all your pilots' and students' flights per day together, how many miles per day would they total?"

"We do 2,000 flights per day, of from ten minutes to two hours each, and they make a total of 25,000 miles, or just about a trip around the earth! We use 10,000 quarts of gasoline per day. As for accidents, we average .08 per cent per month, and they are voluntary accidents. Real pilotage accidents do not happen. They are imprudences done by aviators. Of course, we sometimes have a broken arm or leg—a detail; but serious accidents arrive always in pilots from other schools who think themselves very capable and will not listen to their professors. They have their brevet already, and they are the ones who commit imprudences."

"What is the average time required to make a war aviator—to send to the front a man who has never flown?"

"Three months and a half. We have, you might say, the advantage of unlimited supplies of machines from the front, Farmans, Voisins, Caudrons, etc., a little tired, but quite good. (The effort is, always, to get more and more new machines fast enough and powerful enough to meet the enemy machines.) Afterwards we perfect the pupils on fuselage machines. Of course, America has sufficient means to make, in series, all the school machines they need. Let America make them now and send them over here, too, now—so that they have the double command."

Our army in France will, probably, take over certain French aviation schools. French experts favor the idea. Should we try to simply acquire ground and form our own schools in France, with all the necessary buildings, workshops, hangars, mechanicians, instructors, helpers, etc., and wait for school aeroplanes to be built new it may waste much time.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by FANNY BUTCHER

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store were:

WAR.

"Over the Top" (Putnam's), by Arthur Guy Empey.

FICTION.

"The Hundredth Chance" (Putnam's), by Ethel M. Dell.
"The Red Planet" (John Lane), by William J. Locke.
"Summer" (Appleton), by Edith Wharton.
"Bab: a Sub-Deb" (Doran), by Mary Roberts Rinehart.
"The Gun Brand" (Putnam's), by James B. Hendryx.
"The Light in the Clearing" (Bobbs-Merrill), by Irving Bacheller.

NONFICTION.

"A Soldier of France to His Mother" (McClurg), translated, with an introduction by Theodore Stanton.

THE life of Algernon Charles Swinburne is no more a mere memory clothed in refulgent mysteries. On the tales of his inaccuracies of conduct, of his weaknesses of will, of his exquisitenesses of poetic license are turned the spotlights of Edmund Gosse's years of friendship with the poet. When he finds anything that is too stark for us to see Edmund Gosse discreetly says that there is little to record, but mostly he finds that the rumors have been exaggerated, and with a loving (though unprejudiced) pen he revivifies that romantic life into a fascinating reality in "The Life of Algernon Charles Swinburne" (Macmillan). It is particularly appropriate that Edmund Gosse should be the poet's official biographer, because he is almost, if not absolutely, the last of the very old friends of Swinburne who could be expected to write such a book. He was the author of the sketch of Swinburne's life in the Dictionary of National Biography in 1912, the only memoir of the poet published.

That sketch, with the help of the friends of the poet whom he has been able to command in the six years which he has spent on the biography, has been enlarged into this biography, which is one of the literary events of the season. At practically the same time that the biography was published there appeared another volume of personal recollections of Swinburne by his cousin, Mrs. Disney Leith, with extracts from some of his private letters (Putnam's), which supplies some of the intimate details which Edmund Gosse did not include in the biography. Now the poet, so long unrecorded, has in one season an official biography and an intimate memoir. Also in London, though it has not reached here as yet, there has appeared a volume of Swinburne's "Posthumous Poems," covering a period of fifty years, with a full introduction by Edmund Gosse describing the history of the more important poems. And this isn't a Swinburne centenary year or anything.

Before the bulletin boards at the public library, where there are photographs of wonder spots in the national parks, some one is always standing wrapt in dreams of mountains and pines. With the pictures there are lists of books about our seventeen national parks, government bulletins about camping in them, automobile routes, expenses, and everything that any one would need to know who wants to know them. There's real joy in going by book and picture if you can't go by actual miles. Have you seen the two newest volumes on our national parks, "Glacier National Park, Its Trails and Treasures" (Doran), by Mathilde E. Holtz and Katherine I. Bemis, and Enos A. Mills' "Your National Parks" (Houghton Mifflin)? No nature lover can afford to miss Enos Mills' books.

The Doubleday-Page company is now the official purveyor of Whitman to his majesty the American Reader. In the acquisitions of Whitmaniana there came to light this letter to the foremost literary critic of Whitman's day (I don't know who it was either), which was written in Camden on Dec. 20, 1875:

> Forgive my not writing before. Much of the time I cannot write, from paralysis. Very soon, in 1876, I issue a small edition of my complete works in two volumes. "Leaves of Grass" will be one. The other, "Two Rivulets," alternations of prose and verse—the themes ab't as diverse as they can be—poetry, politics, the war, etc.—(I kept a diary from 1862 to 1865, scenes in Virginia, Washington, etc., the hospitals, camps, battles, etc., here given almost verbatim). I publish and shall sell the volumes myself, for two good reasons. No established publisher in this country will print my books, and during the last three years of my illness and helplessness every one of the three successive book agents I have paid in N. Y. has embezzled the proceeds.
> To sum up the situation at present, my health and strength are probably irrecoverable—still I may endure some years yet—mind unaffected—spirits, good—keep up about one-third of the time, prostrate partially or wholly the other two-thirds. Pecuniary matters thin and meagre (but not in want). Shall probably reside steadily here in Camden.

George Du Maurier's "Peter Ibbetson," the dramatised form of which was Jack Barrymore's latest in New York, was written three times before the author was satisfied with it. He wrote it first in English, then put it into French, and then turned it back into English to be sure of its literary finish.

Frederick Palmer, the war correspondent, author of "My Year of the Great War" (Dodd-Mead) and "My Second Year of the War," has been appointed by Maj. Gen. Pershing to his staff in the intelligence department. He will be the intercessor for the American press. And all the newspaper boys will have to call him "major."

Emily Calvin Blake's "Suzanna Stirs the Fire" is seeing the light of print in England under the wing of Methuen & Co. "Suzanna" has been stirring things for some time in her native land. Emily Calvin Blake is one of Chicago's very own, although she commutes from Lombard.

Build Roads Now; They'll Help Army, Official Insists

"WE must, as a nation, wake up to the fact that roads are not only necessary in times of peace but are of the greatest importance for the mobilization of armies in times of war," asserts State Highway Commissioner George P. Coleman of Virginia, president of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

"A marginal highway, as set forth in the Chamberlain-Dent bill, along the Atlantic coast, the Gulf of Mexico, the southwestern border, and the Pacific slope, and, later, along the northern boundary line, should receive the indorsement of all the people in this country interested in its protection and its future development.

"All of us are, possibly, alive to the fact that roads are necessary for military purposes, but few people realize that in the construction of the important highways of this country many years will be consumed. Therefore it is important that this great work should be started at an early date and pushed with as great rapidity as possible to its final completion.

"While main artery roads command priority and require rugged and costly construction, the tributaries must not be neglected, for in many instances these 'feeders' upon occasion serve a vital purpose, even though not subjected to heavy traffic, except intermittently.

"If the national government relieves a state of that road which has the greatest military worth, it still remains the bounden obligation of the commonwealth to supply a comprehensive state system of the most important intercounty roads and then to give some aid to the counties in the building and maintenance of the lesser roads. It is almost impossible to say positively what roads may meet the military emergencies, and in consequence there must be a correlated plan, the cost of which must be shared by the national government and state and county.

"It has been suggested that war prisoners can be logically employed in military road construction, and one finds himself much inclined to agree with the suggestion of the national committee on prisons that we utilize whatever foreign prisoners we now or will possess. Most of these men undoubtedly will be kept in southern states, where the need of trunk road construction awaits the earliest possible attention."

The MOTORIST IN COURT

A CASE of considerable interest to all purchasers of automobiles, as bearing on the standard warranty of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, was decided recently in the City court in New York. A car bought from a dealer early in the year did not from the start perform satisfactorily. The owner brought the car back for adjustment to the dealer's service station, but the work did not achieve the desired result.

When he reported this to the dealer he was urged to bring it back again, but he declined, saying that he did not care to spend the time necessary to give to work done at the service station, but was willing to have a mechanic go to the garage where he kept his car and do the work there. The workman who was sent out as a result attempted to adjust the car, but apparently was unsuccessful. The chief difficulty was with the clutch. It could not be made to hold properly, either grabbing or slipping. There were many other details by which an imperfect delivery was apparent.

The owner then announced that he did not want to keep his car and asked to have his money back. The dealer contended that he should have further opportunity of putting the car in shape, as that was his responsibility under the chamber of commerce warranty. The owner said that he had given the dealer opportunities enough and that there was an implied warranty such as went with new automobiles that they should be in usable condition and properly adjusted before delivery.

The case eventually was brought into court. It appeared by testimony from both sides that the car was not properly adjusted upon delivery. The plaintiff set forth "there is a general custom in the automobile trade that all new automobiles which are sold as new shall be in good running condition, fully provided with oil and grease, perfectly adjusted, and capable of being run smoothly and perfectly by merely supplying same with fuel."

Judgment was rendered against the dealer for the amount paid for the car and interest for a brief period of time on that amount. Judgment has been entered and the case will be appealed by the dealer.

The dealer's contention is that his responsibility is limited to the warranty of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, which involves only the replacement of defective parts or repairing the results of inferior workmanship in the car. On this basis he believed himself justified in continuing to request the customer to return his car for service. Furthermore, he based his argument on the fact that it is not always possible to put machinery in perfect running condition so that it may not subsequently need some adjustment.

The case on appeal probably will not come up till October. It will go far to determine exactly what is the responsibility of a dealer under the warranty of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, which is apparently far from clear at this time.

Lake Forest's city ordinance prohibiting any one under 18 years of age from driving an automobile unless accompanied by a licensed chauffeur or the owner of the car has been sustained in the local court, the daughter of a Lake Forest resident paying her fine in a test case. The ordinance was passed last March over the mayor's veto and has been violated constantly. It places the age limit two years above that of the new state law, which prohibits any one under 16 from driving, whether accompanied by others or not. It is probable that some future Lake Forest case will be appealed to a higher court.

SPEAKING AS ONE WOMAN TO ANOTHER—

Miss Anita King of the Movies, Who Really Drives, Indulges in a Word of Advice to Sister Motorists.

Miss King, whom you see in Lasky pictures, permitted the photographer to surprise her in a Studebaker roadster. Many luminaries of the movie world have their pictures taken in this or that car from time to time, but it happens that Miss King really drives and knows what she is doing. Here's a bit out of her book of experience.

By Anita King.

LESS than 2 per cent of the women who drive cars are getting what they should in satisfactory service and the real joy of motoring. This is because either they are afraid or they are puzzled by some part of the mechanism of the car. Nothing in the world pays bigger dividends in peace of mind and general satisfaction than some good, hard work put in on the subject of mastering the car you drive, so that when on the road you are completely free from bondage of fear and uncertainty.

Can you shift gears in a whisper when climbing a steep hill without slowing up? Can you locate a foul spark plug, remove, clean, and space it? Can you tell by the sound when the carburetor is "too rich," and change the adjustment to correct? Can you locate a squeak or a rattle and "kill it"? Can you change a tire in ten minutes and be on your way without calling in a wearer of overalls? If you cannot do these things, and do them without dread or uncertainty, then go back to the instruction department of the place where you bought your car and make them stick with you until you have learned these things. Then, and not until then, will you have approached the point where transcontinental travel at the wheel of an automobile will become a real joy.

One more point: If you are climbing a long, steep grade and see a chance to pass the car ahead, see first if there is a woman at the wheel, and if so, don't try it; she will risk both your necks rather than let you by. If it is a man, one honk will generally make him slide over and give you the road, if you are sufficiently strong under the hood; but not so the lady driver—I know; also I'm paying for a new fender, running board, and one headlight as the price of finding out.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

Shipping instructions for $32,000,000 worth of passenger cars are reported to have been received by the Nash Motors company at a convention of Jeffery wholesalers held in Kenosha last week. "This business, with truck orders totaling several millions and the large government contract announced during the week, outline a manufacturing program that will keep the plant busy throughout the coming year," said A. M. Robbins, president of the Centaur Motor company, on his return to Chicago. Thirty-one distributors, representing the entire United States territory, attended the convention.

Two Nationals, the property of Mrs. Bliss Thompson, whose husband went down with the Lusitania and who was rescued herself, have been turned over to the French authorities for use against the Germans. One was rebuilt at Mrs. Thompson's order to conform to the French military requirements and sent direct to Gen. Joffre. The other was taken to France by Mrs. Thompson and turned over to the Red Cross with the services of its owner.

A Marmon climbed the widely known Mineola hills near St. Louis the other day on high gear. So far as the natives know, it was the first time this has been accomplished.

H. J. Staebler, manager of the Reo branch in Chicago, suggests that prospective purchasers of motor cars learn more about the engineering problems involved in brake designing. "Almost any brake will hold," he says, "but that is only a part of it. A brake which grips suddenly and slides the wheels every time one wants to slow down or stop is an expensive luxury. Tire bills tell the story."

R. H. Collins, a veteran of the automobile industry, has succeeded Wilfred C. Leland as general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car company, Mr. Leland having joined his father, the former head of the concern, in the manufacture of aeroplanes.

Two days after he had somersaulted off the track at Omaha on July 4, escaping death by a hair's breadth, Tom Alley was at work in a local garage, rebuilding his wrecked Pan-American. He announces that both he and the car are now ready for any further adventures that may be awaiting them.

Contracts for the handling of 75,000 Maxwells were signed, it is announced, in less than two weeks after the company began making its annual contracts on July 1. Of this number the newly organized Harry Newman-Stratton company of Chicago took 5,000 cars.

VOICE of the MOTORIST

Urges Wider Streets.

Chicago, July 18.—[Automobile Editor of The Tribune.]—From the standpoint of one who has been studying automobile development, the necessity for wider streets is increasing every year. Already the congestion of downtown traffic is serious; even in the younger cities, whose streets only a few years ago were considered of ample width. In the older cities, where many of the streets are narrower, the seriousness of the situation increases to the point of becoming a menace to personal safety and to the transaction of business.

The automobile, which has established itself as a necessity, is having much to do with this crowded condition. Nobody realized a few years ago how many cars would be on the streets and roads of the United States in 1917. All predictions have been exceeded. Even the most enthusiastic automobile man could not foresee the growth of the industry.

And no one today can predict with any degree of accuracy what the automobile is going to demand of our streets a few years from now. It is possible to forecast the approximate yearly increase in commercial traffic, but to what extent individuals are going to use the automobile is beyond human conjecture.

Judging from the past, however, it is safe to assume that there is no danger of building our streets too wide, but there is great danger of building them too narrow. This is a subject that should have thorough consideration in laying our new cities and new additions to older ones. Now that cement is playing so important a part in the construction of streets, with the attendant lowering of costs and improvement in quality, nothing should stand in the way of providing sufficient width to accommodate all the traffic that the rapid growth of the past leads us to expect in the future.

I have always been interested in and identified with every movement for better streets and roads. They are the arteries of our business and social welfare, and it is no exaggeration to say that a city is no better than its streets. The prompt and economical movement of traffic is vital. If any one wants to have this fact emphasized let them try to compute the loss from delay of a few minutes, when a block of traffic is held up. Merchandise is delayed in delivery, men are kept from their business, trains are missed, and the whole business of the community is affected.

To a great extent wider streets would remedy the evil. It would make travel safer. But it would not—must not—encourage excessive speed for reckless driving.

And there are other benefits from wide streets which are themselves sufficient to justify them. I refer to the benefits from the standpoint of appearance. Everybody likes the broad expanse of a wide thoroughfare with the opportunity that it offers for decoration and beautifying the city. Property owners are well aware that the selling and renting value of a property is greatly enhanced by its frontage on a street of ample width, whether it be for living or business purposes. Wide streets mean better light and better ventilation. They mean a more attractive city and they mean quicker movement of traffic with greater safety.

Secretary, Chicago Automobile Trade Association.

More Highway Markers.

Iowa City, Ia., July 17.—[Automobile Editor of The Tribune.]—In placing the proposed Lincoln highway feeder markers between Chicago and Geneva may I suggest that whoever is in charge also paint the emblem or marker of the Chicago, Kansas City and Gulf highway along the route to Geneva over the new Twelfth street exit and via Wheaton?

I think you will agree with me that possibly no other route to the west from Chicago is more popular with tourists than the C., K. C. & G. It was the first interstate highway to be marked into Chicago from the west. I am satisfied the new route out Twelfth street and via Wheaton is the best, and I trust the committee will act upon my suggestion.

ROBERT CARSON,
Pres. Iowa Division, C., K. C. & G. Highway.

Et Tu, Billy!

Billy Sunday, the evangelist, was arrested in Portland, Ore., last week for speeding in his automobile on a bridge across the Willamette river.

All the Comforts of Home Now for Motor Pioneers

VENTURESOME motorists, who pioneer the automobile trails of Glacier National park this summer, will find their travel eased by the new shelter cabins under construction by the national park service, department of the interior. Instead of camping in the open they will find at convenient intervals picturesque log cabins awaiting them. Here they will find shelter from storm and wind. The cabins are equipped with tables, chairs, and a satisfactory cook stove provided with large pots and pans of the sort that is inconvenient to lug around.

There will be two of these cabins on the celebrated Gunsight trail, the route over the Continental divide between Lake McDermott on the east and Lake McDonald on the west. One of these is located just south of Piegan pass, a natural resting and luncheon spot for travelers in both directions. The other is at the foot of Gunsight lake, with Gunsight pass outlined against the western sky.

This site has a picturesque history. A chalet camp was originally built there several years ago by the company operating the east side hotels. Long after the close of the season, and just before hibernating time, a big hungry grizzly bear broke in and devoured everything eatable. He then proceeded to smash into bits everything in the chalet which was smashable. Not a piece of furniture was left undemolished.

The next season the hotel company refitted the chalet and took care of the summer's business; but that following winter an enormous avalanche slipped down the eastern slopes of Mount Jackson and demolished the entire structure as completely as the grizzly had demolished its furniture.

This discouraged the hotel company; the chalet was not rebuilt. But a resthouse was badly needed on this spot, so the department of the interior is replacing the chalet with a shelter cabin. The materials for the building of the cabin are conveniently at hand.

Another of the shelter cabins will be found at Iceberg lake, that wonder spot so near to Lake McDermott. It will serve as the luncheon kitchen and resthouse for thousands who make the amazing one day trip from McDermott to gaze upon its gigantic gorge, explore its mimic glacier, and revel in its berg dotted lake.

Other shelter cabins will be found on the Triple divide and at Red Eagle lake.

Blue Laws in Georgia.

Blue laws at work in Georgia go even so far as stopping the sale of gasoline. The mayor of Sandersville, Ga., has ruled that no sales of gasoline will be permitted in Sandersville on Sunday. All dealers have been notified to discontinue the sales. All who need gasoline for Sunday rides will have to obtain it during the week or let their cars remain idle.

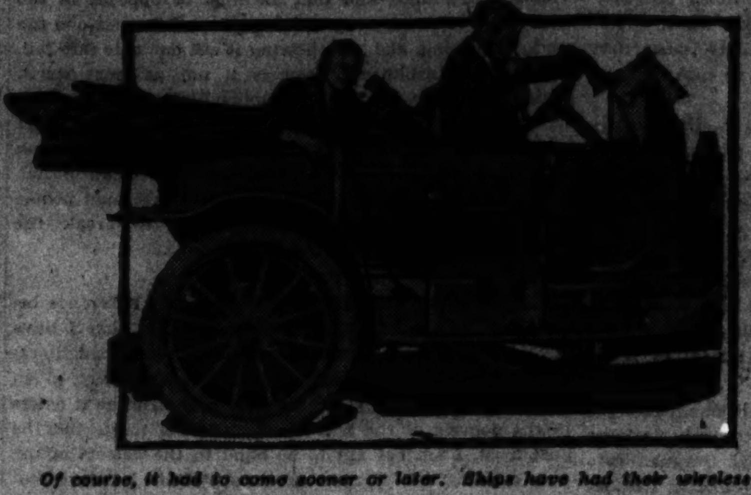
The state law states that the usual lines of business must cease on Sunday, and the city authorities have the backing of that law in the enforcement of the prohibition of gasoline sales.

War and the Motor Car.

The total number of motor vehicles in Great Britain has decreased over 200,000 since the beginning of the war. Motor cars have decreased nearly 50 per cent. The total number of motor vehicles in 1914 was 586,747, divided into 231,175 cars, 333,381 motorcycles, and 22,191 trucks. According to the latest census, the total is 331,897, including 150,269 cars, 160,290 motorcycles, and 21,358 trucks.

BY WIRELESS

Los Angeles Man Perfects a Portable Telephone for Use in Motor Cars.



Of course, it had to come sooner or later. Ships have had their wireless telegraphs. Now automobiles are to have their wireless telephones. The apparatus, invented by a Los Angeles man, is contained in the box and case seen on the running board of the car in the photograph. It is light and simple and can be installed, it is said, in a few minutes. Instead of using high towers for aerials wires are simply strung from the front to the rear seat. Communication may be had with another machine either moving or standing still or with a central station.

How are the roads?

ABOUT CHICAGO.

Ninety-fifth street, from Western avenue west to Seventy-second avenue, will be closed for the summer. To reach points west of Seventy-second avenue the Chicago Motor club recommends the following route: Michigan avenue south to Garfield boulevard, west in Garfield to Western avenue, south in Western to Sixty-third street, west in Sixty-third street to Forty-eighth avenue, south in Forty-eighth to State road, southwest in State road to its end, and south in Seventy-second avenue to Ninety-fifth street.

Don't drive too fast in Wilmette. A squad of policemen installed by the Lincoln park board is patrolling Sheridan road through the suburb under an ordinance passed the other day by the village board giving the park board funds for the purpose. Speeders are warned that they will be arrested and tried. Glencoe and Kenilworth are expected to take action similar to that of Wilmette.

Sheridan road north of Waukegan is blocked for one mile. Motorists should turn west in Grand avenue, in Waukegan, driving two and one-quarter miles to the Green Bay road, and then go north.

ELSEWHERE.

California roads leading into the Yosemite valley are in excellent condition and automobile traffic in that region broke all records for the month of June. According to the park supervisor 1,855 machines entered the valley during the month, an increase of 344 over the best previous mark. There were 500 cars in the valley on the Fourth of July.

Where to Spend Your SUMMER VACATION

Vaudeville Wit

McVICKER'S.

Tom Gillen: The subject of my discourse this evening is whisky. After all, life is nothing but a jag. Reformers tell us to get the best of whisky. But that's easier said than done. Very few saloons sell the best.

Doctors say that whisky wears away the coats of the stomach, but I'm not worrying. When all my coats are gone my stomach will have to go around in its shirt sleeves. Some society ladies go around with even less on than that.

Prohibitionists claim that men who never touch liquor live longer. But they don't. It only seems longer. It's true that an intoxicated person makes himself very conspicuous. But what of it? Even a gas jet will attract attention when it's "lit up."

And let us discuss for a minute the medicinal value of whisky. Some scientists claim that whisky is both food and drink. But I'll go even further. To me at times it's even lodging. Ask any judge. Then again tastes in drink differ. Only the other day I asked one of our best known judges whether he had ever tried beer and whisky mixed. He said: "No, but I've tried lots of people who have."

A man will do queer things when he is intoxicated. I remember while in a condition of alcoholic exhilaration I stopped a young lady on the street and offered her 5 cents for a kiss. She said: "What do you think my mouth is, a jitney bus?"

RIALTO.

Knapp and Murray:

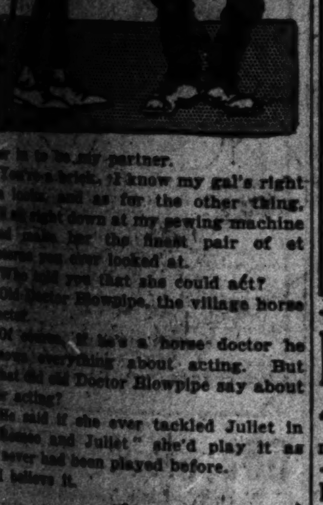
Can your daughter sing?

She's got a fine voice.

And dance?

Dance? Well I should say she can dance. The other night she kicked Squire Hardscroggle in the eye and he's nearly seven feet tall.

Tell you what I'll do. Send your little gal down here and if she sizes up right as looks, and et cetera, I'll break her in to be my partner.



You're a brick. I know my gal's right on looks, and as for the other thing, I'll sit right down at my sewing machine and make her the finest pair of et ceteras you ever looked at.

Who told you that she could act?

Old Doctor Blowpipe, the village horse doctor.

Of course, if he's a horse doctor he knows everything about acting. But what did old Doctor Blowpipe say about her acting?

He said if she ever tackled Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet" she'd play it as it never had been played before.

I believe it.

McVICKER'S.

Jackson and Wohl:

I understand you're looking for a donkey. I've got one for sale.

I bought one yesterday, but I may want another soon.

Well, any time you want a first class donkey don't forget me.

Your ears ain't quite long enough.

You're the biggest ignoramus I ever saw.

Look in the glass and you'll see a bigger one.

You think you're smart, don't you?

AUTOMOBILES Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER MOTORCYCLES

Canada Tours Are O. K., But You'll Need Credentials

SINCE the United States' entry into the war the impression has been gained in many parts of the country that Americans as tourists are no longer welcome in Canada. Being situated at a much used point of entry into the neighboring dominion, the Detroit Automobile club has been receiving several hundred inquiries a week on the subject, and by way of answering them Capt. W. S. Gilbreath, manager of the club, has gathered some first hand information from Canadian officials.

W. W. Scott, superintendent of immigration at Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"American tourists are welcome this year in Canada as in previous years. Bona fide tourists, being citizens of allied or neutral countries, may enter Canada without a passport and leave without a permit. They are assured courteous treatment at all times. Citizens or subjects of an enemy country may not enter Canada. Persons born in an enemy country, but naturalized in the United States or in some other allied or neutral country, should carry their naturalization papers. Persons of evident enemy origin, but who claim to have been born in the United States or in some allied or neutral country, should carry a birth certificate or some other evidence of their birthplace. Males of United States registration age (21 to 30 years inclusive) are not encouraged to enter Canada without some document showing that they are permitted to leave the United States."

T. C. Ray of Windsor, Ont., secretary of the Border chamber of commerce, has furnished the following information regarding the entry of automobiles:

"Upon arrival of an automobile in Canada the owner must show a license card or permit issued by his home secretary of state. If he desires to remain in Canada twenty-four hours this card is taken up and held until his return. He must leave at the point he entered Canada.

"If he desires to remain in Canada longer than twenty-four hours there is issued to him a thirty day bond or permit, which must be canceled by a Canadian customs officer when the machine leaves Canada. He may leave from any port. If the tourist desires to remain longer than thirty days, he must obtain what is known as a guarantee bond, good for six months, issued at the port of entry. This also is canceled upon his leaving Canada. In addition the tourist must obtain an Ontario license.

"Should the tourist come from a state having a reciprocal agreement with Ontario, his license will be good for twenty-four hours, also for thirty days, but if he is to stay longer he must obtain an Ontario license. These states have a reciprocal agreement: Kentucky, New York, Maine, Vermont, Connecticut, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, New Jersey, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Missouri, Tennessee, and the District of Columbia."

Business as Usual.

During May the Ford Motor company built 83,816 cars, averaging 3,216 a day, or better than two a minute. May 19 was the biggest day of the month, when the output reached 3,488 cars. On June 14 the two millionth model T Ford engine was built.

The Willys-Overland company, the second largest producer of motor vehicles, in May manufactured 16,015 cars. For the first six months of the year the production will doubtless have reached 100,000 cars.

The Maxwell Motor company produced and shipped 10,000 cars during May, a new record. On several days the shipments reached 500, the record daily output, however, being 626 cars.

Doing Their Bit.

The board of governors of the Automobile Club of Philadelphia has adopted a resolution remitting the dues of all members of the club while absent in the service of Uncle Sam.

MILADY DRIVES—A TRUCK

Which Would Indicate There's Nothing Chicago Women Won't Do for Uncle Sam.

Miss Merwyn Shenton is Chicago's first woman truck driver. She is one of the emergency drivers enlisted in the woman's section of the Navy league and, of course, hasn't had much experience in piloting commercial vehicles. But when some one was needed to navigate the cumbersome conveyance that was called into service the other day Miss Shenton promptly volunteered and has been on the job ever since. The truck is on military duty; further particulars are withheld by the censor.

The EXPERTS SAY —

How many automobilists are there who ever remove their rims from the wheels until forced to do so by reason of tire trouble? Very few, is the answer. If they did take the rims off after having run the car for a short time and use a little graphite in between the wheel and the demountable rim, they'd find tire changing easier later on. As it is, the rims are sometimes so rusted and plastered on that they take an unconscionable time to remove when the need finally does arrive.

Rainstorms serve their own purpose for the canny motorist. One automobilist without a supply of distilled water handy managed last week to catch a pitcher full of rain water and with it replenished his thirsty battery. If it rains once a week this summer he's going to keep his battery up to the mark.

After the car has been used for a considerable length of time, it is likely that the surfaces of the pedals will have become worn quite smooth. Their use may, under such condition, involve a certain amount of risk, in that should sudden pressure be applied, the foot may slip off sideways. This condition can be easily remedied by removing the pedals from the car and roughing the surfaces by a series of punch marks. The pedal is clamped in a vise and after covering the surface with chalk, a number of diagonal lines are drawn and at each intersection of the lines a punch mark is made with a diamond-nosed chisel and hammer.

Test the mixture occasionally by observing the flame at the relief valves. Open one at a time while the engine is running and note color of flame. Correct mixture is shown by a bluish purple. Yellow shows rich mixture. A light blue, almost invisible, shows too much air. You can readily study these colors at a gas stove. Cut down the gas and open the air, a light blue color is shown. Cut down the air and turn on the gas: a red color, verging on yellow; sometimes with smoke, shows rich mixture. Where wrong mixture occurs in the carbureter, be sure you understand the adjustment before making any changes. Frequently a man starts to adjust a carburetor when it does not need it. Other signs of lean mixture are popping back at carbureter and weak power. Other indications of rich mixture are pungent odor, black smoke, and a jerky action of the engine due to missing explosions.

The Quality Goes Clear Through

DORT

This Test Talks

The course was from Los Angeles, Cal., to Camp Curry in the Yosemite National Park—a distance of 370 miles over grilling mountain routes and under a burning summer sun.

Fourteen makes of cars competed—each boasting unusually economical operation—AND THE DORT BEAT THEM ALL BY A COMFORTABLE MARGIN.

The record of this cup-winning Dort—a regular standard car—was 25.96 miles per gallon of gasoline—nearly 26 miles per gallon.

Not only pin-money cost of operation, but unusually good looks, comfort, power in plenty, sturdiness and long life, characterize the Dort.

Executives and Managers.

EXECUTIVE OR SALESMAN

For eight years I have been employed by a company of international reputation; first as salesman, and then as branch manager, having in charge a large sales and service organization covering Chicago and adjacent territory. In closing contracts for my company I have made surveys of the accounting methods of hundreds of concerns throughout the country. I have been successful far beyond the average in this particular field, and if my compensation had been figured on a commission basis I would have earned upwards of ten thousand dollars per year, nearly twice the amount of my salary. I have an excellent knowledge of modern accounting methods and my ability as a salesman has been established by an enviable record. I am 34 years of age, married, and of temperate habits. I have a wide acquaintance among Chicago business men whose confidence and respect I enjoy. I have had many offers from competing companies, but have remained loyal to my employers who now offer me a contract for the ensuing year. I recognize that the opportunity for advancement in this field is limited and have determined to seek other connections where a more promising future is offered. I can substantiate my claims and furnish exceptional indorsements. Address C K 224, Tribune.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

SALESMEN—DUE TO CONDITIONS over which they have no control, there are a great many salesmen making from 25 to 50 per cent of what they have been accustomed to earn, or out of work entirely. In some cases their mills are sold to capacity two years ahead or entirely shut down for lack of raw material.

We want three of the very best of these men—men accustomed to earning from five to six thousand dollars a year. We want to put these men out as salesmen for a short time in a position where they will earn as much if not more than they have been accustomed to get; then use their broad general knowledge of salesmanship in handling other salesmen. These positions should net a splendid income to the right men, because we will develop what latent managerial ability they have and make a portion of their income dependent upon the results they can obtain from the salesmen under them.

You will be closely scrutinized, first as to appearance, then when you meet me your education, past record and ability will be gone into most searchingly and you must give evidence of selling ability. In other words, you will not be hired until you have actually sold us.

If you are one of the three real salesmen we need, come and sell us. There will be many who try and only three chosen.

916 MANHATTAN BLDG.

SALESMEN—CHICAGO FINANCIAL HOUSE has openings for educated, alert, forceful young men over 25.

Brains, enthusiasm, energy, courage are the attributes we seek rather than extensive prior experience.

For the right man we have a pleasant, permanent, and highly profitable position in Chicago with exceptional advancement opportunities.

As remuneration is on purely commission basis, those desiring to make application will save time by self-analysis.

If you have confidence in your ability to do what is being done by other men—just the ordinary type of clean cut, intelligent, ambitious fellows—we need you to fill a man's size job like they have. Address with phone number D N 533, Tribune.

SALESMEN — WE WANT SALESMEN WHO can be developed into excellent managerial positions. A connection with this organization will assure you of earnings of $50 or more weekly. A REAL OPPORTUNITY.

The requirements are a little unusual, but so is the job, and the man who can measure up to it will have an opportunity for development limited only by his own ability. The man we are looking for should be a judge of human nature, acquired by personal sales experience; he must also have had office experience, including preferably sales correspondence work; he must not have so exalted an opinion of himself but that he will be willing to take instructions and learn the details by actually digging, which may prepare him for the more important duties ahead; must possess faculty of handling men. He will probably be from 25 to 35 years of age to receive consideration. Your application must contain information that will enable us to judge your ability and fitness for the position. Salary commensurate. Address D K 228, Tribune.

MARRIED MEN.

We can use a few men for general work in our shipping and stock rooms; married men, 30 to 40 yrs., preferred; no experience necessary; steady employment for reliable men. Hours, 8 to 5:30; Saturdays, 1 p. m.

BUTLER BROTHERS,

A LITTLE AMBITION

MANY A FARMER BOY would be better off if he had stuck by the farm. The young man from the country often has to accept a menial position in the industrial life of the city. Driving a trolley car in the city is by no means so independent or rewarding a pursuit as that of the young farmer who hauls his load of milk to the nearby station. In the city he finds to his great delight that he is getting more wages than ever before, but soon discovers that he is in the grip of high prices and that everything he uses he has to buy, with net results in actual dollars saved in favor of the country.

INDEPENDENCE, MOREOVER, is enjoyed by the farmer more than by the city man. The farmer has a profitable business of his own. Most city men work for some one else.

NOR DOES THE FARM RENTER progress so fast as a farm owner. He has to pay a large portion of his profits to the land owner for rent. It is the owner who gets ahead fastest. Now is the time to investigate. You can see the growing crops and talk to the farmers.

I AM MAKING IT POSSIBLE for any one with just a little ambition to own a farm. My lands, in Michigan's Fruit and Clover Belt, sell for $15 to $35 per acre. 10, 20, 40, 80, 160 acre tracts; more than 50,000 acres to select from. You can buy on small monthly payments. The lands are located near good market towns, schools, etc. The soil produces good clover, rye, oats, wheat, buckwheat, ninety day corn, vetch, potatoes, beans, and all root crops. Poultry, cattle, sheep, hogs, pay well here. In the production of its apples, pears, plums, and cherries, Michigan is one of the leading states. I employ agricultural advisers to show new settlers the best methods of farming for our district. In buying from me you have many advantages that you could not get anywhere else.

INQUIRE ABOUT the feature in my contracts which insures your life while you are purchasing the farm.

NEXT EXCURSION to the lands occurs Tuesday, July 24th. PRIVATE CARS. Round trip from Chicago, $11.75; fare from Toledo, $10.80. Board and lodging $1.50 per day extra; gone two days; automobiles furnished free. Accommodations for both men and women. Offices remain open Monday evening and Saturday afternoon.

George Swigart, Owner,
1247 FIRST NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

IF YOU HAVE SOME READY CASH I RECOMMEND TO YOU ONE OF OUR FINE IMPROVED FARMS IN SOUTHERN MICHIGAN about 125 miles from Chicago, and 75 miles south of Grand Rapids, of which we have more than fifty to offer. These farms are in a high state of cultivation, with fine buildings, on fine roads, and near good market towns. The soil is as good and will grow as good corn, oats, or any other crop as can be grown on Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, or Ohio farms, and can be bought at about half the price that similar farms are selling for in the states mentioned. This condition cannot last long. They range in size from 20 acres up to several hundred. Some of them can be had stocked with horses, cattle, farm machinery, crops in the ground, etc., ready to take hold of once. These farms have been carefully selected for their high quality and bargain prices. We consider the opportunity here to purchase a first class improved farm is not equaled anywhere in the U. S. If you are interested in them, write for our improved farm booklet, giving full descriptions.

THE much talked of public bathing beach, which will extend from Seventy-fifth to Seventy-ninth streets, is about to become a reality. Out of a frontage that extends along the shore for about five-eighths of a mile, only 237 feet have not yet been acquired by the city, and the right to this tract will be settled through condemnation proceedings. The beach, when finished, will represent an investment of $1,000,000 and the claim is made that it will be the finest bathing spot in the world.

"The new beach will have no equal in this country," said T. R. Daly, superintendent of beaches and natatoriums, "and that means that you cannot find anything better anywhere. Clarendon beach has been the best in the country so far, but this one will be much bigger and better."

Tract Extended.

If Seventy-ninth street ran straight east to the lake the new beach would be almost exactly one-half mile in length, but it swerves to the south, thus extending the tract that will be available for bathers.

The old Columbia beach property at Seventy-sixth street will be taken over within a short time and this will be used by the city for the temporary accommodation of bathers during the remainder of the present season. The Manhattan beach buildings at the foot of Seventy-fifth street will be torn down, as they are considered dangerous. Cheltenham beach, which was once a favorite spot for bathing, and Rocky Ledge beach are also included in the purchases by the city. The entire stretch of beach is ranked as the best in the city.

Final plans call for the conversion of Rocky Ledge beach into a play spot for children, and it is ideal for the purpose. At this point it is possible to wade out 300 feet before a depth of four feet is reached. It is the finest little stretch of beach along the shore. Many things that will interest the little ones will be installed and the present beach will be extended.

Land purchases alone for the beach have involved the expenditure of close to $500,000. It will be necessary to obtain a new bond issue before the work of remaking the beach can be started.

Building Open Year Round.

A novel feature will be that the new building to be put up between Seventy-sixth and Seventy-seventh streets will be open the year round. At Seventy-fifth street there will be a dining room and pavilion, at the spot where it was the original intention to have a skating pond.

The winter features will consist of a gymnasium, a swimming pool, and a recreation center, with other attractions. Water in the tank will be warmed so that it can be used at any time. There will be 15,000 lockers for the bathers who can roam for more than half a mile.

Playgrounds will be provided and there will be a considerable number of tracts that will be parked. The tract that will be used for these purposes extends from the shore to the alley between Bond avenue and what would be Lake Park avenue if it were extended. About half of Lake Park avenue has been washed away at this point. Retaining piers are to be built so that the wash from the lake will be caught. It is likely that more sand will be pumped in from the lake so as to build up the beach at various points.

Special Train to Carry Chicagoans to Milwaukee

Members of the Chicago real estate board who are going to the convention of the national association at Milwaukee, will travel in a special train of parlor cars over the Northwestern line. They will leave at 5:15 tomorrow evening. Visiting delegates will be entertained tomorrow by the Chicago real estate board.

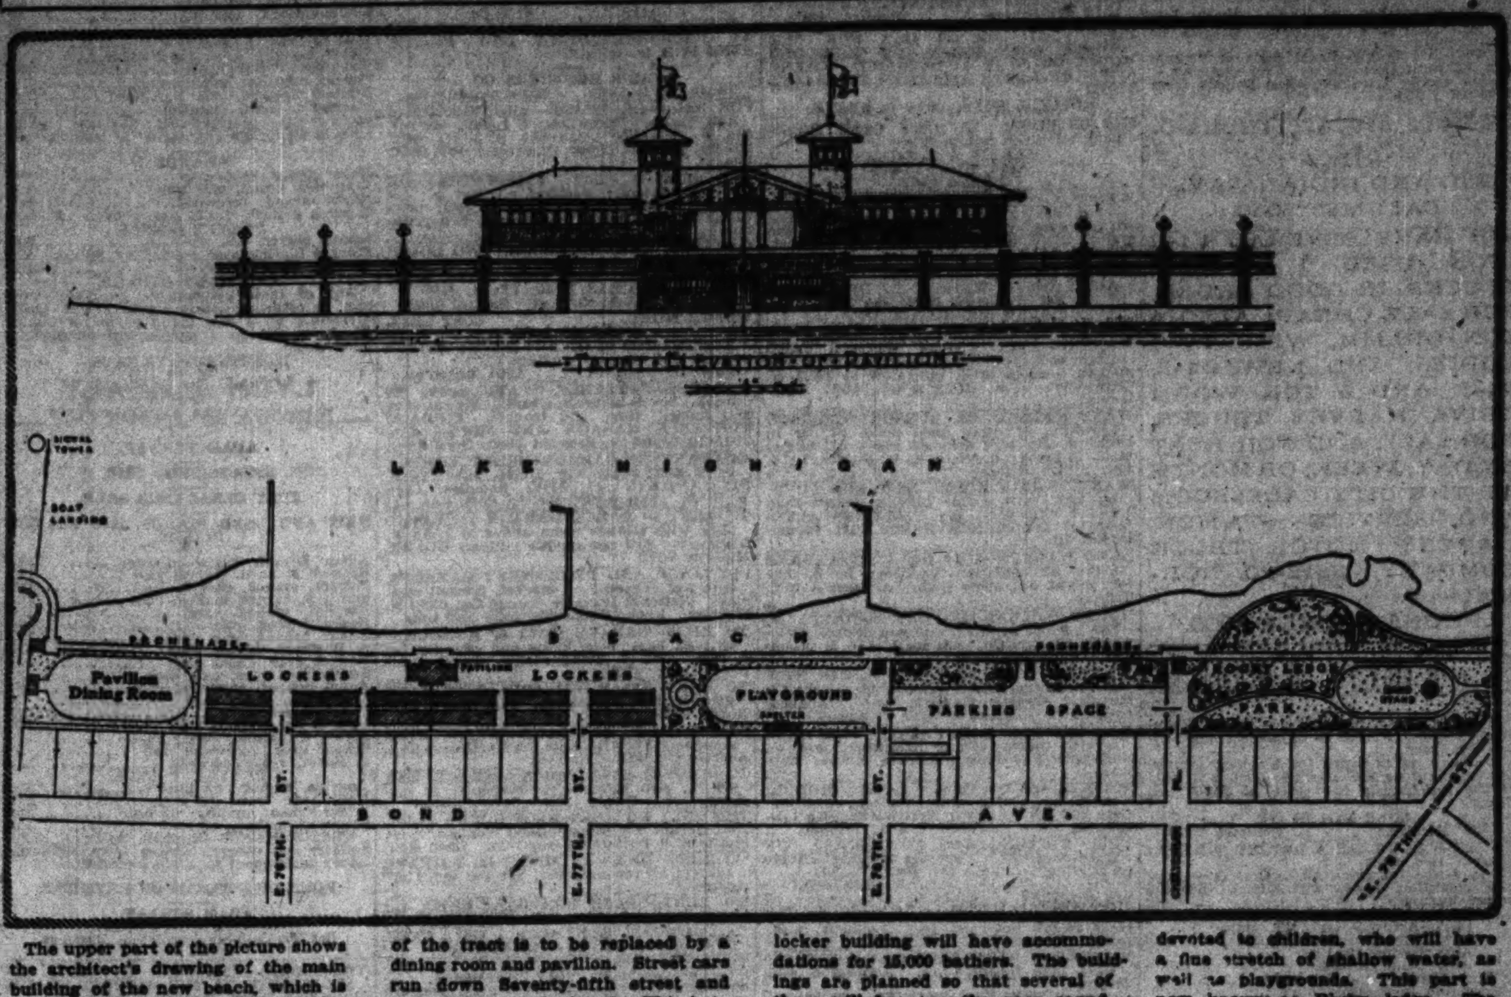
Oak Park to Have New Apartment Building

A large apartment building is to be put up at the southeast corner of Washington boulevard and Scoville avenue, Oak Park. This corner has just been sold by Edward F. Walins to P. J. McLaughlin for $10,000 cash. Jackson Brothers were the brokers.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST BATHING BEACH

Architect's Drawing Shows Main Building of New Recreation Center on South Side.



The upper part of the picture shows the architect's drawing of the main building of the new beach, which is to extend from Seventy-fifth to Seventy-ninth street. Since the drawing was made a change has been decided upon in laying out the grounds. The skating pond at the north end of the tract is to be replaced by a dining room and pavilion. Street cars run down Seventy-fifth street and make a loop at the beach. This is to remain for the time being.

The main building will be between Seventy-sixth and Seventy-seventh streets. It will be two stories. The locker building will have accommodations for 15,000 bathers. The buildings are planned so that several of them will be open the year round. In winter there will be a swimming tank with warm water, a gymnasium, and a recreation center.

The south end of the beach will be devoted to children, who will have a fine stretch of shallow water, as well as playgrounds. This part is now known as Rocky ledge. The total cost of the improvements will be about $500,000, and it is expected that the beach will become one of Chicago's greatest attractions.

NEGROES SOLVE OWN HOUSING PROBLEM IN N. Y.

Syndicate Buys Big Modern Flat Buildings.

The problem of how to house the Negro population is being solved in New York in an unexpected way and by the colored people themselves. A syndicate of Negroes, organized by a real estate man of their own race, has just bought six fine apartment houses in Harlem, on One Hundred and Forty-first and One Hundred and Forty-second streets, Lenox and Seventh avenues, at a cost of about $1,350,000.

These buildings are about 5 years old and contain practically every modern convenience. There are elevators, electric, gas, and telephone service, as well as United States mail chutes. The apartments have hardwood trim, with parquet floors.

Buildings Have 306 Suites.

There are tile baths, with showers, and pedestaled lavatories. Both the baths and kitchens are supplied with open, nickel plated plumbing and porcelain fixtures. The dining rooms have French doors, with Florentine glass. There is plenty of closet space and other conveniences.

These buildings contain 306 suites, of from four to seven rooms each. The rent is about $10 a room. The total rents will be $150,000 annually, and it is claimed that every apartment will be taken.

Those who are backing the deal say it is a mistake to think that the Negroes, in New York at least, cannot pay these rents. The figures, however, are the highest ever paid in the east by this class of tenants and the buildings are the best ever devoted to such uses in New York.

Confident of Good Returns.

It is doubtful if better buildings are used by Negro tenants anywhere in the country. The men who are backing the venture say they are not actuated by philanthropic motives, but are confident they will get good returns on the investment.

The Harlem district is said to have a Negro population of 49,000. There are a few white tenants in the buildings whose leases will soon expire. The district had been invaded by Negro tenants some time ago, but the difficulty has been solved by the purchase.

Creditors to Get $16,500 Tananevicz Real Estate

At an auction sale of realty belonging to John M. Tananevicz, bankrupt, under the direction of the Central Trust company, seven parcels of property were sold for $36,500. Frank J. Randack and Maurice Goldstein were the purchasers.

The property included ten lots on West Thirty-third street, east of Paulina street, each 24x121.67 feet; a frame cottage at 3202 South Ashland avenue, 30x154 feet; a frame cottage at 3204 South Ashland avenue, 80x154 feet; the northeast corner of Artesian avenue and Sixty-ninth street, 25.63x125 feet; the bank property at 3249 to 3253 South Morgan street, 60x118 feet, improved with a three story bank building; a dwelling at 3512 Wallace street, 24x123.6 feet, and a two story brick building at 3309 South Morgan street.

The only incumbrance was for $20,000 against the bank property. This leaves $16,500 which will go to the creditors.

New $150,000 Factory for Fullerton and Racine

A new factory that will cost $150,000 is being built for O. N. Tevander, president of the Standard Cap and Seal company, at the northeast corner of Fullerton and Racine avenues. The building will be 100x160 feet. Davidson & Weiss are the architects. There will be both passenger and freight elevators and an interior inclosed shipping court.

Leases and Loans.

A NUMBER of leases were closed up during the week. Sears, Roebuck & Co. have leased from Frances Isham Shelton and Edward S. Isham the eight story building at 1139-41 South Wabash avenue, through Paul C. Loeber & Co. The lease is for two years from Aug. 1 at a total rent of $28,000. The building was occupied for many years by the Henneberry company.

The Eastern Metal Refining company has leased the property at Fortieth street, lying between Fifth avenue and Princeton, on the Chicago and Junction railroad, comprising in all about 80,000 square feet. Rent for the term of twenty years, about $100,000. It is the intention of the leasing company to make extensive alterations, such as a smelter and other improvements used in connection with its business, at a cost of about $20,000. Seymour Marks was the broker.

George P. Chiagouris & Co. have rented for Meyer Bros., to George Apostol, the store at 413 N. Clark-st., for a term of ten years. The total rent is $31,000.

John R. Magill & Co. report the following leases recently closed by Ben K. Babbitt of their office:

For Samuel Rothschild to Schwartz & Neebe, the store 33 North Dearborn street for a term of years at a rent of $10,800, for restaurant purposes.

For Hall & Ellis, agents, to C. Von Holzbecke company, space on the sixth floor of the Stewart building for a term of years at a rent of $11,000, for photographic studio.

For Anna L. Sears to Herman, Mandis, Bogin & Jacobs, 1850 square feet of space on the corner of the second floor of the Sears building, 19 West Jackson boulevard for a term of years at a rent of $12,000, for retail clothing.

For Converse Rubber Shoe company, to Rusteberg & Smith, the entire fifth floor of the Converse building, 618-626 West Jackson boulevard for a term of years at a rent of $10,800, for manufacture of kerosene garage heating systems.

For Asa G. Chandler Jr., to Stadler Photographing company, the entire tenth floor of the Coca Cola building, 1322-1330 Wabash avenue, for a term of years at a rent of $45,000, for commercial photography.

For W. W. Harless, conservator, to Wong Po Chin, the four story building, 418-420 South Clark street, for a term of years at a rent of $15,000, for wholesaling and retailing of Chinese merchandise.

For Anna L. Sears to N. E. McBurney, the bank floor, 27 West Washington street, in the Portland block, for a term of years at a rent of $5,000, for coffee shop.

James B. Hood has obtained a loan of $50,000, for five years at 5½ per cent, through the Central Trust company. The property is at 2006-10 Osgood street and 1034-58 Center street.

The National Brewing company has obtained a loan of $60,000 for five years at 6 per cent, the Chicago Title and Trust company being trustee. The security consists of the brewery property at the northeast corner of Wallace and Fortieth streets, 237x302 feet.

Ida W. Heisen has obtained a loan of $100,000, for seven years at 6 per cent on the Carroll building at the southeast corner of Carroll avenue and Union Park court. Greenebaum Sons Bank & Trust company is trustee.

The Hibernian Banking association is trustee for a loan of $65,000, for five years at 4½ per cent, to the Catholic Bishop of Chicago. The property is at the southwest corner of East avenue and Lake street, Oak Park.

LOTS SOLD IN NEW SUBDIVISION IN HIGGINS ROAD

A number of lots have been sold in the new subdivision which has been opened by McCollam & Co. in their Norwood Park subdivision. This subdivision is on the new automobile thoroughfare, the Higgins road, which was built by the state and will be opened today. This is the shortest route to Elgin and a number of resorts and runs through Norwood Park, Park Ridge, and Desplaines to Dundee.

ASK A STAY IN ENFORCING OF THE SMOKE LAW

Realty Board Appeals to State Council of Defense.

The following plea for a stay in enforcement of prosecutions for violations of the smoke ordinances has been sent to the state council of defense by Adolph F. Kramer, chairman of the renting and apartment buildings committee of the Chicago real estate board:

"The greater portion of heating plants of apartments in Chicago are equipped for burning Pocahontas or other smokeless bituminous coal, the high price and scarcity of which places the owners and agents of these buildings in a precarious situation. Either they must pay the price demanded for this coal or equip their furnaces with one of the various so-called smoke consuming devices now on the market, or face a prosecution for violation of the smoke ordinance.

Threat of Prosecution.

"Letters are being sent out by the bureau of smoke prevention in the city of Chicago to owners and agents of apartment buildings, that unless one of several devices is installed within their furnaces before Aug. 1, 1917, or a guarantee that Pocahontas coal will be used, prosecutions for violation of the smoke ordinance will be pushed vigorously and immediately thereafter.

"A number of our members have conferred with experts on smoke prevention, and we are informed there is not a device on the market at the present time that can be attached to a furnace already installed that will consume any part of the smoke without materially reducing the heating capacity of the boiler. All of the so-called smoke consuming devices recommended by the bureau of smoke prevention consist of a brick wall dividing the fire box into two parts. The first division of which is for the receptacle of coal, the second for the bed of fire over which smoke must pass before leaving the smokestack. It is self-evident that the fire pot cannot be divided into two parts without reducing the capacity of the boiler.

"None Proved Success."

"The writer of this was informed a number of owners who installed these devices last fall were compelled later on to take same out in order to heat their buildings. We wish it clearly understood in addressing you upon this subject we do not wish to discredit the smoke prevention bureau or to cast any reflection upon same, for we believe they are honest in their intentions, but are misled as to the devices on the market at the present time. We also wish it clearly understood that if any of the so-called smoke prevention devices prove satisfactory, we will recommend owners to install them. We take the position at this time that as none of the so-called smoke prevention devices have been proved a success, we should be given time this winter to experiment and not be obliged to install them regardless of whether they are serviceable or not.

"In view of the unusual conditions confronting owners and agents of apartment buildings, we must respectfully petition your honorable body that under the power conferred upon you, you notify, the smoke prevention bureau to suspend prosecutions for violation of the smoke ordinances until the end of the war, or until such time as the price of Pocahontas or other smokeless coal shall become normal."

FRAUD CHARGED IN 3 BANKRUPTCY ACTIONS FILED

Removal and concealment of assets, to defraud creditors, are charges made in three involuntary petitions in bankruptcy filed yesterday in the United States District court.

The National Plumbing and Heating company filed a petition to have E. Stevenson, a plumber, adjudged bankrupt, alleging Stevenson had concealed the greater part of $14,000 worth of goods sold to him by the petitioning creditor. He is said to be in debt to the extent of from $15,000 to $20,000.

Ross B. Morse, doing business as the Morse Printing company, 3541 West Chicago avenue, is alleged to have concealed assets to defraud the J. W. Butler Paper company and other creditors. The Butler company filed the petition, citing a claim for $1,095.49.

Samuel Saper, who was in the general merchandise business at 1041 West Taylor street, is alleged to have concealed goods to defraud Samuel Phillipson & Co. and other creditors.

Improvements Planned for Boulevard Building

Numerous improvements are said to be planned for the building at 227-229 West Washington, the leasehold of which has just been purchased by Oscar C. Hagen from Samuel Messinger. The lot is 40.5x90.5 feet. The land is owned by John B. Adams and the lease to Mr. Messinger was granted in 1907. It is for ninety-nine years. The board of review valued the property at $101,005.

REALTY DEALS OF BRANSFIELD AND M'FARLAND

More Figures by the Receiver on Their Operations.

A partial list of the real estate transactions of Bransfield & McFarland, the Auburn Park real estate operators, who failed recently, was printed in THE TRIBUNE last Sunday. During the week considerable progress has been made by the Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company, which is receiver for the real estate interests of the firm and has been looking up its holdings.

This firm operated extensively in real estate on the south side and also controlled the Auburn State bank, the Morgan Park bank, the Drexel Motor Car corporation, the Bransfield-Billings Piano Action company of Saginaw, Mich., and a fire insurance company. The failure of the two banks necessitated closing up of the other interests and several receivers have been appointed.

Further Figures on Realty.

Further figures gathered by the receiver for the real estate interests of the firm follow. The values given are what representatives of the receiver consider a fair figure:

Southwest corner of Eighty-first and Elizabeth streets, eight flat building; value, about $22,000; first mortgage, $15,000; second mortgage, $1,500; third mortgage, $7,500.

Southeast corner of Eightieth and Elizabeth streets, eight flat building; value, about $22,000; first mortgage, $15,000; second mortgage, $2,500; third mortgage, $10,000.

Southwest corner of Seventy-sixth street and Vernon avenue, eight flat building; value about $24,000; first mortgage, $15,000; second mortgage, $600; third mortgage, $3,500.

8023 South Sangamon street, two flat building; value, about $8,000; first mortgage, $4,000; second mortgage, $100; third mortgage, $3,500.

7436 Bennett avenue, two flat building; value, about $8,500; first mortgage, $5,000; second mortgage, $3,500.

9035 East Seventy-third street, four flat building; value, about $13,000; first mortgage, $9,000; second mortgage, $1,150; third mortgage, $7,000.

Southeast corner of Seventy-sixth and Peoria streets, flat building; value, about $35,000; first mortgage, $25,000; second mortgage, $4,000; third mortgage, $10,000.

Southwest corner of Seventy-fifth and Green streets, twelve flat building; value, about $35,000; first mortgage, $25,000; second mortgage, $4,000; third mortgage, $10,000.

Stores, Offices, Flats.

Southwest corner Seventy-ninth and Green streets, stores, offices, and flats, value about $45,000; first mortgage $28,000, second mortgage $65,000.

Southeast corner Eightieth and Aberdeen streets, four flat building, value about $12,500; first mortgage $6,000, second mortgage $4,500, third mortgage $5,000.

8045 Kimbark avenue, brick residence, value about $2,500; first mortgage $2,500.

7443-4 Bennett avenue, four flat building, value about $13,000; first mortgage $9,000, second mortgage $5,000.

1320 West Seventy-ninth street, two story brick store and flat building, value about $6,500; first mortgage $3,500, second mortgage $575, third mortgage $5,000.

Northwest corner Seventy-third and Halsted streets, store and two flats, value about $12,000; first mortgage $5,500, second mortgage $3,500, third mortgage $5,000.

Northeast corner Eightieth street and Emerald avenue, twelve flat building, value about $32,000; first mortgage $20,000, second mortgage $4,000, third mortgage $10,000.

413-15-17-19 Cicero avenue, four stores and four flats, value about $32,000; first mortgage $16,500, second mortgage $10,000.

Blanket Mortgage.

7916-20 South Halsted street, store and two flats, value about $32,000; first mortgage $20,000, second mortgage $65,000. [The second incumbrance is a blanket mortgage covering other property.]

Northwest corner Forty-sixth street and Woodlawn avenue, fifteen flat building, value about $115,000; first mortgage $85,000, second mortgage $65,000. [Other property is included in the $65,000.]

Northwest corner Fifty-fifth street and Michigan boulevard, eighteen flat building; first mortgage $75,000, second mortgage $8,500, third mortgage $20,000. The value is estimated as about equal to the incumbrances.

Northeast corner Seventy-third street and Blackstone avenue, ten flat building, value about $25,000; first mortgage $16,500, second mortgage $1,745, third mortgage $10,000.

Northwest corner Seventy-second street and Yates avenue, twelve flat building, value about $40,000; first mortgage $29,000, second mortgage $20,000.

7130, 7140 and 7150 Yates avenue, each improved with a three flat building and valued at about $17,000. Against each place there is a first mortgage for $10,000 and a second for $7,500.

Why They Were Possible.

As was pointed out last week, these unusual operations were possible only because of the banking connections of the firm. The Chicago Title and Trust company as receiver for the banks reported that the Auburn State bank held considerable amounts of second and third mortgages among its assets.

Annual Outing of County Realty Board to Be Aug. 15

The annual outing of the Cook county real estate board has been set for Aug. 15. The steamer Theodore Roosevelt has been chartered for a trip to Michigan City and return. It is expected that upward of 1,500 will take the trip.

[illegible]	.76½	1914...	1.21	.76½
[illegible]	.84	1913...	.93⅝	.84⅝

Corn futures were strong early but [illegible] later and closed fractionally [illegible] for September and ⅛@¼c lower for the deferred months. There was good commission house demand at the [illegible], influenced by the strength at [illegible] markets, but the bulge brought on free selling and prices receded. Block-Maloney, Bartlett-Frazier, [illegible]-Winthrop, and Armour were [illegible] sellers. Longs were disposed to take profits and there was much evening up. Local sentiment was more bearish despite the remarkable strength in cash corn, because of the more favorable weather conditions over the belt. The high temperatures in central and [illegible] portions of the belt will prove of great aid to the crop because of its [illegible].

Cash corn was 4@10c higher, with No. 2 white reaching a new top of $2.20. Country offerings continue light and there is no limit to the demand. Sale of new corn for December shipment was reported at [illegible] under December price. Primary receipts were 606,000 bu, compared with 572,000 bu a year ago.

Oats Irregular at Close.

Oats were irregular at the close, but displayed much strength during the early part of the session. July finished [illegible] higher, while September was unchanged to ¼c lower and December ¼c higher. There was a great deal of covering by shorts, also much selling for profit on the bulges. Apparently the short interest in July oats is now pretty well evened, as the late demand was not as good as early. The offerings of new crop cash oats from the country were larger, shipment during August and September. More complaints of dry weather came from Canada, but generally the crop news was favorable and harvesting is progressing rapidly with big yields returned.

Cash oats were 3@5c higher and local shipping sales of 10,000 bu were reported. Because of the high price of corn there is much substitution of oats by feeders. Supplies continue light. Primary markets received 654,000 bu oats, against 801,000 bu a year ago. Seaboard clearances for the day were 589,000 bu.

Wheat Mart Still Higher.

Wheat closed 5c higher for July and 9¾c higher for September, with shorts covering. New wheat in the southwest is commanding good prices, and the offerings are not large. Weather in the spring wheat belt was generally hot and dry, and rain is needed over a wide area. Canadian advices reported that the maximum price of $2.40 had been fixed, basis No. 1 northern in store at Fort William. Winter wheat is being harvested under favorable conditions. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 286,000 bu, compared with 1,436,000 bu a year ago. Primary receipts were [illegible] bu, against 1,433,000 bu a year ago.

Provisions were materially higher, chiefly in sympathy with a sharp advance in Liverpool meats. Shorts and commission houses did the buying, and the offerings were light. Hog receipts were under expectations, and higher prices prevailed at the yards. Liverpool [illegible] was [illegible] 6d higher, while hams and lard were 6d higher. Hog receipts at western markets for the week totaled [illegible] head, compared with 490,000 last week and 422,000 a year ago.

Big Gain in Rye.

Rye was sharply higher. Cash No. 2 sold at [illegible] and No. 3 at $2.17. Receipts were 3 cars.

Barley was steady. Malting ranged from [illegible] to $1.60 and sold at $1.45. Feed and rejected ranged from $1.25 to [illegible] and sold at $1.30@1.40. Screenings ranged from 70c to $1.20 and sold at $1.00. Receipts were 14 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet. September closed [illegible] bid and $9.50 asked, October [illegible] bid and $9.00 asked, and March [illegible]. Country lots nominally $4.00@7.00. Clover seed was steady, with October $12.40 and cash lots $12.00@17.00.

GOSSIP OF THE PIT

The cash demand for corn shows no abatement. Offerings are no larger and the demand from distillers and industries continues, the price appearing to be no bar to heavy purchases. No. 2 white sold at the unprecedented price of $2.20 yesterday, and even at that price there was little offered. At the same time No. 2 yellow sold at $2.16½. Bulls in corn are of the opinion that these prices would call out offerings from the country if there was much corn to offer. Farmers do not appear to be willing to sell old corn with any uncertainty remaining in the prospects for the new crop. With good weather a change of attitude may result, but the surplus stocks are so small that little increase is expected in the movement for some time.

September wheat advanced more than the July yesterday, being up 9¾c, while the July advanced 5c. For the week July wheat has advanced 51c and the September about 32c. Northwest markets have led the advance and there has been covering by shorts. At no time has the volume of trade been large, the main factor being the limited offerings. It has taken but little buying to advance prices. New crop offerings are small, and on the other hand there is no buying demand for the cash, as usual at this season of the year, cash interests aside from the mills doing little buying owing to the uncertainty of developments at Washington.

Local sentiment in oats appears to have crystallized on the bull side of the market. There was a good deal of profit taking at the end of the week, but prices were not much changed for the deferred months and the July was higher yesterday. The exhaustion of old crop supplies appears to have been pretty well accomplished, contrary to the indications of a few weeks ago. The cash prices for corn, indicating a scarcity of that cereal, have created the belief that the demand for new crop oats will be unprecedented. The foreign requirements will be heavy, and this is expected to stimulate buying.

The board of grain supervisors of Canada have decided to establish a maximum price of wheat on the basis of No. 1 northern at Fort William at $2.40. This applies to the old crop of wheat, and will date from Aug. 1 until further notice. This price is much lower than prevailing prices for wheat at our northwest markets. Minneapolis July closed at $2.79 and Duluth July at $2.80. October wheat at Winnipeg closed at $2.28½. September wheat at Chicago closed at $2.27¾.

"The new crop corn futures, on the basis of a crop of 3,100,000,000 bu, are easily 30@40c too high, and the present promise is for a much larger crop," said I. C. Gifford. "Old corn, while nearly $1.00 over the new crop months, could easily decline 75c. if there should be anywhere near normal marketing of old corn, or 100,000,000 bu put on the markets in a reasonable time. Present prices are due to the fact that there is so little corn offering, and not because the demands are so extensive."

July oats sold up to 78⅝c yesterday and reacted to 77⅝c at the close. Bartlett-Frazier were free sellers during the day and there was some talk that the Grain Growers Grain company of Winnipeg had been selling July. The demand was from miscellaneous shorts. Offerings were easily absorbed early. Prices at the top were up about 7⅝c in two days. Local traders were the principal buyers of the deferred futures.

The case of Alonzo J. Cutler vs. C. W. Pardridge, which was carried up to the Appellate court, has been reversed by that tribunal and sent back to the lower court for new trial, the lower court having previously decided against the plaintiff. The case is one of twenty-five years' standing in the courts, and now involves about $150,000.

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 10 cars; corn, 72 cars; oats, 109 cars; rye, 3 cars; barley, 14 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 36,000 head, and for all next week, 135,000 head.

Cash oats were 3@5c higher, with few offerings. Local buyers took the offerings, which were light. Cash corn was quoted at 4@10c higher.

Temperatures in the grain belt the last day or so have been above the seasonal average in all sections, except the Ohio valley.

Advices to Crary-Johnson from Ohio said oats prospects were unusually good.

Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 80,000 bu for one day.

CHICAGO CURB QUOTATIONS

Midsummer dullness has characterized the local unlisted securities market, and little interest has been displayed on either the buying or selling side. Avery preferred changed hands at 99½, closing at 99 bid, offered at 99½, while the common sold at 90⅝. Emerson-Brantingham preferred showed slight improvement, from 41⅛ to 43½, closing at 42½ to 43. Deere preferred sold at 100¼, closing at 100 bid, offered at 101. Moline Plow preferred was wanted at 99¼.

The sugar group was a little easier, Michigan selling at 90⅝ and closing at 90 to 91. Holland-St. Louis was practically unchanged at 14½ bid, offered at 15¼, and Utah-Idaho at 10¼ to 10⅝.

Kellogg Switchboard and Supply was in demand at 280, with small lot offerings at 285. There were no reported sales in Inland Steel, the market closing 225 bid, offered at 228. Butler Bros. changed hands at 249, closing 246 to 249. Borden Condensed Milk was wanted at 107. There was some inquiry for American Hominy common around 51, with small lots offered at 53. Consumers common improved from 27½ to sales at 31⅛, while the preferred changed hands at 85½.

Motor securities remain quiet. Reo Motor Car sold as high as 26½ and closed at 25¾ bid, offered at 26¼. Paige-Detroit was rather neglected, with offerings at 27, and very little interest on the buying side. Continental Motors was fairly active between 6¼ and 6⅝. Byproducts was a trifle stronger, sales being made eat 164.

Public utilities showed very few changes. Cities Service common was traded in at 275 to 277 for the old stock and 29 to 29½ for the new when issued stock. The preferred, after selling from 84½ to 85½, closed in good demand at 85¾. American Public Utilities was in a little better demand at 66 bid. United Light common advanced from 39 to 41, closing 40½ bid, 41½ asked. Only 5,000 hogs were received at Chicago yesterday, and they sold at strong to 15c higher than on Friday, with the majority snowing a gain of 10c. Top sales were made at $15.60 and the bulk at $14.50@14.40. Packers took only small droves, but all leading firms were in the trade and shippers were credited with purchases of 1,500 head.

Final prices made hogs 15@50c lower than a week ago, with most grades showing a loss of 30@45c. Pigs were unchanged as compared with a week ago. Shipping demand this week has favored lightweight hogs and pigs, and they have sold to better advantage than the heavy and mixed weights. Average price for the week was placed at $14.95 against $15.15 last week.

CATTLE.

Beef cattle market closed the week on a firm basis, with prices 10c to 25c higher than a week ago. Prime beeves were quotable up to $14.05, a new open market record. Receipts this week showed a moderate increase, but the demand was aggressive and values were sustained on a strong basis, when it is customary at this time of the year to witness a declining movement of costs. A year ago best beeves were selling at $10.15. Cows, heifers, bulls, and calves accompanied steers in the advance, and in most instances showed even more gain.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 202,000, against 158,000 the preceding week, 152,000 a year ago, and 123,000 two years ago. Total for 1917 to date, 4,839,000, against 4,037,000 the same period in 1916.

SHEEP.

Sheep and lambs finished the week unchanged to 25c higher than a week ago. The market was in a strong position, with many of the best buyers here short in their orders. Total receipts for the week decreased around 5,000 head and included a large proportion direct to packers. General trade was of restricted volume, with holders having the best of the situation. Shipments were curtailed by the scarcity of desirable stock and the high prices. Lambs closed with the best quoted at $15.85, while sheep were quoted up to $9.25 for ewes.

Taking Profits and Taxing Them Too.

The investor is the "goat" more than ever before. While one branch of the government is engaged in fixing low prices for steel, oil, and various other products on which stockholders depend for dividends, another branch is arranging an elaborate scheme of taxation which shall take most of the profits that are left.

The war revenue bill, as gradually being amended, makes greater exactions on stockholders, imposing taxes that are cumulative and sometimes duplicate.

First, the progressive income tax levied on all corporations and individuals takes its heavy toll; second, the so-called excess profits tax takes a share of the remaining balance, and finally a new method has been devised for getting still more. The senate bill has a provision levying a tax of 15 per cent on all undistributed corporate earnings in the year 1917. The object of this evidently is to force corporations to pay out the year's surplus in dividends so that stockholders will have to schedule it for the imposition of the supertax.

Most of the revenue to be raised by the bill will come from investors, and a good share of it from people of moderate means. The great corporations, like the United States Steel, which nominally will pay the tax, are owned to a great extent by small investors.

Investors are patriotic and willing to do their share and more toward financing the war. The disquieting phase of the subject is the disposition to consider them fair prey and to attack their property from two sides at the same time.

Interstate Electric.

R. M. M.—The Interstate Electric corporation has outstanding $1,241,000 collateral trust bonds and $343,710 of underlying issues. The combined properties earned $649,497 gross in 1916 and $261,822 net. This covers the interest charges a little more than twice. The company controls utilities in a dozen small towns, located principally in Texas and Missouri, owning all the stock of subsidiaries except in the case of one company. The wide margin of earnings entitles the bonds to a fair rating. They are not so desirable as good first mortgage bonds.

Marconi Wireless of America.

D. A.—The Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America reported gross earnings less royalties in 1916 at $796,290, an increase of about 12 per cent. Operating expenses were $568,258. The year's surplus after allowances for depreciation was $259,829. This is about 3½ per cent on the capital stock. The company is controlled by Marconi's Wireless of England, and presumably the greater part of its receipts goes to the treasury of that company in the form of royalties. Under present conditions the stock is purely speculative.

American Linseed.

E. R. B.—The American Linseed company has been controlled by the Rockefellers for some years and its position has been improving steadily. The fiscal year ended Sept. 30. Last year 8.8 per cent was earned on preferred stock. No reports have been issued of earnings in the current year, but 3 per cent has been paid on preferred stock, being the first dividend for many years. The usual policy of companies under Rockefeller control is to accumulate a large surplus and pay large dividends from time to time. The stocks are suitable only for people who can afford to wait long for profits.

Chesapeake and Ohio.

C. D. M., Lincoln, Neb.—The $48,129,000 of 4½ per cent general mortgage bonds of the Chesapeake and Ohio are secured by first lien on 450 miles of road and by second mortgage on about 950 miles. They are junior to about $40,000,000 of bonds on the 950 miles. Earnings available to pay the interest in the year ended June 30, 1916, were almost three times the amount needed. The bonds are evidently well secured, but not of the highest grade. They are selling on a 5½ per cent basis.

Brief Answers.

J. L. S., Granville, Ill.—The Bankers' Accident Insurance company of Springfield, Ill., received $52,221 from members in 1916, paid $15,124 for claims, $20,397 to agents and examiners, and $19,528 for management expenses. Total disbursements exceeded receipts by $2,246. More business was done than in 1915, but expenses seem to be out of proportion to results.

G. O.—The Smith Motor Truck company has outstanding $1,400,000 of 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock in $100 shares and $10,000,000 common stock in $10 shares. Net earnings in 1916 were reported at $773,000 and in the first six months of 1917 (partly estimated) at over $900,000.

W. A.—Stock of the Tampico-Texas Oil company is purely speculative at present. It claims to own leases on oil lands in Mexico. In view of difficulties with the government, the oil business is doubly hazardous there.

—OIL— NEWS

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special.]—A vast amount of capital is being devoted to the formation of new oil and gas companies. Forty-four of these corporations took out charters in June, with an aggregate authorized capital stock of $72,625,000. In May $70,380,000 was involved in new oil and gas ventures. Since the beginning of the war $893,981,000 represents the amount of authorized capital of the 743 new corporations which have been formed in this period.

The Franklin Oil and Gas company of Cleveland has declared its regular semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent, payable Aug. 1. A profit sharing plan has been established by which employés will receive for the first half of 1917 a bonus equivalent to 5 per cent of their wages for that period.

In the first eleven months of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1917, exports from the United States of mineral oil amounted to nearly 2,500,000,000 gallons, valued at $203,759,792, as compared with 2,220,211,437 gallons, valued at $146,822,199, for the year 1916.

There is a rumor that the Tuxpah Star Oil corporation will shortly acquire an additional property with an oil well capable of producing ten thousand barrels a day. The officials of the company have been negotiating for this property for some time.

The Kentucky Petroleum Producing company of New York has filed a certificate at Dover, Del., amending its charter to increase its capital from $1,000,000 to $40,000,000.

It is reported in advices received from Texas that the Gulf Production company has taken over the holdings of the Margay Oil company in the Humble pool, paying $72,000 for the same. The property is on the north side of the river.

The Unalaska Oil company's No. 6 well, which came in last week flowing at the rate of 3,000 barrels, has now settled down to 1,500 barrels a day.

METALS.

NEW YORK, July 21.—COPPER—The copper market has been heavy all the week. Large producers are not offering and smaller dealers are naming considerably lower prices. Spot and nearby deliveries of electrolytic were quoted nominally $26.50@27.00, and August and later $23.00@26.50. IRON was unchanged.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 21.—LEAD—Quotable, nominally $10.92½@11.00. SPELTER—Dull, nominal at $8.50.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, July 21.—COTTON—Considerable irregularity was shown in the cotton market today, the early part of the session reflecting bull support and trade buying, with an advance at one time of 13 to 15 points over last night, while near the close a violent selling movement occurred which forced prices off 50 points from the highest, the market being finally irregular at a net loss of 37 to 50 points. The opening was steady at 10 points decline to 10 advance. Fall River sales of print cloths for the week were 100,000 pieces, against 130,000 last year, and curtailment was 85,000, compared with 55,000. Port receipts today were 5,238 bales and 7,284,664 for the season. Exports today, none, and 5,387,235 for the season. Stock, 621,547.

Spot quiet; middling 26.40c.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 21.—COTTON—A tendency to sag was displayed by cotton today, buyers of yesterday being inclined to even up, while some short selling appeared on the extension of rains to southern Texas. The close showed a net loss of 25 to 30 points. Futures:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.

Spot quiet; middling, 25.75c.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, July 21.—COFFEE—The market for futures opened 8@10 points lower and continued weak throughout the entire session, with the close 18@23 points net lower and bottom for the day. Trade was not large, but sentiment was bearish owing to the break of 5-16d in Rio exchange on London, together with the large Brazilian port and interior receipts and disappointing peace prospects. Sales, 14,000 bags. Closing: July, 7.80c; August, 7.87c; September, 7.94c; October, 7.97c; November, 7.99c; December, 8.02c; January, 8.07c; February, 8.12c; March, 8.17c; April, 8.22c; May, 8.27c; June, 8.33c. Spot coffee was quiet; Rio 7s, 9¼c; Santos 4s, 10¼c. The official cables reported Santos spots 100 reis higher and Rio exchange 5-16d lower. Brazilian port receipts, 42,000 bags; Jundiahy, 50,000.

of Its Stock at Par

This stock is paying and will continue to pay a minimum dividend of 10% for an indefinite period from the present oil production of the Bu-Co Oil & Refining Co. and also participates in one of the greatest speculations ever undertaken in the oil business.

One producing well brought in from our self-sustaining test-wells now drilling in virgin territory will make this stock extremely valuable.

4% Quarterly—And More

¶Current net revenues from over 100 wells now in operation on the West Virginia property of the Pennsylvania-Kentucky Oil & Gasoline Refining Corporation are more than enough to maintain present dividends of 4% quarterly. And upon development of its Kentucky and Ohio proven oil acreage, it is the intention of the Company to increase this rate, or declare extra dividends from time to time as earnings warrant.

Pennsylvania-Kentucky Oil

Stock is being traded in on the New York Curb, where its excellent intrinsic worth and growing equities should result in a broader and increasingly active market, thus affording those who purchase at once an opportunity to add substantial market profits to the dividends they will receive.

¶Prevailing quotation is around 8⅛, or slightly above price at which the stock was recently offered at private subscription. Orders should read "At the market," and will be executed by us either outright for cash, or on our Monthly Investment Plan, upon initial deposit of 20% of the purchase, cost. ON THE BROAD STREET CURB

NEW YORK, July 21.—The upward movement in the Wyoming group of oil stocks continued with greater vigor on the Broad street market today, and several new high records were made. There was evidence of a more active participation of outside buying than had been shown for some time past.

War order stocks were also active and higher. The movement in the independent oil issues was in Midwest Refining, which rose 18 to 188. Merritt Oil gained seven points on the announcement of favorable news in regard to a new well being brought in. Knickerbocker Wyoming issues made material gains, the common selling from 3¼ to 4⅜ and the preferred sold up ⅜ of a point to 10⅛; the new issue of Ohio Cities followed the course of old stock with a sharp break late in the week, but quickly recovrd most of the loss.

Aeroplane shares were also prominent. Curtiss ranged from 38¼ to 42 and Wright-Martin made new ground, selling up 2¼ points to 11⅛. Aetna Explosives was the feature in the munitions group, with the price advancing from 5⅛ to 7⅛.

Motor stocks were only moderately active and price changes within comparatively narrow range. Redden Motors was under pressure Thursday, selling off 3 points to 13, but later recovered.

Most attention in the mining market was given to the silver and lead producing companies. Nipissing Mines made a fractional gain. A report was received that Emma Consolidated is shipping daily at the rate of about eighty tons of high grade silver-lead ore. St. Joseph Lead sold up 1⅛ points to 19⅞. Butte Copper and Zinc and Green Monster were weak, the former selling to 8⅞ and rallying later to 9⅜.

Active dealing occurred in the new General Electric 6 per cent three year notes upon the announcement of the offering to be made at 99¾. The price quickly rose from 100 to 100⅜. New York City new 4½s were traded in at 101½@101⅝.

1,792 Strike in Colorado Mines.

Leadville, Colo., July 21.—Seventeen hundred and ninety-two members of the Cloud City Mine, Mill and Smelterman's union went on strike here this morning. Pickets were stationed at each of the thirty-seven mines.

FINANCIAL NOTES

THE Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific will this year show much the largest gross earnings in its history, according to present indications. For the six months ended June 30 gross earnings increased over $5,000,000 compared with the corresponding period last year.

Total gross earnings were $41,777,058. Compared with the first half of 1915 the increase was over $9,000,000, or nearly 28 per cent. Crop and business prospects in the road's territory are promising and it is expected that the second half year will continue to record gains over 1916.

Operating expenses have risen rapidly, but net earnings are not much behind 1916.

M. D. Follansbee has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Belt Railway Company of Chicago to fill the vacancy caused by the death of W. O. Johnson.

The Champion Paper company of Watertown has increased its capital stock from $100,000 to $500,000. The Kenyon Lumber company has increased its capital from $200,000 to $400,000.

Preparatory to another Liberty loan it is announced as being likely that the government will put out a statement of a reassuring character regarding profits and war orders.

A final dividend, which will bring the average rate to 7½ per cent, has been proposed by the directors of Frederick Leyland & Co., a subsidiary of the International Mercantile Marine. In the annual report of the company no account is given of earnings for the year of 1916. The report says: "After provision for all taxation, depreciation and contingent liabilities and the payment of deferred dividends, the directors propose a final dividend which will bring the average rate to 7½ per cent."

According to an authority, the world's production of copper in 1916 amounted to 1,396,000 tons, at 2,235 pounds to the ton. This compares with 1,061,300 tons for 1915, 923,900 in 1914, and 1,066,000 in 1913. The United States led in the 1916 production with 880,880 tons, Japan ranking second with 90,000 tons. Chile produced 66,500 tons and Mexico 55,100 tons.

An increase of $1,886,692, or 62.6 per cent, was shown in the sales of the Motor Products corporation for the six months ended June 30, 1917. Sales for the first four months increased $1,423,000, or 74 per cent. The increase for May was 71 per cent, but sales fell off during June and the increase amounted to only 20 per cent, as compared with the same month of last year.

MARKET COMMENT

ONE large New York commission house wired the following to its Chicago correspondent: "We think the unfavorable news to date has been mostly discounted, and that we shall have slow improvement in the market which may be used for purchases. The newspapers agree that the new German chancellor's speech is not for peace and that the war will continue. The reichstag passed the new loan ($3,000,000,000) to a third reading and it is expected to go through. Some advices indicate a slight improvement in Russia with War Minister Kerensky now running things.

"Before the next United States loan is to be floated, efforts doubtless will be made to reassure public confidence, but there is no time to lose. We think business interests will be allowed a better show than many have assumed from all the talk about price fixing. Stocks are oversold and should rally further."

Large commission houses are reported to be carrying a small volume of steel stocks.

According to Wall street, there are signs of reaccumulation of Lackawanna Steel shares for the account of active speculative investment interests. Large orders are reported among floor brokers to have been uncovered below 90. The earning power of the concern is being regarded as unusually stable.

Owing to the fact that the United States has entered upon the liability trade of the war, it is held in some New York banking circles that the stock market from now on will move very much in sympathy with the London market.

SHORTS CONTINUE COVERING.

New York, July 21.—Traders took a more optimistic view of the Washington situation today and engaged in further covering of short contracts. Commission houses also circulated reports of an early solution of the problems attaching to war prices and taxes.

Industrials of most descriptions, particularly those comprehended in the war groups, rose one to 7 points Bethlehem old, and new stocks scoring great gains. United States Steel and the so-called independent shares bettered their position by 1 to 2 points.

Shippings were also in favor, Marine preferred leading that division at a gain of 3 points, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies and United Fruit rising 2 or more with American-International corporation.

Coppers Join in Advance.

Coppers were irregular at the outset, but gained 1 to 1½ in the more active operations of the last hour. Similar or greater advances were registered by American Woolen, Central Leather, oils, sugars, and local tractions.

Rails were inactive throughout the session, the only noteworthy changes being limited to the coalers, Lehigh Valley and Chesapeake and Ohio rising over a point each. St. Paul was moderately reactionary and the motors reflected a continuance of recent pressure.

The bond market was firm, with Liberty 3½s at par to 99.46. Panama coupon 3s rose 5 per cent on call during the week.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Demand for coarse cotton yarns today was moderate. Linens available for duck manufacture are held in many instances at prices much higher than numbers much finer. Cotton goods were steady. The wool market was firm and quiet. Burlaps were scarce and firm. Knit goods and wash goods buying for spring and going moderately.
